A swag of Central Australian teachers have been named as finalists in this year's World Teachers' Day NT Awards.

The awards recognise and celebrate the achievements of Northern Territory Government school teachers, principals, leaders, and support staff who deliver high-quality learning to young Territorians.

Finalists range from Naomi Hayes at Ross Park Primary School, to Josh Lander at Larapinta School in Alice Springs, and No-elene (Joy) Hampton from Tennant Creek Primary School, who are all in the running for the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Educator of the Year.

Notably, Acacia Hill School had the most nominations from a school in Central Australia - with five finalists including the school principal, Julie Permezel.

SCHOOLS on Alyawarre Country, northeast of Alice Springs, will expand their Deadly Weather program thanks to a $75,000 grant from the Foundation for Rural & Regional Renewal (FRRR) through the Community Led Climate Solutions (CLCS) program.

Delivered by DeadlyScience, the Deadly Weather program helps remote, rural, and regional schools understand and respond to climate change.

The funding is part of $650,000 awarded to 24 not-for-profit organisations across Australia to support local action on climate impacts and energy transitions.

Best in business

ALICE Springs continues to take centre stage for awards, with local creative company Brindle Films named the NT Chief Minister's Exporter of the Year for its internationally acclaimed film Kangaroo.

The 2025 Northern Territory Export and Business Awards, held on October 10, showcased Alice's innovation, creativity and community spirit as being at the heart of the Territory's success.

Kangaroo was released nationally and globally in September - the heartwarming film showcases Central Australia's stunning landscapes and authentic storytelling, helping share the spirit of the region with audiences around the world.

Brindle Films was praised for its innovation, creativity and contribution to promoting the Territory's culture on an international stage.

This year's Minister for Trade, Business and Asian Relations' Northern Territory Business of the Year award went to Alice Springs business, Coleman's Ink, More Than Print.

Alice Springs businesses featured strongly among this year's winners, with the Alice Springs Convention Centre taking out the award for Excellence in Business - Business Events and Trade Delegations, while the Alice Springs Show won Best Community Event or Business Collaboration with both awards highlighting the town's growing role as a hub for major events, tourism and regional business success.

Recognising top teachers

By Gladys Barreta

A handful of Central Australian teachers from schools in the Northern Territory have been named as finalists in this year’s World Teachers’ Day NT Awards.

The awards aim to recognise and celebrate the achievements of Northern Territory Government school teachers, principals, leaders, and support staff who deliver high-quality learning to young Territorians.

Finalists range from Naomi Hayes at Ross Park Primary School, to Josh Lander at Larapinta School in Alice Springs, and Noelene (Joy) Hampton from Tennant Creek Primary School, who are all in the running for the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Educator of the Year.

Anna Benson from Centralian Senior College, along with Jemma Seddon and Ed Gould from Centralian Middle School, are finalists for Secondary Educator of the Year, as is Raelene Fitzgerald-Tilbury from Tennant Creek High School.

Central Australia’s top primary educators this year include Courtney Harley from Sada-deen Primary School in Alice Springs and Karen Dixon from Tennant Creek Primary School in Tennant Creek.

Notably, Acacia Hill School had the most nominations from a school in Central Australia - with five finalists including the school principal, Julie Permezel.

Other finalists include:

Counterfeit money seized in Alice Springs

By Gladys Baretta, Phil Williams

NT Police are warning the public about counterfeit money circulating in Alice Springs, following several reports received late last month.

On September 30, police located and seized almost $5000 in counterfeit notes in $100 and $50 denominations.

The seizure followed similar incidents in South Australia during August and September, where there were more than 200 reported cases.

Alice Springs police have seized a total of $4700 of the false currency with $600 surrendered to police.

NT Police have received reports there may be a significant number of fake notes still circulating, with investigations continuing.

Police said illegal notes had been tendered at various Alice Springs businesses and licensed venues.

The dubious notes feature the word “PROP” defaced or covered from the bottom right corner of the notes

NT Police said despite fake notes discovered in South Australia, there was no joint operation between the two jurisdictions at this stage, and the Alice Springs seizure was considered separate.

However, NT Police are investigating possible links and have not ruled out the possibility of an interstate connection.

Fake notes can usually be identified by missing security features, incorrect fonts and spelling mistakes or serial numbers repeated on different notes.

Counterfeit currency is often high-denomination notes used in an attempt to gain genuine currency in exchange.

Often either a $100 or $50 note is used to make small purchases to then gain legitimate currency to be used later.

Anyone who receives counterfeit banknotes is asked to Note It, Store It and Report It - Note the details of how you received the note, store it in an envelope, and report it to a police station.

At no time, should you put yourself in danger.

Notes that include the phrase ‘PROPS’ or ‘COPY’ are still counterfeit, and it is a crime to possess or use them.

Suspect notes are forwarded by police to the Australian Federal Police for investigation.

If the note is counterfeit, it will not be returned while genuine notes will be returned to the owner.

Detective Superintendent Deanne Ward said: “We urge the community to exercise caution when handling cash and to contact the police on 131 444 if they notice anything unusual or have any concerns.”

ALICE Springs continues to take centre stage for awards, with local creative company Brindle Films named the Chief Minister's Exporter of the Year for its internationally acclaimed film Kangaroo.

The 2025 Northern Territory Export and Business Awards, held on October 10, showcased Alice's innovation, creativity and community spirit as being at the heart of the Territory's success.

Kangaroo was released nationally and globally in September - the heartwarming film showcases Central Australia's stunning landscapes and authentic storytelling, helping share the spirit of the region with audiences around the world.

Brindle Films was praised for its innovation, creativity and contribution to promoting the Territory's culture on an international stage.

This year's Minister for Trade, Business and Asian Relations' Northern Territory Business of the Year award went to Alice Springs business, Coleman's Ink, More Than Print.

Alice Springs businesses featured strongly among this year's winners, with the Alice Springs Convention Centre taking out the award for Excellence in Business - Business Events and Trade Delegations, while the Alice Springs Show won Best Community Event or Business Collaboration with both awards highlighting the town's growing role as a hub for major events, tourism and regional business success.

Now in its 32nd year, the NT Export and Business Awards celebrate the achievements of local businesses, entrepreneurs and exporters across a range of industries.

Chief Minister Lia Finocchiaro said Territory exporters contributed more than $12.8 billion to the NT economy last financial year.

EXCELLENCE: Minister for Trade, Business and Asian Relations Robyn Cahill with Magdaline and Tony Coleman from Coleman's Ink, More Than Print, which was the winner of the Excellence in Business - Medium & Large award.

"International trade is an important part of rebuilding the economy, and these awards celebrate the Territory businesses taking our products and expertise to the world," she said.

"By backing our exporters, we're creating more local jobs and growing the Territory's future."

Minister for Trade, Business and Asian Relations Robyn Cahill said Territory businesses were driving growth and innovation across the region.

EXPORT: Jennie Hughes from Screen Territory, on behalf of Brindle Films, which was named the Chief Minister's Northern Territory's Exporter of the Year for 2025, with Chief Minister Lia Finocchiaro.

"These awards shine a spotlight on Territory excellence in business on the world stage," she said.

Chamber of Commerce NT CEO Glen Hingley said expanding export capability was key to growing the local economy.

"The Territory is home to world-class innovators, creators and producers, and these awards recognise their collective brilliance," he said.

Other winners included Ikuntji Artists, Asia Pacific Aircraft Storage, Cycad International and Spee3D.

Territory winners will now progress to the Australian Export Awards in Canberra on November 26.

New parcel lockers a huge hit, so more installed

By Phil Williams

DUE to the unexpected popularity and convenience of postal lockers at the Alice Springs post office, another bank has been installed.

The Post Office is now home to four extra-large banks of parcel lockers, giving local residents a secure and easy way to collect deliveries at any time of the day or night.

The lockers enable residents to have more convenient access to online purchases around the clock.

The expansion in Alice Springs comes as Australia Post's 2025 eCommerce Report reveals that online purchases in the Northern Territory grew by more than 11 per cent year on year, the largest increase of any state or territory.

When shopping online, customers can choose to have their packages delivered straight to a Parcel Locker, instead of their home or workplace.

Parcels can then be collected from the secure 24/7 lockers at a time convenient to them.

Kayde Cox, who is a regular user of the lockers said they were simple and convenient to use.

"I do like using the parcel lockers," she said.

"It means I don't have to stand in the queue and wait in line, and they are available 24/7 so I can collect parcels whenever it suits me."

Eligible pre-paid returns can also be lodged via the lockers by following the merchant instructions.

By downloading the Australia Post App, creating a MyPost account, and registering a preferred Parcel Locker location, customers can receive their deliveries when and where it suits them.

The app offers real-time tracking and the ability to view estimated delivery dates.

Customers can also register to access Parcel Lockers at Alice Springs Post Office.

With more than 950 Australia Post Parcel Locker locations across Australia, users have the option to register at multiple locations, making it easy to receive online orders in their local area or away from home.

To find out more about how to use the lockers, visit auspost.com.au/receiving/collection-points/use-a-247-parcel-locker

There are terms and conditions that apply to the use of the lockers and collection time limits apply.

By Phil Williams

AN almost sold-out crowd packed the Araluen Arts Centre for an evening of laughter and stories from acclaimed journalists Annabel Crabb and Leigh Sales.

The pair captivated the audience with a wide range of topics, from the iconic Crocodile Dundee and the beloved Australian TV series A Country Practice, as well as taking a humorous view of the mundane topic of water bottles.

The audience was treated to a night of pure entertainment, as the two seasoned journalists shared their wit and insights.

Following the show, the pair signed copies of their books and mingled with the enthusiastic fans, capping off the memorable experience.

Honouring Ruby

NGARRINDJERI / KUKATHA / PITJANTJATJARA woman Ruby Hunter (1955–2010) has been posthumously inducted into the 2025 Australian Women in Music Honour Roll, acknowledging outstanding women in the Australian music industry who have made significant and lasting contributions in their chosen field.

Ms Hunter was the first Aboriginal woman to sign with a major record label in 1994, following the release of her debut solo album, Thoughts Within.

With roots close to Central Australia, Ms Hunter resided in South Australia and was born on Goat Island. Today, she remains one of Australia’s most treasured musical storytellers and pioneers.

She will be on the Honour Roll alongside musicians Helen Reddy, Dame Joan Sutherland (OM, AC, DBE), Olivia Newton John (AC, DBE), Judith Durham (AO) and more.

At just eight years old, Ms Hunter and her siblings were taken from their parents as part of the Stolen Generations and fostered into a white family. Separated from her culture and community, Ms Hunter’s early life was marked by dislocation and hardship, experiences that fuelled her determination to speak up for others through song.

Ms Hunter won many awards throughout her career, including Best Female Artist at the Deadly Awards following the release of her album Feeling Good in 2000.

In 2003, she was also recognised for her outstanding contribution to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander music. She co-created Ruby’s Story (2004) with Archie Roach and Paul Grabowsky and was a founding member of the Black Arm Band.

Ms Hunter loved children, and in 2012 her children’s songbook Butcher Paper, Texta, Black HONOUR: Ruby Hunter was posthumously inducted into the 2025 Australian Women in Music Honour Roll at this year’s Award Ceremony.

Board and Chalk was published. One of her final projects involved sharing stories from children in the Cape York Peninsula region through songwriting and music workshops run by Ruby and Archie.

Ms Hunter is remembered for her unforgettable, soulful, and honest stage presence. Her legacy endures not only in her music but also in the way she inspired and still inspires future generations of First Nations artists.

The ceremony took place at Fortitude Music Hall in Brisbane on October 9, with the award accepted by Ms Hunter’s son, Amos Roach.

Teen arrest

THE Northern Territory Police Force have arrested a 15-year-old male in relation to an aggravated robbery that occurred in Alice Springs in the early hours of October 7.

Around 1am, police received a report of a taxi driver being robbed in Bloomfield Street in Gillen. The male youth offender allegedly attended the scene in a gold Holden Commodore sedan and threatened the taxi driver with a knife, before stealing cash and fleeing in the Commodore.

The offender’s face was allegedly covered during the incident. The taxi driver was uninjured.

Strike Force Viper took carriage of the investigation and a 15-year-old male was arrested. He has since been charged with Aggravated robbery and was remanded to appear in court today.

NORTHERN TERRITORY GOVERNMENT

The Pulse

Dr Glenn Morrison

It's a brave new world

I'M over AI. You know, Artificial Intelligence.

Perhaps I'm a Luddite? After Ned Ludd. His 19th century English cronies destroyed new cotton and wool mills rather than have them take their jobs.

Call me Neddy-no-mates then. Well, part of me anyway.

The part that dislikes that tech thingamy that has everyone so excited, is taking the world by storm, and will likely steal our jobs.

Neddy is sick of the AI hype too.

Desperate to banish it from Microsoft Word, uninterested in how easy it'll make his life, and—pet hate alert—fed up with everything it's going to do but hasn't quite done.

Yep. Neddy and me. Together, we're the bloke still waiting for computers to produce a "paperless office".

Pounds to a pumpkin it's all for the cities anyway, right? Out bush? Not so much.

Anyway. Rather than stew in our own prejudices, we checked out what AI has in store for the Red Centre.

Expecting very little, the results surprised us. Well, Neddy mainly.

Forecasts for AI's future are glowing hot: $20 trillion dollars in expected wealth globally by 2030; a cool $100 billion to the Australian economy, and 200,000 jobs over the same period.

Upshot? The AI revolution is coming whether Neddy and I like it or not.

I've long thought AI might well leave Centralians happily adrift to sip rum and cokes under a white gum at Honeymoon Gap.

"Don't lift a finger" jokes Neddy. AI has already done the lot.

Faster, and more accurately.

For one has only to read the news to learn how AI will revolutionise science, banking, farming, fishing, teaching, learning, speaking, hearing, sex and breathing. And on. And on.

Already it's removing my mates' prostate, apparently. Yep, AI is big in health.

And busy enhancing diagnoses, improving the precision of treatments, more reliably predicting patient outcomes, and, when connected to a surgical robot... oh, don't even go there!

It's even set to improve the work-life balance of our nurses.

Good luck with that, Neddy bleats. In Alice Springs? Where we run on NT time: Not Today, Not Tomorrow? Oh, please.

So, here's the thing. There's a race on. Right now. To make sure the bush doesn't miss out on AI.

On demand for AI talent, the Barkly ranks among Australia's top 10 regional areas for AI job advertisements.

A sort of digital FOMO ... (Neddy, stop it. I mean it).

We even have a plan. It's called Australia's AI Action Plan, released in 2021, upgrading the earlier AI Roadmap of 2019.

The plan will "establish Australia as a global leader in developing and adopting trusted, secure and responsible AI".

Which reveals Australians' greatest fears about AI to be, in order: Complete lack of trust (it lies), trepidation about online security (cue lives plagued by online scams, banking rip-offs and privacy threats), and whether AI is actually mad (it makes stuff up, even issues its own warning: E.g. "Notebook LM can be inaccurate, so double check").

Nonetheless, the Commonwealth dropped $124.1 million to "strengthen Australian leadership" in the sphere, building on half billion invested since 2018.

But the regions? I'm glad you asked, Neddy. Seems we're behind.

We have slower less reliable internet.

And it's more expensive in the bush than cities, with more frequent downtimes exacerbated by AI's high appetite for data and connectivity (not enough remote infrastructure, so service outages rule).

Nonetheless, in June last year the previous NT Government launched its own AI policy.

The document riffs on the national policy, and (though considerably thinner) is also said to be responsible.

And ethical. And, you can be super sure, will benefit ALL Territorians.

Except those who lose their jobs, Neddy spits. Or didn't have one in the first place, I add.

But hang on Neddy. There are benefits too.

Look here: The Barkly and Tennant Creek are prime candidates for AI. Say what?

Regional Australia contributes $584 billion to the nation's Gross Domestic Product, or GDP.

But investment bankers Goldman Sachs estimate AI can add another $146 billion to that.

Neddy coughs to interrupt: 'Didn't GS mislead investors and profit from the mortgage market collapse during the Global Financial Crisis of 2008?'

Look. Australia is publishing AI applications at a higher rate than the global average.

And two of the three top ranking fields for apps are in livestock production and horticulture.

That's us! And other biggies include food, soil science and aquatic research, with significant interest emerging in Top End AI-driven Barramundi farming.

And another positive is the astronomical power bills leaking from the AI beast.

Yep: five times the power consumption of a traditional data centre. The quid pro quo being that someone must supply all that juice.

And our regions are great for locating big AI infrastructure with new power sources to match, in the NT likely gas, but it could be solar with battery storage?

Plus, there's all that construction investment. And siting it all out here means reducing the risks associated with plonking all our important stuff in cities.

Besides, the Barkly is already on it. On demand for AI talent, the Barkly ranks among Australia's top 10 regional areas for AI job advertisements.

And it's all rising. Of course, the reverse-quo-pro (is that even a word Neddy?) is the few training opportunities in the Barkly.

"Don't forget the Centralian brain drain to the cities," Neddy pipes in.

And appropriate hi-tech infrastructure being scarce and all. Did I mention a shortage of builders?

I hear you, Neddy. And I agree. And Aboriginal communities are mostly excluded from the digital world, and already battling low levels of literacy, numeracy, and computer literacy.

Over the long term, recruiting enough AI talent in the Barkly would need budget and effort on a biblical scale, as well as Indigenous leadership, co-design and co-delivery.

"So, what about the big aim then?" Neddy asks. "You know, bridging the digital divide between urban and rural?"

"Fingers crossed?," I suggest.

Neddy grimaces.

"There's one thing but. AI helped me summarise the research for this Pulse.

"Hope that's OK?"

Getting Good Stuff Done

A community powerhouse

By Gladys Barreta

BARBARA Clifford is a woman of many talents, from a corporate businesswoman with big goals to an active community member, passionate theatre lover, performer, and dedicated sports supporter who's always up for a good yarn.

But above all, she's a true community champion.

When she first arrived in Alice Springs in 1999 (for what was meant to be a six-week holiday working in the film industry), Barbara quickly fell in love with everything the town had to offer.

What was supposed to be a short stay turned into eight years until 2007, when she and her husband left for a time.

However, they soon realised how much they missed home and returned in 2015 but this time for good.

From owning her own business to serving on six different advisory boards and committees, Barbara truly has her eggs in many baskets. She is a proud community woman, dedicated to making an impact wherever she can.

Currently, she serves on the board of Territory Proud, the Executive Committee for the Chamber of Commerce, and the Board of FAB Alice, where she volunteers as the festival co-ordinator.

She's also a member of the Advisory Committee for NT Health, providing feedback to Alice Springs Hospital and supporting community engagement, as well as a member of a local social club committee and a working group with the Mparntwe Foundation.

"I think there is great value in doing things in the community not only just for our own wellbeing but also for creating impact, and doing something different."

Barbara also has a passion for the performing arts, volunteering at Totem Theatre as both a performer and a production hand.

Her business, Hinwood Institute, focuses on professional development, coaching, training, and workplace mediation.

She started the business more than 10 years ago while living away from Alice Springs in 2015.

At first, people thought Barbara was crazy to move her business to a small town, but she always believed Alice Springs was the land of opportunity.

"There has always been such a variety of careers and businesses on offer in this town," she said.

INVOLVED: Business owner and huge community woman, Barbara Clifford.

"It's both a good and bad thing and it's easy to punch above your weight. In Alice Springs, it's easy to find work. I just knew my business would thrive."

Barbara has also served on the Centralian Senior College School Council and speaks fondly of the strong relationship between the school, the wider community and her kids who were students.

"Sometimes people say they've had enough of this town," she said. "But because it's a place of opportunity, it's a great home base."

"So many of my friends and family have found great jobs here and can travel because of that."

"Also, I've always got a lift to the airport!"

Barbara's early career in the film industry also led to rich cultural experiences working out on Country, in community, and eventually meeting her partner through that work.

She said being on boards had been one of the most rewarding ways to contribute.

"One of the most significant things I do for the community is being on boards and advisory committees that help make an impact," Barbara said.

"It keeps me informed about what's important to our community and what's impacting us from a business perspective, not just for my own business but for others too."

"With the hospital, I get to understand how they care for our community; with the Chamber, how they support businesses; and with social groups and festivals, it's all about liveliness and quality of life."

"It's how I can contribute."

"There's so much joy in seeing the community come together from the smiles on people's faces, to the connection and the sense of belonging."

"You really get to understand the personality of Alice Springs. I'm loyal and protective of my town, and I can speak with authority because I'm engaged and involved."

"I love the richness of cultural diversity here and the multicultural community. I love that sport sits right alongside the arts; they're neighbours in this town," she said.

"I feel connected to Country, people, spirit, and the things that spark joy here in Alice Springs."

"I've lived in many places, but I've never felt as connected as I do here. The connections are deep, meaningful, and built on strong friendships and relationships."

"You only make an impact if you're involved and you can always choose to be a part of the solution."

"Everyone can have ideas and opinions, but until you do something, it won't make an impact. And it's incredibly rewarding when you do."

Doing science deadly way

By Gladys Barreta

SCHOOLS on Alyawarre Country, northeast of Alice Springs, will expand their Deadly Weather program thanks to a $75,000 grant from the Foundation for Rural & Regional Renewal (FRRR) through the Community Led Climate Solutions (CLCS) program.

Delivered by DeadlyScience, the Deadly Weather program helps remote, rural, and regional schools understand and respond to climate change. The funding is part of $650,000 awarded to 24 not-for-profit organisations across Australia to support local action on climate impacts and energy transitions.

The CLCS program backs locally led projects that help communities adapt to or mitigate the risks of a changing climate. It also supports initiatives that empower local groups to assist people affected by the shift away from fossil fuel industries or the move toward renewable energy.

This $75,000 grant will help scale a culturally appropriate, community-led project that both alleviates socio-economic disadvantage and strengthens the capacity of rural and regional schools to take an active leadership role in climate adaptation.

FRRR CEO Natalie Egleton said the grants reflect strong local leadership and a growing desire to involve young people in future-focused climate solutions.

"These projects are locally led, culturally responsive, and demonstrate strong planning and partnerships," she said.

"We're especially pleased to see engagement with Traditional Owners - 11 of the 24 projects are in partnership with local Aboriginal groups, and two are First Nations-led."

Founder of DeadlyScience, Corey Tutt said the funding is incredibly important because remote and regional communities will be significantly affected by climate change.

DeadlyScience is a not-for-profit organisation that provides STEM resources and learning experiences to regional and remote schools in Australia and connect young Indigenous people with STEM professionals.

"Being in the city, there are more resources to combat climate change," he said.

"But in remote communities, there's little to no infrastructure available.

"By getting young people involved in measuring the impact on the environment, you give them autonomy over the research and a voice. They can see the change happening in their own communities."

DeadlyScience has worked with schools on the APY Lands and Arnernte Country, introducing the Deadly Weather project - smart weather stations installed in communities to collect wind, rain, and moisture data.

"The weather stations aim to get kids involved in climate and citizen science by collecting data and providing real information about their local environment," Mr Tutt said.

"We also host Deadly Learner Lessons, where students can talk directly with climate scientists. Kids are learning practical skills on the go and gaining access to industry professionals who understand climate science. It gives them confidence, knowledge, and autonomy to talk about the impacts of climate change."

A share in the $50m

By Phil Williams

A mystery Powerball ticket holder in Alice Springs had all their Christmases come at once, changing their life forever after winning a half share of the $50 million Powerball jackpot.

It was the biggest lottery win in Northern Territory history.

The unregistered entry was one of two tickets to share the $50 Million dollar Division One Powerball prize in last week's October 9 draw #1534.

As of Sunday, the local winner, and now multi-millionaire, was keeping a low profile and was yet to claim their Territory record prize.

The winning numbers for the massive Powerball jackpot were: 11, 21, 15, 28, 10, 20, and 24 with the Powerball number 20.

The lucky winner will share the $50 million jackpot with a player from Western Australia.

The two division one winning entries in Powerball draw each pocket $25 million, but the ticketholders may not yet know of their good fortune as officials from the Lott have been unable to contact the winners.

The winning Alice Springs entry was sold at The Lucky Charm in the Coles Complex.

In addition to the two $25 million division one winners, there were 1,531,608 winners across divisions two to nine who collectively took home more than $30.57 million. This includes seven division two winners who each took home $121,536.10.

If you discover you're holding the division one winning Northern Territory entry, hold on tight to that ticket and phone 131 868 as soon as possible to start the prize claim process.

Call for info on car fire

By Gladys Barreta

POLICE are investigating a vehicle fire that occurred in Alice Springs early on the morning of October 5.

The Joint Emergency Services Communication Centre (JESCC) received multiple reports of a vehicle fire on Albrecht Drive around 5:30am on 5 October. NT Fire and Rescue Service attended and extinguished the blaze; however, the vehicle was destroyed. Initial investigations indicate the vehicle was deliberately set alight during a dispute between people known to each other.

Police have identified those involved and enquiries are ongoing.

Anyone with information is urged to contact police on 131 444 and quote reference number P25266298. Anonymous reports can be made through Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or via <https://crimestoppersnt.com.au/>.

SAFE, HAPPY HOME AWAY FROM HOME

By Phil Williams

LEAVING a pet behind is one of the hardest parts of spending time away from home.

For Alice Springs locals, Pawz N Clawz has been a trusted name in pet care since 2007.

What started as a passion for giving animals a safe and happy place, has grown into a much-loved service where dogs, cats, birds, bunnies, guinea pigs, and even lizards feel right at home.

Owned and operated locally, Pawz N Clawz is deeply connected to the community.

Pawz N Clawz isn't just about boarding, but treating every animal as part of the family.

With air-conditioned and secure facilities, natural grassed yards for dogs to stretch their legs, and cosy, temperature-controlled spaces for cats, every detail is designed to keep pets comfortable through Central Australia's harsh climate.

That care and attention shines through in the experiences of local pet owners.

One customer shared how they were given updates, including photos, and videos of their dog, Lucy, as she settled in during her six day stay.

For many, Pawz N Clawz isn't just a kennel or cattery, it's a place where pets are understood and cared for as individuals.

"It made our holiday so much better knowing Lucy was in good hands. We would recommend 100 per cent," they said.

Another spoke of the peace of mind that comes with leaving their cats at Pawz N Clawz, praising the "exceptional service, reasonable pricing, and high standard of care".

For many, this isn't just a kennel or cattery, it's a place where pets are understood and cared for as individuals.

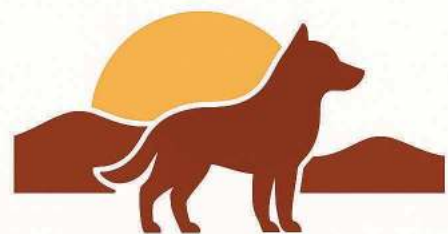

Whether it's for a weekend away or a long trip, Pawz N Clawz has earned its reputation as Alice Springs' home away from home for pets.

Frozen Banana & Blueberry Bites

Ingredients:

- 1 ripe banana
- 1/2 cup blueberries
- 1/2 cup plain Greek yoghurt

Method:

1. Mash the banana and stir through yoghurt and blueberries.

2. Spoon into ice cube trays or silicone moulds.
3. Freeze for a few hours until solid.

Why it's a good choice: Perfect for Alice Springs heat! Banana gives potassium, blueberries are rich in antioxidants, and yoghurt helps with digestion.

Cool, healthy, and refreshing treats - perfect for Territory dogs.

PUPPIES' BEST FRIENDS

By Charles Geary

For years, Charlie Michalke and the Charlie's Angels Dog Sanctuary have been leading the charge to provide vital veterinary services to dogs and puppies across the Red Centre.

Operating out of Alice Springs, Ms Michalke and her team of dedicated volunteers has developed strong relationships with people living in town camps and remote communities, working to address the issue of animal overpopulation through vaccination and desexing programs.

"A lot of these people, because their female dogs aren't desexed, they have quite a few puppies, and it's getting harder and harder to look after all these dogs that start to accumulate over just one year," Ms Michalke said.

With limited access to veterinary care, many pet owners in these areas have struggled to keep up with the health needs of their animals.

This has led to an ongoing crisis of overpopulation, with unwanted litters of puppies born every year.

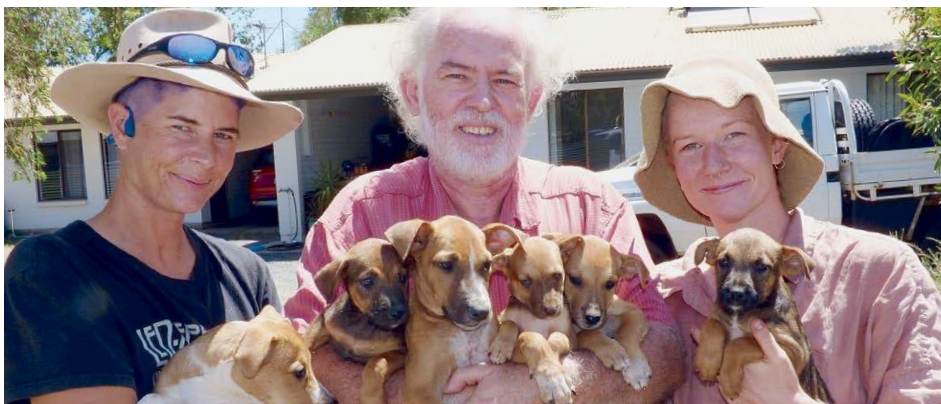

Through Charlie's Angels, Ms Michalke and her team have stepped in to provide vaccinations, desexing procedures, and rehoming for countless dogs and puppies.

By building trust with local communities, they have been able to make important inroads in addressing this important issue.

"They let us help them and we put these dogs on our website. We vaccinate and desex them of course, and then we try to find them new homes. And it seems to work really well," Ms Michalke said.

Visiting vet Dr Stephen Cutter, who has been helping with similar programs in remote Northern Australia for 25 years, attests to the ongoing need for such initiatives.

"There's a big need. I think it's an ongoing need and it will be ongoing because it's not like any of the need will stop..." Dr Cutter said.

PUPPIES: Charlie Michalke, Dr Stephen Cutter, and Renae Davidson have been hard at work with Charlie's Angels Dog Sanctuary. (Charles Geary: 454158)

"What we do isn't going to fix the problem, it's just providing assistance to an ongoing need."

For volunteer Renae Davidson, the work of Charlie's Angels hits close to home.

As a foster carer for numerous dogs, she is intimately familiar with the plight of these animals and the importance of finding them loving homes.

"I just want the puppies to have nice homes and be cared for and be part of a family," Ms Davidson said.

"I want to support that and support the families that have an overpopulation of dogs or animals so they actually can't be a part of the family any more."

With the support of the local community, Ms Michalke and her team continue to make a tangible difference in the lives of dogs and puppies across Central Australia.

Whether through monetary donations, supply drives, or simply spreading the word, there are many ways for people to get involved and support this vital work.

To donate call Ms Michalke on 0426 493 525.

COLOURS: The colours of Diwali light up the Thiruvathira performers during their dance during last year’s celebrations. (Phil Williams: 442603)

Vibrant celebration

By Phil Williams

DIWALI, the Festival of Lights, is celebrated across the world by more than one billion people, predominantly by Hindus, Sikhs, and Jains.

The festival is closely associated with Lakshmi, the goddess of prosperity, and it marks the beginning of the financial year in India.

In Alice Springs, the local Hindu, Sikh, and Jain communities come together to turn the Todd Mall into a vibrant celebration of colour and light, coinciding with the town’s Night Markets.

Diwali is a major cultural event for these communities, and it is a celebration of light that often provides impressive displays right across the globe.

The Diwali Night Markets in Alice Springs is an award-winning event, organised by the Alice Springs Town Council in conjunction with the Multicultural Community Services of Central Australia and various Indian, Malaysian, and Nepalese cultural and religious organizations.

Featuring performances of song and dance from various community groups, the event promises to be a feast for the senses, with dances, bright lights, and an array of incredible food.

The festival of Diwali is celebrated over the course of five to six days, and it is a time of joy, reflection, and community togetherness.

The Alice Springs Diwali Night Markets provide an opportunity for the local community to come together and experience the rich cultural heritage of the Hindu, Sikh, and Jain communities.

It is a testament to the diversity and vibrancy of the Alice Springs community, and a celebration of the shared values of light, prosperity, and unity that are at the heart of the Diwali festival.

DOCTOR: Dr Sarah Goddard has been recognised with the 2025 Northern Territory Rural Generalist of the Year Award by the Australian College of Rural and Remote Medicine (ACRRM).

Helping since day one

By Gladys Barreta

TENNANT Creek's Dr Sarah Goddard is this year's Rural Generalist of the year but apart from being a beloved doctor in her hometown, she is also one active member of the community, putting her eggs in many baskets and investing her energy in so many ways.

While her recognition highlights her outstanding commitment to providing the best rural, remote, and First Nations healthcare, it also reflects her unwavering passion for helping people, building trust, and strengthening community over time through dedication and care.

Sarah has always known she wanted to be a doctor, and now, settled back in the small town of Tennant Creek, she is being celebrated for her work nationwide.

Tennant is forever home

By Gladys Barreta

TENNANT Creek's Dr Sarah Goddard has been recognised with the 2025 Northern Territory Rural Generalist of the Year Award by the Australian College of Rural and Remote Medicine (ACRRM) - a well-deserved honour for someone who has dedicated her career to caring for the Barkly region.

Since she was a little girl playing doctor, Dr Goddard always knew she wanted to be one, and not just any doctor, but a rural generalist.

"I'm extremely honoured and a bit overwhelmed," she said.

"I don't know why me over everyone else... I just do my job."

"But what fulfils my heart is Indigenous health, remote station work, and primary healthcare. I get the best of both worlds combined."

A day in the life of a rural generalist, she said, is "adrenaline-filled and unpredictable where every day is different."

With her whole life and passions from the beginning rooted in the Barkly, Sarah credits her mother, Denise Goddard, for inspiring her career.

"Mum gets the credit. She's a highly respected police officer across the Barkly, and from a young age I was exposed to hospitals and saw first-hand the lack of healthcare in rural and remote Indigenous communities. That's where my emergency side kicked in."

Born in Alice Springs and raised in Tennant Creek, Dr Goddard went to boarding school in Darwin before studying medicine at the University of New South Wales.

Even during university, she always made the trip home whenever she could - whether it was for rodeos, birthdays, or races or whenever she could.

"I hated being away from home," she said.

After completing medical school in Darwin in 2015, she returned to Tennant Creek in 2017, specialising in emergency medicine.

Today, she serves as the Director of Medical and Clinical Services for the Barkly region.

"I can't explain it, there's just something that pulls me back," she said. "It fills my heart and recharges me. It's another level of fulfilment when you're helping your own people."

For Dr Goddard, rural healthcare is about more than just medicine - it's about continuity, trust, and connection.

"It's so important that people see the same doctors visiting their communities," she said. "That's how trust is built. We train registrars to follow in those footsteps and to be that regular face people recognise and feel comfortable with."

"Continuity, rapport, and education can really empower people to improve their health outcomes."

She said access was one of the biggest challenges in rural medicine.

"It's hard for people to present. An alternative consultation isn't always in a hospital or HOME: Sarah's first day working at Tennant Creek Hospital as a doctor in 2017 where she was gifted flowers from the community as a welcome home.

clinic. Sometimes it's about meeting people where they're at... literally."

Dr Goddard loves travelling across the Barkly and visiting outstations, flying out to cattle stations, and reconnecting with extended family.

"That's how I get my rural fix doing a mix of station life and medicine," she said

But she is also a huge a community leader, being especially proud of mentoring the next generation of Indigenous doctors.

"For a while, I was the only Indigenous doctor from the Barkly working across the NT registrar network. Now we have four. That's huge."

Through the Australian College of Rural and Remote Medicine and the Indigenous GP Training Network, she mentors Indigenous medical students and registrars, helping them with exam preparation, confidence, and connection.

"Mentoring is a payback system, like a big brother or big sister setup. Seniors help those coming through. I was the first female graduate to go through the program, and now I help facilitate exam prep through the medical education team."

Her efforts haven't gone unnoticed. Dr Goddard was named Indigenous Doctor of the Year by the Australian Indigenous Doctors' Association in 2022.

"I just want to show people it can be done and that anyone can do it," she said. "Sometimes mentoring is just about having a yarn, getting people back on track, and reminding them why they wanted to be a doctor in the first place."

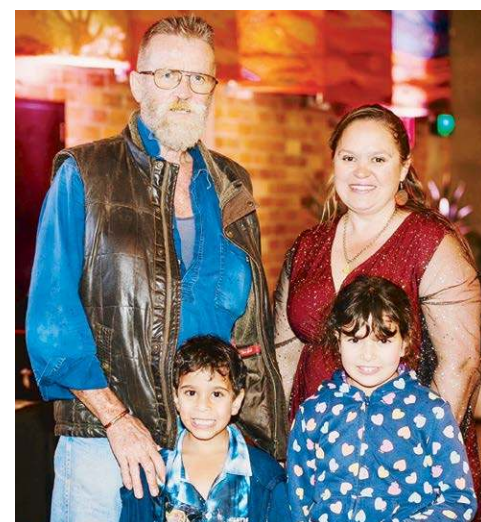

Although Dr Goddard has achieved more than anyone could imagine, her journey hasn't always been an easy ride, as she faced setbacks and failed exams more than once.

"It took me seven and a half years, but I didn't want to take no for an answer," she said.

"But if you want it bad enough, you keep going."

Beyond the Hospital, when she's not in scrubs, Dr Goddard is a big part of community life.

She has coached the AFL Women's team,

Sarah and her dad, Stephen Goddard Snr, with Sarah's nephew and niece, Iraya and Tracker at the alumni awards at the University of Newcastle last year, where she was awarded Indigenous Alumni of the year.

YOUNGER: A photo of Sarah when she was younger playing 'doctor'.

now serves as the team doctor, helps with race coordination for the ABC Brunette Downs Races, and is the treasurer for the Barkly Rodeo. She's also a familiar face at speedway meets across the region.

"I've learned to set boundaries," she said, smiling. "But the community respects that. People still want to talk medicine even at the footy!"

Despite her growing list of commitments, Dr Goddard's heart remains firmly in Tennant Creek.

"Even if it was time to leave, I don't see myself anywhere else," she said. "Tennant is forever, and I was born and bred here."

Dr Goddard is taking a short sabbatical in December as she prepares to welcome her first child, but said Tennant Creek would always be home.

"This is where I belong," she said. "If I can help reduce chronic disease rates by being here, then that's why I'm here."

Coming up roses

Beginning a new phase of her life – both personally and professionally – Samantha Armytage is thrilled to introduce TV dating phenomenon The Golden Bachelor to Australian audiences, telling Siobhan Duck: “I feel like this is my show”

SAMANTHA Armytage is ready to take another chance at love – on TV, at least. After three years on Channel 7’s flagship romance series Farmer Wants a Wife, Armytage has jumped ship to rival network Nine, where she will now host The Golden Bachelor Australia.

A spin-off to The Bachelor, the new format features older romance hopefuls. It has already proven wildly popular in America, where it boasts celebrity fans such as Martha Stewart, Kendall and Kris Jenner and Bella Hadid.

“As someone who’s turning 50 next year, this is an age group that has been neglected for too long by Australian television,” Armytage says.

“They’re a huge part of the population and they deserve to be celebrated. And I love that.”

A doctor, a dressage team manager, a psychotherapist, a primary school teacher (who happens to be Abbie Chatfield’s mum) and radio personality Bianca Dye are among the women competing for widower Barry “Bear” Myrden’s heart.

“These women are spectacular,” she says.

“They are so accomplished. They are so funny. They are so spectacularly bright and powerful in their own right.”

“They’re the original flower children, the rock’n’ rollers of the ‘60s who are now grown up.

They’re cashed up. They’ve raised their children. Some of them are enjoying being grandmothers. And they’re kind of feeling like it’s their time now and I’m really pleased to be part of making it their time.”

Featuring older contestants rather than the usual assortment of 20-somethings who historically populated The Bachelor mansion, makes for a very different and more authentic dating show, according to Armytage.

“What’s really powerful about this show is that this is not just a bunch of women on a reality dating show looking for Instagram fame and followers,” she smiles.

“This is a bunch of women who are genuinely looking for companionship and a life partner.

“They know what they won’t tolerate. They know what they’ve put up with in the past and won’t put up with again. They’re not looking for a father for their children. Your needs and your wants totally change as you get older, which I love.”

Right from the get-go, the vibe of The Golden Bachelor feels very different to its predecessor. Yes, it’s still a competition. But there is also a greater sense of solidarity between the women.

“That’s what I really love about being a woman and getting older,” Armytage smiles.

“Something really lovely happens, and you do transform from maybe your 20s and 30s and even 40s, when you were maybe a bit more competitive and pushy.

“You relax a little bit more into who you are.

“You don’t really have so much to prove anymore. So, I found that there was a really great camaraderie between the women and they were also wonderful with me. They were quite nurturing towards me.”

Playing cupid on TV hasn’t always come naturally to Armytage.

Three years on Farmer Wants a Wife has made her more at ease in the space.

“When I first started doing Farmer, I had no idea what I was doing. I had done 25 years in newsrooms and on Sunrise.

“I’m into the rhythm of hosting these shows

Change of scenery: Former Farmer Wants a Wife host Samantha Armytage swaps gumboots for glamour on The Golden Bachelor.

Good as gold: The Golden Bachelor’s glamorous contestants bring rich life experience to their hunt for love.

now. And also, I feel like this is my show. It’s never been on in Australia before, so I feel very comfortable in the hosting role, and it feels quite natural and it’s come up well.”

Armytage believes viewers will learn a lot from the women who feature on the show.

“Because you don’t know how your life is going to turn out,” she says.

“You don’t know if you’re going to get divorced, or if you’re going to be widowed. You don’t know if you have to start again at 50 or 60. So it’s easy when you’re younger to just sit back and be judgemental thinking ‘That won’t happen to me’, but as you get older, you realise that things happen and they’re out of your control, and you don’t know what the future holds.”

Armytage speaks from personal experience.

Newly single after splitting from her husband Richard Lavender in 2024, Armytage isn’t interested in dating herself. She admires the chutzpah of the contestants for having a crack at love with the eyes of the nation upon them.

“I don’t know if I would be brave enough to put myself out there,” Armytage chuckles at the idea of signing up for a reality dating show.

“And right now, my life is quite happy and calm so I’m not particularly interested in dating.”

If anything, hosting The Golden Bachelor has reaffirmed to Armytage that there’s no expiry date on romance and that love can wait until she’s ready to find it.

It’s just the pick-me-up Armytage needed after a difficult year.

On top of separating from equestrian businessman Lavender, Armytage also weathered the loss of her beloved dog, Banjo, from a suspected snakebite and underwent a painful hip replacement surgery.

“It was a huge recovery,” she says.

“I basically had to learn to walk again. So, it [was] a huge year, 2024 for me. But I’ve turned the corner, and 2025 is brilliant. I’m fully recovered, and I’m better than ever. I’m feeling so strong, I’m not in pain. I’m feeling really fit, and really I’m pleased with how I’m ageing.”

Now that she’s no longer in constant pain, Armytage has been on a fitness kick and never felt better.

“I’ve been on a real health kick,” she smiles.

“I’m doing yoga five days a week, I’ve been really sort of working on my fitness, because I had a few years there where I was in a lot of pain. I could barely walk. I feel really refreshed and renewed.”

Digital destruction: John McClane (Bruce Willis) leads the charge against a cyberterrorist in Live Free or Die Hard.

PICK OF THE WEEK

Saturday
LIVE FREE OR DIE HARD
Seven, 6.30pm, M (2007)

One of cinema's most bankable leading men when it comes to classic blockbusters, Bruce Willis is at his best as seemingly indestructible New York cop John McClane in the exhilarating fourth instalment of the explosive series (released in cinemas amid the dot-com era as the trendily titled Die Hard 4.0).

It's widely acknowledged that the original Die Hard was one of the greatest action movies of the '80s, and Underworld director Len Wiseman serves up a stunt-smothered, flame-grilled, whopper to rival that infamous Christmas Eve at Nakatomi Plaza and leave fans of the franchise hungry for more. This time, our wisecracking hero is out to save his beloved US of A from a civil-servant-turned-cyberterrorist (Timothy Olyphant). The disgruntled programmer plans on holding the entire government to ransom by targeting key infrastructure.

Justin Long (Going The Distance, Dodgeball) is solid as McClane's nerdy hacker sidekick Matt and indie darling Mary Elizabeth Winstead (Fargo) plays McClane's estranged daughter Lucy, while Hong Kong hottie Maggie Q high-kicks her way through the non-stop thrills and spills as the villain's top henchwoman, Mai Linh. Keep an eye out for indie director Kevin Smith (Clerks) as a super-geek who helps out McClane when he's in a pinch. Yippee-ki-yay all the way. ★★★★★

TALLADEGA NIGHTS: THE BALLAD OF RICKY BOBBY
7mate, Thursday, 8pm, M (2006)

Doing for NASCAR what he did for broadcasters in Anchorman, Will Ferrell (pictured) gets more mileage out of playing another ego-driven buffoon in this goofy satire. Ferrell is gifted American petrol-head Ricky Bobby, who must contend with being knocked off his perch by an effeminate French Formula One star (Sacha Baron Cohen) while his long-time buddy and racing partner (John C. Reilly) steals both his wife, Carley (Leslie Bibb), and his spot as No.1 driver for the team. ★★★★★

THE BOURNE IDENTITY
Seven, Friday, 7pm, M (2002)

After decades of spy thrillers involving girls, gadgets and little else, the genre received a shot in the arm from director Doug Liman courtesy of this adaptation of the Robert Ludlum bestseller. The riveting yarn kicks off with the discovery of amnesiac Jason Bourne (Matt Damon, pictured) by a crew of Italian fishermen. Given no clues to his identity except the Swiss bank account number implanted in his hip, the talented Mr Bourne embarks on a mission to discover who he is. ★★★★★

THE VOYEURS
SBS World Movies, Saturday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2021)

Since a breakout role on teen drama Euphoria, Sydney Sweeney has taken a stab at most genres, but thrillers are her bread and butter. In this erotically charged entry, the starlet and Justice Smith (both pictured) portray a couple with a front-row seat to the lives of their neighbours thanks to a wall of enormous apartment windows. Interest quickly becomes obsession and boundaries are crossed as the watchers become the watched. It's Hitchcock made for the smartphone generation. ★★★★★

JURASSIC WORLD
7mate, Sunday, 7pm, M (2015)

A couple of decades after Jurassic Park scared the bejesus out of audiences, this new instalment produced by original director Steven Spielberg takes the franchise to a new level. Jurassic World is a fully functioning dinosaur theme park that attracts thousands of visitors a day. But when a genetically modified hybrid dinosaur experiment creates Indominus Rex, well, things don't go so well. Bryce Dallas Howard is park manager Claire, while Chris Pratt (pictured) stars as trainer Owen. ★★★★★

LIVING
SBS World Movies, Sunday, 6.35pm, PG (2022)

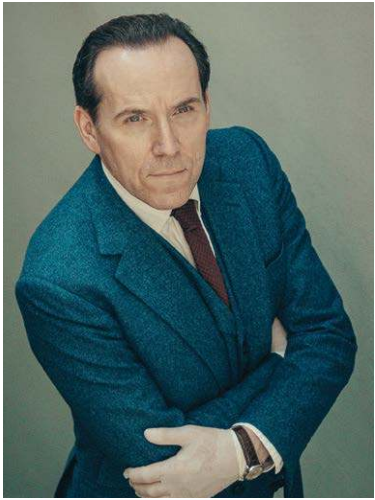

Adapted from Akira Kurosawa's 1952 tragedy Ikiru, this contemplative British take on the journey of a terminally ill civil servant bursts with feeling. Upon learning he has only weeks to live, senior bureaucrat Rodney Williams (Bill Nighy) attempts to figure out the meaning of life. Solid supporting turns from Aimee Lou Wood (pictured, The White Lotus) and Tom Burke (Strike) add welcome contrast, but a quiet and expressive Nighy really is the star of this show. Keep the tissues handy. ★★★★★

UNINDIAN
SBS World Movies, Monday, 7.30pm, M (2015)

A cheesy culture-clash romantic comedy starring Aussie cricket legend Brett Lee, this fun flick embodies the joy of embracing the unexpected. Lee plays language teacher Will, who is bowled over by beautiful single mum Meera (Tannishtha Chatterjee, pictured with Lee), but her parents (Akash Khurana and Supriya Patrick) are keen for her to find "a nice Indian match" instead. Complete with a Bollywood dream sequence, this upbeat, colourful celebration is a delightful diversion. ★★★★★

The Guide

PROFESSOR T
ABC TV, Friday, 8.30pm

The title of this week's episode, "DNA of a Murderer", gives an ominous clue to the latest challenge facing brilliant but quirky criminologist Professor Jasper Tempest (Austin's Ben Miller, pictured). When an artisan baker is found in his car with his throat slit in the middle of nowhere, it appears to be an open-and-shut case. Turns out the victim was a witness in a murder trial eight years earlier and provided key testimony that put a suspect behind bars. The inmate's son is found with a bloodied knife in his shed and no alibi, but Professor T isn't convinced of his guilt, or even that of his jailed father. Leaning on forensic help, Professor T seeks to unmask the real killer.

QUEEN VICTORIA: SECRET MARRIAGE, SECRET CHILD?
SBS, Saturday, 8.25pm

Considered one of the British royal family's greatest love stories, the romance between Queen Victoria and her German-born husband (and first cousin) Albert is legendary. The couple had nine children in their 21-year marriage, before his premature death in 1861 left the 42-year-old widow overwhelmed with grief. Victoria withdrew from public duties for a decade and wore black mourning clothes for the rest of her life. But what if that's not the entire story? In this compelling documentary, criminal barrister Rob Rinder and historian Dr Fern Riddell (both pictured, below) explore the rumoured relationship between Victoria and her devoted Highland servant, John Brown.

THE BLOCK
Imparja, Sunday, 6.30pm

As The Block marks its 1000th episode tonight, a remarkable achievement for all involved, another potential milestone is on the horizon. So far, every team who's completed the ultimate renovation challenge has also won at least one weekly room judging. But as 2025's final reveal – the front garden – looms, Sonny and Alicia (both pictured) are still without a win. While their fellow teams wrestled with what's left of their budget, creativity and energy, the Queensland parents have thrown everything at their landscaping. Can a luxury caravan and life-size kangaroo sculpture impress the judges and net the couple two MGs and $50,000 off their reserve? Or will House Four miss the mark and make Block history?

PICK OF THE WEEK

END GAME WITH TONY ARMSTRONG
ABC TV, Tuesday, 8.30pm

Former AFL player Tony Armstrong (pictured) has had enough. Fed up with PR-friendly excuses and failed marketing campaigns, the Logie-winning journalist is on a mission to effectively tackle racism in Australian sport and spark meaningful change for the next generation of players and fans. As Armstrong shares in Tuesday's premiere, it's not an easy problem to solve – and he's personally been the target of online abuse before. Armstrong checks in with his hero Adam Goodes to take the temperature of Australian sport today, before jetting off to the UK, where he finds out how the issue is being addressed in the Premier League. It's a vital conversation to have, and Armstrong is the right man for the job.

TROUBLED WATERS

NCIS: SYDNEY
Streaming, Paramount+ Paramount+

Fresh from an explosive Top End adventure that ended in bloodshed and betrayal, the agents of this exhilarating Aussie NCIS spin-off are back in the picturesque Harbour City to keep naval crimes in check – but are they all ready for action?

Fearless NCIS Special Agent Michelle Mackey (Olivia Swann) never shies from a fight, but her deadly clash with her old friend and lover/international arms dealer Etienne (John Fabry) in the season two finale has understandably opened some old wounds for the former Marine captain. Mackey’s been cleared to return to work, but it seems we haven’t heard the last of what happened in Darwin.

The past is also calling for Blue (Mavournee Hazel), who was hunted down by a mysterious woman (Doris Younane) with a sinister ulterior motive. The forensic scientist is nowhere to be seen in the premiere, having resigned from the team and left pathologist Doc Roy (William McInnes) without his right-hand renegade.

It falls to AFP officer JD (Todd Lasance) to hold the team together – while dealing with the breakdown of his marriage – as they navigate thrilling cases involving an outback “alien” abduction, a creepy cult leader, Filipino terrorists, a true-crime podcast, a journey to Antarctica and an international conspiracy that leads back to one of their own.

New seasons of franchise “mothership” NCIS and prequel NCIS: Origins also premiere this week, but this high-octane Aussie edition is set to blow any competition out of the water. – Lauren Mitchell

Tough times ahead: Olivia Swann and Todd Lasance are back in action on NCIS: Sydney.

THE DIPLOMAT
Streaming, Netflix NETFLIX

The stakes have never been higher for diplomat Kate Wyler (Keri Russell, pictured) as this political drama returns for season three. Wyler just accused US Vice President Grace Penn (Allison Janney) of orchestrating a terrorist conspiracy and confessed she’s after her role. Cut to President Rayburn (Michael McKean) dying, and Penn taking the top job.

THE CELEBRITY TRAITORS UK
Streaming, 10 10

Comedian Alan Carr, singer-songwriter Paloma Faith, Olympian Tom Daley and Sir Stephen Fry are among the 20 stars lining up to play the ultimate game of deceit and betrayal in this celebrity version of the hit reality competition. Hosted by Claudia Winkleman (pictured), the addictive series follows as they scheme and strategise to find the traitors in their ranks.

ONE MORE SHOT
Streaming, Stan Stan.

Taking its cue from Groundhog Day, this Aussie time-loop comedy is a wild ride. Set on New Year’s Eve 1999, it follows Minnie (Emily Browning, pictured) as she discovers a bottle of time-travelling tequila. Each sip of the potent drink takes her back to the start of the night, giving Minnie seemingly endless chances to refine her evening and make her ex (Sean Keenan) fall back in love with her before the clock strikes midnight.

DEVIL IN DISGUISE: JOHN WAYNE GACY
Streaming, Binge BINGE

True-crime fans are spoilt for choice when it comes to shows that dramatise the disturbing exploits of real-life serial killers. This particularly creepy offering profiles John Wayne Gacy (Severance standout Michael Chernus, pictured), who kidnapped, murdered and buried at least 33 young men beneath his Illinois home in the 1970s. Gabriel Luna (The Last of Us) plays the detective determined to unravel the gruesome mystery.

MR. SCORSESE
Streaming from Friday, Apple TV+ Apple TV+

From Raging Bull to The Wolf of Wall Street, Martin Scorsese (pictured) has left an indelible mark on cinema. In this five-part docuseries, director Rebecca Miller turns the camera on the man himself. Interviews with the 82-year-old’s friends, family and creative collaborators such as Robert De Niro and Leonardo DiCaprio paint a vivid and candid profile of the artist.

Journey to penguin paradise

THE weather is getting warmer by the day and thoughts are turning to getting away from it all to somewhere cooler, somewhere different and new.

There isn't anywhere that suits that description better than Antarctica – the land at the bottom of the world, the land of ice and penguins.

And let's face it whether it is playing a starring role in a nature documentary or a blockbuster animation, few are impervious to the charms of a waddling penguin.

The opportunity to encounter this loveable flightless bird in their natural habitat is one that draws many to Antarctica and sightings of colonies never fail to awe and entertain.

From Adelie penguins, who are 70 cm tall, to Gentoo penguins, who are the world's fastest diving birds, there are so many fascinating penguin species to possibly encounter on a Viking Antarctica expedition voyage.

Viking offer a chance to "discover the "Last Continent".

This ultimate adventure takes travellers to the Antarctic Peninsula, where they can witness towering glaciers, snow-covered landscapes, immense icebergs and epic wildlife.

It's a chance to explore it in luxury – to follow in the footsteps of explorers such as Amundsen, Shackleton and Scott, to be one of the few to discover the world's last truly wild frontier.

To go on a cruise where each day brings new surprises and the opportunity to change plans to maximize wildlife sightings and adapt to ever-changing weather.

The Antarctic Explorer is AU$19,495 from Australia and take travellers on a 13 day cruise taking in Argentina and Antarctica and travelling to the bottom of the earth.

The adventure begins (and ends) in Buenos Aires, Argentina with visitors checking in to a hotel in Argentina's cosmopolitan capital – a place which is an eclectic combination of Latin and European influences – for the night. The tree-lined streets and postcolonial architecture draw on the city's Spanish, French and Italian heritage, while the many cafes and bodegas and vibrant nightlife are decidedly Argentine. Its barrios, or neighborhoods, exude an intimate atmosphere that belies the city's size.

After breakfast the next morning it's time to check out of the hotel and board a charter flight to catch up with your home for the next 13 days. Travellers join the cruise in Ushuaia – the southernmost city in the world. Its splendid setting, tucked between the Beagle Channel and the southernmost slopes of the Andes, lends it an outpost atmosphere, as do the Antarctic explorers readying for the expeditions that depart from here.

Happy feet and plenty of ice.

Ushuaia is the capital of and gateway to the celebrated Tierra del Fuego, the "Land of Fire," named by Spaniards upon seeing the constant flames burned by the indigenous Yámana to keep warm.

This largely unspoiled region comprises the large island of Tierra del Fuego and countless Chilean and Argentine islands.

First stop is the Drake Passage – named for 16th-century English privateer Sir Francis Drake, the frigid waters of the Passage stretch for some 600 miles between Cape Horn and Livingston Island in the South

Shetland archipelago. There is a chance to attend an informative lecture or watch a film on Viking's 8k laser-projected panoramic screen in The Aula, one of the world's most advanced venues for learning at sea before the first-hand adventure begins – the chance to explore Antarctica for the next seven days.

At once ethereal and majestic, Antarctica has inspired explorers and adventurers for centuries. In this icy wilderness, marvel at icebergs glimmering in serene bays and mountains cloaked in white rising from the mainland basalt cliffs. These stunning landscapes evoke both utter tranquility as Weddell seals lounge on ice floes, and breathtaking drama as glaciers thunderously calve into the sea. In these cold and nutrient-rich waters, humpback, fin and minke whales have been known to greet expedition ships that venture into their habitat.

With memories made it's time to return back through Drake Passage, Cape Horn and back to Argentina and everyday life.

A celebration of business

SMALL business owners in Alice Springs and across the region came together for the Business Support Showcase on October 8.

The event featured opportunities to help business thrive with a series of free workshops covering key topics designed to strengthen business knowledge and connect with valuable networks and support services.

Following the showcase, award winning businesswoman, Carolyn Creswell, shared how she turned her tiny muesli business in to a global brand, Carman's Kitchen, and the lessons behind her success.

Where creativity brings joy

By Gladys Barreta

A brilliant few days of collaboration and creativity unfolded this week as national artist Sarah Rowan joined young people in Alice Springs for a hands-on art session celebrating Mental Health Week.

Ms Rowan, an award-winning speed painter and keynote speaker visited the Northern Territory to inspire creativity and conversation around mental wellbeing.

In an event designed to help kids explore their artistic side, the Mental Illness Fellowship of Australia (NT) (MIFANT) hosted a Collective Canvas session on Tuesday 7 October.

Ms Rowan also later in the week continued her tour in the Red Centre and visited Sadaadeen Primary School for an interactive session showcasing her speed painting skills and giving a talk on importance of mental health.

A small group of about 10 students each painted on a shared canvas for the Collective Canvas session, adding their own colours, patterns and magic to create a vibrant perenti (goanna) artwork.

Ms Rowan, who was mesmerised by the children’s playfulness and use of colour, said it was a special event that allowed her to spend quality one-on-one time with participants and share in the joy of creating together.

“It’s very nice, as an artist who’s used to performing in front of hundreds of people at corporate events to have one-on-one time in an unfamiliar part of the world, to give quality time and not rush anything,” Ms Rowan said.

During a breakout session, students were invited to paint whatever they liked on blank canvases. One painted the world, another painted the ocean - a special touch for being in the heart of Australia.

The children requested to paint along to K-pop, which quickly became the soundtrack of the session, adding to the energy and excitement in the room.

“They were all smiling and having fun, squeezing the paint straight onto the canvas,” Ms Rowan said with a laugh.

After the workshop, the group kicked off their shoes and enjoyed a game of barefoot basketball, joined by Ms Rowan.

“This is the second time I’ve been to Alice, and to see MIFANT grow and to see the office and the impact it has on the community is amazing,” she said.

“Moments of creativity, even those that might seem simple or traditional, are scientifically proven to reduce cortisol levels. Creativity helps reduce anxiety, gives a sense of accomplishment, and helps people problem-solve because it creates a mindful moment.

“Even just 45 minutes of creative activity can have a measurable impact on physical and mental health.”

A tribute to top botanist

By Phil Williams

MACONOCHIE Road in Desert Springs was gazetted on September 17, 1987 and is dedicated to the town's longest serving botanist.

Born in Adelaide, on June 13 1941, John Maconochie was employed as a botanist in Alice Springs continuously from 1967 through until 1984.

The Botany Department was in the Government Offices in Hartley Street, which were later renamed the Jock Nelson Building.

The herbarium was later moved to the Arid Lands Research Institute and then to the Desert Park.

Maconochie who replaced George Chippendale, represented NT Herbaria on the Council of Heads of Australian Herbaria for many years and was the Australian Botanical Liaison Officer at Kew, England during 1976 and 1977.

Although his primary training had been in plant physiology and ecology, he maintained a broad interest in plant classification when he joined the herbarium, working on the taxonomy of acacia (Mimosaceae), peas (Fabaceae), cycads (cycadaceae and Zamiaceae) and a number of other NT plant species.

Maconochie died in a road accident in Somalia in 1977 while on a Food and Agriculture Organisation assignment and is also commemorated in the naming of a cycad, Cycas maconochiei in his honour.

TREE TRIMMING: Power and Water Corp has begun its tree trimming program across Alice Springs (Power and Water Corp)

Annual clip

By Phil Williams

POWER and Water Corporation has commenced its annual tree trimming operation in Alice Springs.

Beginning on October 13, the essential maintenance program is conducted to address the safety concerns and potential power outages posed by trees growing near power lines.

The program is a proactive initiative and is an essential part of PWC's ongoing efforts to maintain a reliable and safe power network in Alice Springs.

Trees in close proximity to power lines can present a significant risk to the community, as they have the potential to cause power outages and pose a danger to the public as well as posing a potential fire hazard.

To mitigate these risks, PWC is conducting the comprehensive tree trimming program over the coming weeks.

The corporation emphasizes the importance of community safety and offers an assurance to residents that they do not anticipate any power interruptions during the course of the works.

The advice from PWC is to treat all power lines as live and dangerous, and to refrain from attempting to trim trees near power lines privately.

Instead, they encourage residents to contact the Power and Water Corporation at 1800 245 092 for assistance.

The corporation asks that the the community stays informed and remains patient and to cooperate with the necessary works to ensure the continued safety and well-being of all residents.

Healthy Pasta Primavera

Prep time: 30 minutes
Serves: 4

Ingredients:

- 400g penne pasta or tagliatelle
- 4 eggs
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 red onion, diced
- 2 bunches asparagus, trimmed, cut into 5cm pieces
- 150g snow peas, trimmed
- 1/2 cup frozen peas, thawed
- 1/2 cup light sour cream
- 1 cup finely grated pecorino
- 1/4 cup dill sprigs, finely chopped

Method:

1. Cook pasta in a large saucepan of boiling water as per packet instructions until tender. Drain and return to pan. Cover to keep warm.
2. Meanwhile, bring a medium saucepan of water to the boil. Reduce heat to low, and when bubbles subside, use a spoon to stir the water until a whirlpool forms. Break an egg into a small bowl and gently slide into whirlpool. Cook for 3 minutes or until white is cooked. Use a slotted spoon to transfer egg to a plate.
- Repeat with remaining eggs.
3. Heat oil in a frying pan over a medium heat. Add onion and cook for 4 minutes or until softened. Add asparagus, sugar snaps and peas. Toss until combined. Add 2 tablespoons of water, cover and cook for 2 minutes. Add mixture to pasta with sour cream, three-quarters of the pecorino and three-quarters of the dill. Toss until well combined.
4. Spoon pasta onto serving plates. Top each with a poached egg, remaining pecorino and dill.

Lemon Curd Bombe Alaska

Prep time: 30 mins
Cook time: 15 minutes
Serves: 8
Difficulty: Easy

Ingredients:

Lemon Curd

- 4 egg yolks (reserve egg whites for meringue)
- 1/2 cup (110g) caster sugar
- 2 tsp finely grated lemon zest
- 1/2 cup (125ml) lemon juice

(approx. 2 lemons)

- 125g chilled butter, diced

Bombe Alaska

- 2 litres vanilla ice cream
- 125g punnet raspberries, extra raspberries to serve
- 1 unfilled pre-made vanilla sponge cake*
- 1 cup caster sugar
- 4 Reserved egg whites from Curd

Method:

Lemon Curd

1. Combine egg yolks, sugar, lemon zest and juice in a large heatproof microwave-safe bowl. Whisk until combined.
2. Add the diced butter and place onto the microwave turntable. Follow manufacturer's instructions to reduce microwave power to 50%. Cook uncovered for 7-10 minutes, stirring every minute until mixture is thick enough to coat the back of a wooden spoon. (See tips)
3. Cover the curd surface with plastic wrap to prevent it from forming a skin. Let cool to room temperature, then refrigerate overnight until cold.

Bombe Alaska

1. Line an 8-cup capacity pudding tin with two layers of offset plastic wrap making sure it hangs well over the edges.
2. Scoop ice cream into a large bowl. Allow to soften for 5 minutes. Use a hand-held electric mixer to beat ice cream until smooth but not melted. Place a large spoonful of the ice cream into the base of tin. Place a heaped spoonful of curd on top and another spoonful of ice cream and spread into the edges with spoon.
3. Pour remaining lemon curd on top of remaining ice cream in the bowl. Scoop spoonfuls of curd and ice cream into tin until half full, using the back of a spoon to smooth surface as you go. Sprinkle with half of the raspberries. Top with remaining ice cream and curd the same way and smooth surface. Sprinkle with remaining raspberries.
4. Place 1 single unfilled sponge on top and press down onto ice cream. Cover with plastic wrap or lid and place in the freezer overnight.
5. Allow reserved egg whites to come to room temperature. Combine egg whites and sugar in a large heatproof bowl. Rest over a large saucepan of gently simmering water. Use a hand-held mixer to beat for 5 minutes or until soft white peaks form. Remove bowl from the heat and continue to beat for a further 5 minutes or until thick peaks form. Allow to cool to room temperature.

6. Pull ice cream out of pudding tin and invert onto serving plate. Remove plastic wrap. Use a metal spatula to swirl cooled meringue all over. Use a kitchen blow torch to scorch the meringue. Freeze overnight, uncovered. Cut into wedges to serve.

Tips:

- Refrigerate reserved egg whites overnight but allow them to come to room temperature before making meringue.
- Use unfilled sponges are available in supermarkets. The remaining sponge can be frozen for another use or consumed.
- Make your own sponge from scratch using our classic recipe: <https://www.australianeggs.org.au/recipes-and-cooking/traditional-sponge-cake-with-jam-and-cream>.
- Covering with meringue, blow torching then freezing will free up time on Christmas Day and ice cream will be a lot firmer than if covered with meringue before serving. Meringue doesn't go hard in freezer so it is fine to cut through.

Lemon Curd

- When making the curd, begin checking the thickness of the curd at 6 minutes cooking time.
- Dip a spoon into the curd then run your finger over the back of it. If it leaves a clean line in the curd, it's cooked enough and ready to cool.
- Microwaves vary in type, wattage and size, so cooking times may vary. Use cooking times as a guide.
- Curd will thicken as it cools.
- Spoon into a container, cover and refrigerate for up to 2 weeks.

Your week ahead

With the sun joining Mercury and Mars in the sign of the Scorpion, it's time to lose Libra's rose-tinted specs and take an eyes wide open look at the bigger picture...

ARIES

(Mar 21 - Apr 20)

A triplicity of planets amping up the heat in your emotionally charged intimacy zone could intensify passions around shared resources this week. Fortunately Neptune, retrograde in Aries since July, takes a back step for further reflection, allowing you to put the graceful lessons of recent months into practice.

Best day:
Saturday 25 October

TAURUS

(Apr 21 - May 20)

This week's solar transit into your opposite and complementary sign on the zodiac wheel puts partnerships firmly on the agenda. Three planets in this determined sector don't muck about, so it's your job to direct this energy constructively. Don't be slow to try a new approach if the old one's not cutting it.

Best day:
Tuesday 21 October

GEMINI

(May 21 - Jun 21)

Three planets in your sector of daily organisation sharpen your focus and boost stamina, so use this cycle to establish supportive habits and strategies that will carry you with confidence through the rest of the year. Can you streamline your workflow and fine-tune routines without cutting corners?

Best day:
Monday 20 October

CANCER

(Jun 22 - Jul 22)

As Neptune's retrograde retreat makes a total of six planets in water signs, emotions are likely to run high this week. Best coping mechanism? Channelling all the generosity Jupiter is currently lavishing on your sign to nourish and uplift others with your thoughtful care and support.

Best day:
Thursday 23 October

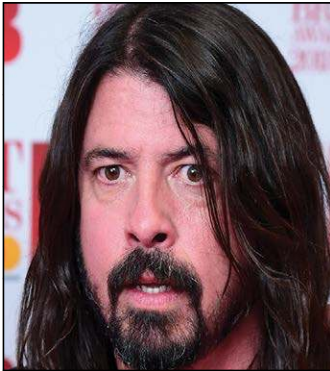

LEO

(Jul 23 - Aug 23)

The trio of passionate planets in your domestic sector activating all things home-related could turn chez Leo into the buzzing vortex of your social circle this week. It can also stir up agitating energy, so best downplay drama and diva behaviour, yours or anyone else's.

Best day:
Saturday 25 October

VIRGO

(Aug 24 - Sep 22)

This week's solar energy joining passionate Mars and expressive Mercury in your communication corner might ignite a strong urge to tell it like it is but beware of burning bridges. As a Virgo you already know how to balance inspiration with practicality - now temper directness with empathy.

Best day:
Monday 20 October

LIBRA

(Sep 23 - Oct 23)

This week's stubborn and unbudging energetics are likely to require all your reserves of flexibility and elasticity. But Librans are the sign who best know how to make interpersonal give-and-take into a dance rather than a tug-of-war, because if not you, then who?

Best day:
Tuesday 21 October

SCORPIO

(Oct 24 - Nov 22)

This year's sun powering into Scorpio to join Mars and Mercury for your birthday transit triples your normal intensity, purpose and flair. And Saturn in your astrological house of fun definitely calls for a sense of humour, so practice joyful lightening up at least once a day. Seriously...

Best day:
Wednesday 22 October

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov 23 - Dec 21)

A sun/Mercury/Mars alignment in your sector of winding up cycles is your call for reflection. Don't ignore this week's urges to rest and nest, its pull towards private, replenishing solo time. In this important pause before your birthday season, intuitive downloads are likely to arrive during quiet moments.

Best day:
Friday 24 October

CAPRICORN

(Dec 22 - Jan 20)

Capricorns tend to feel most effective flying solo, but three planets in your teamwork sector suggest that collaboration is where this week's magic happens. If group dynamics feel challenging, check your mindset: is it time for a reframe? Might the results of partnering be more rewarding than going it alone?

Best day:
Friday 24 October

AQUARIUS

(Jan 21 - Feb 18)

The planetary trinity in your astro-zone of future planning invites you to check whether any outdated beliefs might be keeping you from casting a wider net. Stay curious and open this week: the more room you make for possibility, the more what you're looking for is likely to find you.

Best day:
Sunday 19 October

PISCES

(Feb 19 - Mar 20)

With Neptune executing its final backspin into Pisces to join Saturn already there in retrograde resting mode, hold off on making hasty decisions. If you're feeling uncertain about someone or something, this cosmic climate offers the perfect chance to step back, reflect and reassess before any important moves.

Best day:
Thursday 23 October

Rovers on Rampage

By Phil Williams

DESPITE some one sided results throughout U17 Netball season, every player who took to the court gave their all, leaving nothing behind.

Rovers Rampage embodied their name, emerging victorious in the thrilling grand final.

This pictorial review looks back and pays tribute to the efforts and determination of all the teams as they sought premiership glory throughout the year.

A day of bump and grind

By Phil Williams

AFTER the previous scheduled points meeting was rained out, the EPG Alice Springs Karting Club held a “catch up” round On Sunday 5 October.

In a touch of irony, it became the hottest day meeting of the year which posed an added challenge, particularly for the younger drivers not used to the warm conditions, and also the Prep team in maintaining the track condition, necessitating a track grade midway through the meeting.

As he had done for most of the season, Jamie Lightfoot continued his dominance in the Junior Lights whilst Kelsey Howell took control of the Junior Heavies winning the day in clinical fashion.

KT lights saw Adam Brown stay out of the carnage in a combined class with KT Mediums which saw Angus Laherty winning the day.

With the competitive battles between the two classes, there was some inevitable racing incidents which ended in several spectacular rollovers.

Young gun, Zac Schulz walked away unscathed from a heavy crash which resulted in some serious damage to his kart.

Angus Laherty was doing double duties in 125 Lights and put it all on the line to again come away with the honours.

In the 125 Medium class, dramas unfolded right across the field.

Nearly every driver had an issue throughout the day with a number of crashes and spills.

Aaron Hill eventually prevailed, taking the top step on the podium.

Devin Cowhan claimed the points in 125 Heavies but was pushed hard by Top End visitor, Terry Hill who took a hard fought second place with Jason Wegert third.

The Statesman class saw local legend Mike Thompson use years of race craft experience to keep Mark Brownless at bay with Brian Wegert completing the podium after a mechanical issue in the first heat ruined his chances of standing on the top spot.

The junior categories also saw impressive participation, with strong numbers in both the midgets and an even larger field in the rookie class.

This promising turnout bodes well for the club's future growth and development.

Up for a bit of pickleball?

By Phil Williams

WITH now less than a year to the next Alice Springs Masters Games (ASMG) and to celebrate the 40th anniversary, the first 400 participants to register can take advantage of an exclusive offer of a $40 Games fee, saving $59 on the standard registration.

Member for Braitling, Joshua Burgoyne who competed in, and won, the short course triathlon in 2024, said the Alice Springs Masters Games are a proud Territory tradition.

“It’s fantastic to see the countdown begin for the 40-year celebration and is exciting that people can take advantage of an exclusive $40 registration offer, so I encourage everyone to sign up early, get involved, and be part of the Games,” he said.

This milestone year promises a dynamic program, with the debut of Pickleball, one of the fastest-growing sports in Australia.

More than 25 sports will be on offer, including Athletics, Cycling, Mountain Biking, Aussie 9’s, and Netball.

For the first time, the Cycling and Mountain Biking events will host the Cycling NT Territory Championships as part of the ASMG program, drawing top talent from across the Northern Territory.

The 2026 ASMG will also see the return of swimming events to the program after they were left off the 2024 program due to organisational constraints.

Mr Burgoyne said organisers have worked closely with the sport to have the necessary support staff in place.

“Speaking with people last year, we know how disappointed they were that they couldn’t compete in swimming.

“Swimming is one of those amazing events that whether you’re in your early 30’s to your

TIPS: NT Treasurer Bill Yan receives some tips on the finer details of Pickleball from Norelle Clark. (Phil Williams: 509810) late 90’s, people can take part in.

“We’re wanting to ensure that we continue to raise the profile of this event,” he said.

The burgeoning sport of Pickleball has also been added to the Games program as it continues to be the juggernaut of the sporting world.

Alice Springs Pickleball founder, Norelle Clarke said it was exciting to be part of next year’s games.

“Pickleball is relatively new in Australia. We’re looking forward to having people coming and playing at a competitive level as well as trying to offer a more social competition for those people that might be coming for other sports and to give them an opportunity to try out a new game.”

Mr Burgoyne added that it was what the ASMG is all about.

“It is so exciting to see just what the Masters Games not only brings to Alice Springs, but also the Friendly Games, as it has been known previously is also coming back, Minister Burgoyne said.

“We’re getting back to what the Masters Games is all about - bringing people from across the country back to Alice Springs to enjoy everything we have to offer in this magnificent setting”

“It’s so exciting to see the Masters Games coming back - the original Masters Games.”

Treasurer Bill Yan said the Games are synonymous with Central Australia and the visitors to the town bring an economic boost to Central Australia.

“Were hoping to see people from all over Australia coming back to Central Australia and really enjoying what we have on offer here, and improving the vibrancy and the economic benefit to the people of Alice Springs”

A new initiative will see the Wednesday of Games week, October 14, designated as a non competition day, encouraging participants and supporters to explore Alice Springs and the surrounds as well as creating a prime opportunity for local operators, cafes, and bars to engage visitors.

Registrations officially opened last week and early registration for both teams and individuals is highly encouraged to secure places in preferred sports.

Holey moley!

TANYA Kirker aced the 12th hole at Alice Springs Golf Club at the weekend to claim her third hole-in-one on the course.

"I hit the perfect shot, and finished the round with a pretty good score," Kirker said.

It's the third Hole-In-One for Kirker at the Alice Springs Course, having previously aced the 5th and this now her second on the Par 3 12th.

Kirker's hole-in-one is the fifth on the course for this competition year.

Amazing weather and generous tee positions were always going to encourage high scoring in the Saturday Stableford.

Recent rains have worked wonders for the recently refreshed greens and scores reflected a great day of golf.

The Men's competition saw almost half the field playing to their handicap or better.

Taking out the competition was Kerry Heaver with 42 points following an amazing 66 off the stick. Heaver's unblemished round included six birdies and 12 pars.

Other notable achievements on the day included Eagles to Tony Whitelum on the Par 5 14th hole and Jacod Akmens on the Par 5 4th.

In the Women's competition five of the eight players submitted cards better than their handicap, with Kirker coming out on top with a very impressive 42 points.

It's every golfer's dream to experience a Hole-In-One and Tanya Kirker did just that at the Alice Springs Golf Club.
