RETRO: CSC Students show of their Retro theme ahead the arts festival. (Phil Williams: 517227)

Arts festival takes a step back in time

CENTRALIAN Senior College will step back in time tonight, November 20 with its Retro-themed arts event.

The annual Twilight Arts Festival, now in its 10th year, will celebrate 'Getting your Retro on' as the school's front lawn comes alive with an evening of art, music, craft, food, and other fun activities.

A highlight of the evening will be an appearance of characters from Coraline, the school's drama production as well as decor jointly made with Braitling, Ross Park, Sadadeen and Gillen Primary and Centralian Middle schools.

Retro style activities will be celebrated through an art exhibition, signage and flower decor designed by CSC students along with live music fronted by student bands.

Yipirinya rally

By Jodie Powell and Gladys Barreta

ORGANISERS behind a campaign to secure ongoing Northern Territory and Federal government funding to ensure the future of Yipirinya School have launched a petition to gain support for their cause, which had gained hundreds of signatures within days.

Save Our School wants the community to get behind its campaign to lobby against NT Government-appointed Statutory Manager Stuart Reid's plan to axe around 15 to 20 employees from a staff of around 80.

The petition, launched late last week, calls for a range of actions, including the governments to commit to a long-term funding and support model that reflects the unique needs of Yipirinya students.

A tiny town close to what's arguably Australia's best-known landmark is home to the country's newest Scout Group.

With a population of just 853 people according to the 2021 Census, Yulara celebrated the official launch of Scouting at the weekend.

Australia's Chief Scout and the Northern Territory Chief Commissioner of Scouts visited Yulara on Saturday to launch the group.

Speaking at a ceremony in Alice Springs last Friday, where he invested two new Joeys, several new Scouts and also a leader, Chief Commander of Scouts in Australia Brendan Watson said it was an exciting time for Scouting, not only in Australia, but across the Northern Territory.

Driven by the members of the unique township, around a dozen young people became Australia's newest Scouts when they were invested into the first Scout group at the iconic location, paving the way for a potential boost national and international connections as families of Scout members visit the region.

The new group will be named the Yulara Scout Group.

"The community has organised this group themselves," Chief Commander Watson said.

"They've gone through Scouts (Australia) and said: 'This is what we want', so we're responding to community needs."

Save Our School wants the community to get behind its campaign to lobby against NT Government-appointed Statutory Manager Stuart Reid's plan to axe around 15 to 20 employees from a staff of around 80.

The Change.org petition, launched late last week, calls for all proposed staff cuts to be stopped, immediately; urgent emergency funding to stabilise the school after a year of trauma not caused by the community; the governments to commit to a long-term funding and support model that reflects the unique needs of Yipirinya students and recognises the intensive services the school provides; and to return full control to the Aboriginal Board, ensuring the future of the school is guided by the community that built it and knows its children best.

"Yipirinya is not just a normal school," the petition says.

"It is one of Australia's oldest and strongest Indigenous independent schools, founded by town camp families who fought for a culturally safe, community-controlled school when none existed.

"Today, it remains the only school in the country delivering a daily two-way, multilingual program in four Aboriginal languages

"Over the past year, Yipirinya has endured a deeply traumatic period under former NT Government-appointed leadership, including a conviction for assaulting students.

"Our staff, families and children have been working tirelessly to rebuild stability, safety, and trust.

"This has required enormous emotional labour and constant, wraparound care for students who already experience some of the most complex needs in the NT."

Last week's redundancy announcement followed the conviction in October of former principal Gavin Morris, who was found guilty of four of five counts of aggravated assault against students, after a judge-only trial. Mr Morris will be sentenced in December.

Minister for Education and Training Jo Hersey said she was unable to comment because Yipirinya is a non-government school, however Registrar of Non-Government Schools Tony Considine said that due to Yipirinya School's declining enrolments, funding from both the Australian and Northern Territory governments had been reduced, necessitating a review of school resources.

"Staff numbers are tied to the funding generated by enrolment numbers; therefore, staff numbers will reduce whenever enrolments decline," Mr Considine said.

"Statutory management commenced at Yipirinya School at the request of the Yipirinya School Council.

"This will ensure ongoing financial viability and appropriate governance so the school can continue to provide education services for Alice Springs children. This is a key focus of the current statutory management."

The Territory Government was unable to confirm to The Centralian Today whether it could guarantee continued funding for the school, because non-government school funding is calculated according to census enrolment numbers provided to the Australian and NT governments.

"The Department of Education and Training's vision is for all Northern Territory children to receive a high-quality education and have pathways to employment, regardless of their geographical location," Mr Considine said.

"The Australian Government provides most of the funding for non-government schools, while the NT Government provides the remainder. Non-government school funding is determined based on census enrolment data supplied to both governments.

"Continuity of education for students remains the priority. The department and statutory management continue to support quality teaching and learning opportunities and outcomes for Yipirinya students."

Meanwhile, more than 100 respected academics and professors across Australia and internationally have added their signatures to a letter of solidarity to show their support for Yipirinya, its curriculum and approach to learning and preserving Indigenous culture, warning that what happens at the school will echo across Indigenous education and employment nationwide.

Rally ahead of redundancy

By Jodie Powell

STAFF at Alice Springs' Yipirinya School fear for its future, with letters issued last week putting them on notice for one-on-one meetings to discuss redundancies.

The school has been under the eye of an NT Government-appointed statutory manager for the past four months and learned on November 5 that there was a financial shortfall of at least a "couple of million dollars," in its books and redundancies would be necessary for the school to attain financial stability.

At the time, they believed the redundancies would occur in a number of weeks, but staff were reportedly shocked to begin receiving letters last week.

Statutory Manager Stuart Reid - appointed by the government in June - has informed staff that around 15 to 20 employees from a staff of around 80 people would be made redundant in the coming days, but the school community fears the final number will be higher.

"We are writing on behalf of the staff of Yipirinya School in Mparntwe/Alice Springs, one of Australia's first and longest-standing Indigenous independent schools, to sound the alarm," a letter from staff said.

"These (redundancies) include many long-term Aboriginal staff who are the heart and foundation of Yipirinya's classrooms, language programs, and cultural life.

"If these cuts go ahead, Yipirinya School will not be able to function or operate.

"If governments do not act now, Yipirinya School, the beating heart of Self Determined Aboriginal education, will collapse under their watch."

They have urged the Territory and Federal governments to commit to funding for the unique school.

Founded in 1978 by the town camp Elders and families of Mparntwe/Alice Springs, staff say Yipirinya School stands as a powerful act of Aboriginal self-determination, for families to enroll their children in an Aboriginal school that provides a unique education.

Yipirinya remains the only school in Australia teaching four Aboriginal languages, Central Arrernte, Western Arrernte, Luritja, and Warlpiri, alongside English.

The school also provides daily meals, transport, health and wellbeing support, and supportive class sizes for children with complex needs.

The redundancy announcement follows the conviction in October of former principal Gavin Morris, who was found guilty of four of five counts of aggravated assault against students, after a judge-only trial.

In a separate statement, staff have said that this year, under new leadership, Yipirinya has been on a "massive improvement journey".

"Attendance and behaviour have improved, and families are re-engaging, but those gains are now under threat," the statement said.

"The statutory manager, appointed by NT Licensing, has been largely absent from the school and has failed to consult with staff, language teachers, or families.

"This is not the kind of leadership needed to help the school rebuild and support the community in maintaining this vital educational option.

Staff fear that with massive staff cuts, "anti-social behaviour across the community will rise, language and culture will be massively damaged, and the Government's Closing the Gap commitments will mean nothing as they stand idle while Aboriginal children lose their right to education.

"The school's past leadership, appointed by government, failed our community and mismanaged its finances.

"Now, Yipirinya's staff and families are being punished for mistakes we did not make.

"The Yipirinya Board was never given a say in those appointments.

"This is a moment of truth."

Yipirinya School staff are calling on the Northern Territory and Federal Governments to act immediately to:

*Pause all redundancies and statutory management decisions

*Provide emergency funding to protect jobs and stabilise the school

*Create a fair and sustainable funding model that reflects Yipirinya's unique, community-controlled role

*Restore Aboriginal community control and end statutory management now

More than 85 respected academics and professors across Australia and internationally have added their signatures to a letter of solidarity to show their support for Yipirinya, its curriculum and approach to learning and preserving Indigenous culture, warning that what happens at the school will echo across Indigenous education and employment nationwide.

Children paying the price

By Jodie Powell

SCHOOL nurses Elise Daly and Madeleine Fasnacht have condemned proposed redundancies to school nursing positions at Yipirinya School in Alice Springs, warning the decision will entrench health inequities and undermine the Federal Government's Closing the Gap goals.

They say the roles are not expendable and redundancies would cripple one of Australia's first and longest-standing Indigenous independent schools.

"These roles are ... vital, frontline health services that reach children who may otherwise slip through the cracks," Ms Daly and Ms Fasnacht said. "We are not just treating minor ailments — we are tackling the deep-rooted health disparities that exist in this region every single day. We believe that cuts ignore the complex realities of inter-generational trauma, poverty, and systemic barriers that affect health and education outcomes in Central Australia. Our work directly supports the Closing the Gap targets — improving life expectancy, strengthening families, and ensuring access to culturally safe, community-based care."

Their condemnation followed news that statutory manager Stuart Reid had emailed staff announcing his intention to cut a significant number of positions.

The school community fears the final number will be higher and has launched a Save Yipirinya School campaign to lobby the Northern Territory and Federal governments to preserve the school's funding so it can continue delivering unique programs.

In a letter to staff seen by the Centralian Today, Mr Reid said the cuts were necessary because the school's funding was based on the number of students enrolled.

"The funding cuts have come about because current student numbers ... are much lower than student numbers reported by the school in 2024," Mr Reid said, adding that 2024/2025 Census numbers showed there were 368 student enrolments in 2024, while in 2025 there were 186 student enrolments and 29 pre-school students.

Meanwhile, Lingiari Federal MP Marion Scrymgour added her voice to that of more than 100 respected academics and professors across Australia and internationally who have signed a letter of solidarity to show their support for Yipirinya.

"Yipirinya is a critical connector for children in town camps who might not otherwise engage in the formal education system," Ms Scrymgour said. "Yipirinya School, and its staff, play a very important role in making sure education is accessible, engaging and culturally safe.

"Watching the damage caused to the school by the former Principal (Gavin Morris, who was found guilty of four of five charges of aggravated assault against students in October following a judge-only trial and will be sentenced in December) has been deeply sad to many in our community.

"The Yipirinya School community, and its mission, is much bigger than one person.

"I have always advocated for the school — including under the tenure of the previous Principal in which I raised concerns about what was happening for the school.

"The Northern Territory Government, and the Statutory Manager they have appointed, needs to work to resolve the issues the school is facing. They need to do this without making critical staff redundant."

Ms Daly and Ms Fasnacht said they were uniquely positioned to build trust, prevent illness, and help families access the care they needed. "Why should children — already facing some of the worst health outcomes in the country — be forced to suffer because of financial mismanagement by leaders who were appointed by the government? "Our school community had no voice in those decisions, in fact the government was warned that those leaders were not suitable candidates, yet it is our children who will pay the price."

Future: 5-Storey Dreaming

LAST week's horrific machete attack at Alice Springs' biggest retail centre has done more than injure one man and frighten the hell out of everyone involved.

It has also turned up the heat on the town's public image problem.

Moreover, it comes only weeks after the Alice business community publicly revisited a redevelopment and expansion of the Yeperenye Shopping Centre, part of a vision of a safer, busier, and more welcoming town centre.

Now bared for all to see is the disturbing social fragility that lay at the heart of Alice's potentially welcoming Outback tourist mecca.

In a town that has seen its fair share of violence, this was different; and, like a dirty secret suddenly outed, has torn a hole in our future in a way no incident has before.

Important questions hang unanswered in that void: What to do now? How to safely grow as a town? Which way is forward?

Imagining the future

In late October, Yeperenye Centre management stood with the Mparntwe Foundation - backers of this newspaper - to promote a long-planned redevelopment of the retail centre.

The vision had launched a year prior, but an October Business at Sunset event on the rooftop carpark atop the existing Yeperenye building provided a chance for potential investors to "get on board".

Buying in to the plans would help buoy dreams of a renewed Yeperenye and a revitalised and prosperous CBD, all epitomised in a proposed five-storey car park at the corner of Stott Terrace and Hartley Street with rooftop restaurant (alcohol-free) and sunset views for diners clear to Mt Gillen.

The architect's colourful visions were appealing. A keynote briefing on the plan by Yeperenye Managing Director Owen Cole brimmed with hope.

The project would be a turning point for Alice's struggling town centre, a sign of our collective confidence in the heart of the desert.

Video footage of last week's machete attack in the food hall of Yeperenye Centre threatens to change all that, instead pointedly querying whether a shinier shopping centre can cure what ails us.

Alice Springs-based Police Commissioner Martin Dole told The Australian newspaper the Yeperenye incident was "appalling ... a violent and deliberate attack carried out in a public space, in front of families and children going about their day.

"This type of behaviour is completely unacceptable, our community deserves to feel safe in its shopping centres, on its streets and in every corner of Alice Springs."

An artist's impression of the planned rooftop upgrade at Yeperenye Shopping Centre. (SUPPLIED)

While certainly an extreme example, the machete attack isn't an isolated incident of local violence.

Rather it's part of an ongoing challenge in town planning and social cohesion that has pervaded Australia's Outback Capital for decades.

With almost every retailer in nearby Todd Mall tightly roller-shuttered against theft and unwanted - and at times violent - intruders, and Yeperenye itself facing repeated disruption, our outward-facing retail zone already looks more war zone than tourist destination.

Investor confidence in regional centres like Alice is often linked to perceptions of stability; what hope do we - Yeperenye included - have of making such 5-Storey Dreaming a reality?

Will developers need to redesign spaces with security and surveillance in mind?

Will lenders or insurers require stronger safety assurances?

Perhaps government backers may push for parallel investment in social programs and policing?

Part of Yeperenye's profits are already distributed to shareholders who reportedly use the funds to benefit Aboriginal people.

But is it enough?

Can Alice Springs 'build' its way to safety and social cohesion? Or must safety come first, before building begins?

One step forward, two back ...

There is a certain heartbreak in seeing violence overshadow people's visions for Alice Springs.

And a fatigue for those who have seen repeated cycles of optimism and setback.

Born and raised in Alice Springs, Yeperenye boss Owen Cole has steered the Centre for 12 years and remains adamant that plans for its renewal will go ahead despite the machete attack and other ongoing challenges.

"We will be carrying on that development as proposed," he tells The Pulse.

"Northern Territory Police and all those other agencies, the plethora of programs run by government; they all need to get their act together."

Cole reportedly hopes to begin upgrades to the centre as soon as April next year, pending building approval.

And policing has helped to keep the peace at Yeperenye this past 18 months, he says, while tougher bail conditions seem to be "keeping people in jail where they might have been released into the public".

Nonetheless, he calls for a still greater police presence at Yeperenye, more effective policing, and - given the alleged machete perpetrator was "straight out of juvenile detention" - urgent review of the youth justice system.

"We're sending them to juvenile detention and they're becoming more hardened criminals; they come out bigger, stronger, and lot of them (with) chips on their shoulders.

"We need to build their self-esteem; make them better people (who) feel worthy of society.

"You can't lock kids up for long periods of time without ... proper rehabilitation."

Then there's alcohol. And while the machete incident is not thought to have involved it, other incidents do.

"We've tried to talk with the Liquor Commission about controlling the CBD bars where people are staggering out intoxicated at 3(pm); the response ... was disappointing."

Cole flatly rejects further restricting opening hours, preferring existing laws around responsible service of alcohol be enforced.

"People work hard ... they like to have a drink (and) should be entitled to it.

"But go have a look at some of the bars; they need to police those bars better than they currently do ... you can't have people staggering out intoxicated (then) running amok in the community."

Many find their way into the daytime shopping crowds at Yeperenye, prompting Cole to call on bar owners to more stringently observe the Liquor Act.

"And (also) the issue of sly grog, or secondary supply as they call it ... people being intoxicated at eight o'clock in the morning.

"We need to look at the families and see if we can help (them) not get caught up in the traps they often do."

Fear has run wild in Alice Springs the past week. More than enough for all.

This week, young people still find themselves in the lock up, drunks still 'run amok'.

But we can't let this heinous act of violence derail a positive long-term vision.

Rather, it should remind us that getting this right means making the ground beneath our plans firmly secure, for everyone.

Getting Good Stuff Done

Dialysis dream come true

By Gladys Barreta

IT has been 25 years since a community-led movement began, and 21 years since the first dialysis treatments were delivered on Country.

Purple House is marking a major milestone this year, celebrating the groundbreaking art auction in 2000 that raised $1 million and the spark that ignited one of Central Australia's most inspiring health stories.

Anniversary celebrations began in early September with a week-long festival in Walungurru/Kintore, held in partnership with Pintupi Homelands Health Service, which is celebrating 40 years, and Red Dust, marking 20 years. Rotary volunteers ensured everyone left with limited-edition shirts featuring collaborative works by Kiwirrkurra men and Kintore women. From one dialysis chair tucked inside the Kintore clinic, Purple House has grown into a network of 20 permanent dialysis clinics across the NT, WA and SA, bringing hundreds of patients home to Country each year.

Purple House CEO Sarah Brown said dialysis on Country began as a dream.

"Lots of people said it would never work, that Pintupi people wouldn't be able to do dialysis on Country. We proved them wrong. This is a great story of Aboriginal community leadership," Ms Brown said.

Ms Brown said the first $1 million raised from the paintings was transformative.

"It meant the vision could become action. Families could be brought home, and we could prove that dialysis on Country is possible."

The organisation's well-loved name, 'Purple House', was chosen around a kitchen table in 2006, when the first patient to receive dialysis on Country, Amy Nampitjinpa, selected a purple paint swatch to brighten their Gillen house.

"She chose purple, and it's stuck ever since," Ms Brown said.

The 25th birthday celebrations were full of life, with bush bands, BBQs, haircuts, picnics, bush medicine picking, softball and AFL matches, dancing, and screenings of old photos and videos honouring the many people who helped build the Purple House story.

"There was a real sense of Pintupi pride," Ms Brown said.

The celebrations continue this month with a gathering at Papunya Tula alongside Purple House directors, staff and supporters involved in the original art auction.

The organisation will also host a public celebration in Alice Springs at the Purple House Social Enterprise Hub on Friday, November

Southern lights dazzle sky

By Phil Williams

STARGAZERS in Central Australia were treated to rare a sight after a solar flare on the sun's surface last week caused a massive amount of geomagnetic activity, creating one of the biggest displays of an Aurora Australis in recent times.

The aurora was visible across large areas of Australia, including as far north as Alice Springs from as early as 7.30pm.

The night skies lit up on Wednesday evening into Thursday and extended into the early hours of Friday morning as the severe geomagnetic storm disrupted the earth's magnetic field.

The Bureau of Meteorology's Space Weather Service (SWS) issued an 'aurora alert' on Wednesday afternoon, November 12, an advisory that is only issued when space weather activity that is favourable for viewing aurora is currently in progress.

"Severe geomagnetic storm in progress. Aurora may be observed during local nighttime hours in good observing conditions at regions as far equatorward as middle latitudes," the alert said.

The geomagnetic storm that caused last week's Aurora Australis was triggered by a coronal mass ejection (CME) from the sun earlier in the week.

Fortunately for Australian aurora hunters, a high pressure system kept the skies clear over large parts of the country on Wednesday night, with the best views of the spectacle from the southern states.

The magnitude of the CME was rated as the strongest on the scale of measurement at G5, which meant that near Alice Springs, faint traces of the light show could be seen with the naked eye.

SPECTACULAR: A Royal Flying Doctor Service PC12 on a flight to Finke leaves a light trail as it appears to fly into the Aurora at the height of the spectacular natural display rarely seen in Alice Springs. (Phil Williams)

Local snake catcher Rex Neindorf took a drive along Maryvale Rd near the airport hoping to catch a glimpse of the natural phenomenon and was in awe of the night sky.

"I've never seen one before," he said, witnessing an aurora for the first time.

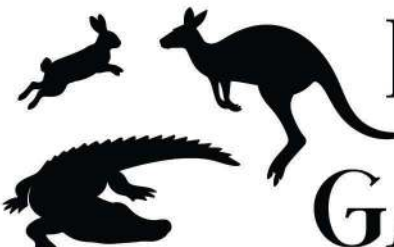

"I came out hoping just to get some photos, but to be able to see it for the first time, and with the naked eye, is just incredible.

"I wasn't expecting this," an awestruck Mr Neindorf said.

"This is amazing. You can even see the green. This is incredible. I'm speechless."

Unfortunately for those who missed the spectacle on Wednesday night, cloud cover that moved across Central Australia throughout Thursday ruined a second viewing of the natural light show around Alice Springs.

Plea for Gap path upgrade

By Phil Williams

A female cyclist injured following an accident involving a man riding an e-scooter has called for a narrow pathway to be upgraded and widened.

She also wants safety barriers put in place to prevent path users from the possibility of falling onto the road in the event of a similar accident to the one she was involved in. Late on Sunday morning, October 19, Marion van Dam was riding her bike when she and the man's e-scooter collided as they were travelling in opposite directions along the multipurpose pathway through Heavitree Gap.

Following the collision, Ms van Dam fell onto the concrete path and injured her knee when it became caught between her bike and the scooter. She suffered heavy bleeding from a large and deep cut on her left knee and was assisted by a passenger in a passing car while the e-scooter rider called for an ambulance.

Ms van Dam was transferred to hospital where she received further treatment, including surgery lasting more than an hour to repair a broken patella.

"All citizens of Alice Springs should have access to safe conditions on the road and specifically on the footpaths regardless (if they are) used by pedestrians or cyclists," Ms van Dam said.

The path through the Gap has no barriers separating traffic on the carriage way or pedestrians using the walkway. There is also a portion of the path with a significant drop to the roadway, which Ms van Dam says is dangerous.

"People I've spoken to have told me they are so scared to use that footpath, or to ride on that path," she said.

"There is no way that traffic can stop in time if any footpath users for whatever reason end up on the road," she said

DANGER: Marion van Dam at the location of her crash with an e-scooter showing how dangerously close traffic comes to path users. (516100)

Following her accident, Ms van Dam is facing an extended period of time and up to three months with her leg in a brace as she recovers.

Ms van Dam said she had been forced to take all her sick leave and also to use annual leave entitlements as she continued to convalesce.

"I'm very restricted with what I used to do, with my exercise, or riding my pushbike, swimming, running..." she said.

"I hope that my knee will recover in a good way and that I'm fit enough to fully return to work."

Logistics and Infrastructure Minister Bill Yan told the Centralian Today that there were a variety of issues with the thoroughfare through The Gap.

"The Department recently took steps to repair the surface of the path and make it safer," he said.

"There are a number of complex issues with that whole area due to the rail line and the proximity to the river.

"The Government continues to explore a variety of options for the infrastructure through Gap."

A Claus for celebration

By Phil Williams

DUST off your tinsel, prepare your jingle bells, and hold on for deer life.

The Alice Springs Christmas Show is back this weekend ready to sleigh the grinchiest grinch.

The annual start to Christmas in Alice Springs on Saturday, November 22 is ready to bring more festive spirits than your Nan’s trifle.

From 4 to 8pm, Blatherskite Park will come alive as a festive wonderland featuring everything from choirs to crafts, competitions to rides for what will be a sure-fire way to kick off the 2025 Christmas season.

Santa will be flying in from the North Pole, ready for free family Christmas photos or a selfie with your bestie, not to mention the beloved Giant Stocking Raffle which returns once again, this year supporting Palliative Care NT.

More than 40 stalls will be bursting with gift ideas, handmade goodies and local treats.

But wait, there’s myrrh. Kids can also enjoy free face painting with the Painting Pixies, along with free rides, water play, and Storytime thanks to NT Writers Centre, and the Alice Springs Obedience Dog Club will present a cheerful Santa Paws Show with all your favourite furry friends.

Entry is $5 for adults and free for children under 15.

There’s noel time like the present to join the community, soak up the festive atmosphere and enjoy a wonderful evening at Blatherskite Park.

Yule be sorry if you miss it - Christmas is officially here!

NICE: At last year’s Christmas Show, Alice, Lilly and Clare told Santa they had been nice, not naughty all year. (Phil Williams: 445636)

Million dollar boost for tourism in the Red Centre

By Gladys Barreta

BUSINESSES in the Red Centre will be supported through the launch of a $1 million Alice Springs Revival and Resilience Grant Program, aimed at helping revitalise the region’s economy.

Applications for the program are now open, with grants designed to assist small tourism operators who have faced downturns in visitation in recent years.

The initiative will invest $1 million into the Alice Springs and MacDonnell tourism region to support local businesses experiencing financial hardship.

Two additional grant programs are expected to launch soon, focusing on developing new visitor experiences and promoting the Red Centre to attract more domestic and international travellers.

Tourism businesses with fewer than 19 employees and an annual turnover of less than $5 million may be eligible to apply for an Alice Springs Revival and Resilience grant.

Minister for Indigenous Australians Marindirri McCarthy said the grants were about backing local businesses and communities.

“Tourism and First Nations tourism are an important part of the economy in Central Australia, with the Red Centre welcoming visitors from around Australia and overseas,” she said.

“This tourism support package is another way the Government is investing in Central Australia and its people.”

Lingiari MP Marion Scrymgour said a revitalised tourism industry would deliver more jobs and opportunities.

“Central Australia is a place of unmatched natural beauty that has the potential to be a world-class tourism destination,” she said.

“Our government is committed to supporting tourism operators across Alice Springs and the MacDonnell region to help boost their resilience.”

Grant guidelines and eligibility criteria are available at austrade.gov.au/en/how-we-can-help-you/grants/red-centre-visitor-economy-package

Retailer goes one better

By Phil Williams

NORTHERN Territory households are set to benefit from the biggest electricity discount offered in the Territory, as Rimfire Energy launches a new residential offer designed to drive competition and help families save amid the cost-of-living crunch.

Rimfire Energy is giving customers 10 per cent off their electricity bills for the first six months, followed by 2.5 per cent off every bill after that, plus a 16.5c solar feed-in tariff and zero dollar transfer fee.

Rimfire Energy managing director Michael Allen said the offer represented a major milestone in bringing genuine choice and savings to Territory homes.

"Until recently, most Territorians didn't have the option to choose their electricity retailer or secure discounted electricity pricing," Mr Allen said.

"We changed that, and now it's time to go one better.

"This is the biggest discount the NT has ever seen, and it's about putting money back in people's pockets at a time when every dollar counts."

The offer builds on Rimfire Energy's record of shaking up the NT electricity market.

Since entering the commercial energy space in 2014, the company has secured more than a quarter of the Territory's business electricity market, delivering estimated savings of over $20 million a year to local businesses.

Now, in the residential market, Rimfire Energy aims to normalise product innovation and customer choice, encouraging Territorians to compare, switch and save the way consumers do in other markets.

"It takes less than five minutes to switch to Rimfire Energy on our website," Mr Allen said.

"We want Territorians to think about electricity the same way they think about car insurance or mobile plans.

"If there's a better deal, why wouldn't you take it?"

Mr Allen said the timing of the offer was deliberate, with the NT heading into the wet season in the Top End and the increased temperatures across the centre, when energy use and bills typically rise.

"Power usage spikes when the humidity does," he said.

"This is the perfect time for households to lock in savings and benefit from Rimfire Energy's leading solar feed-in tariff."

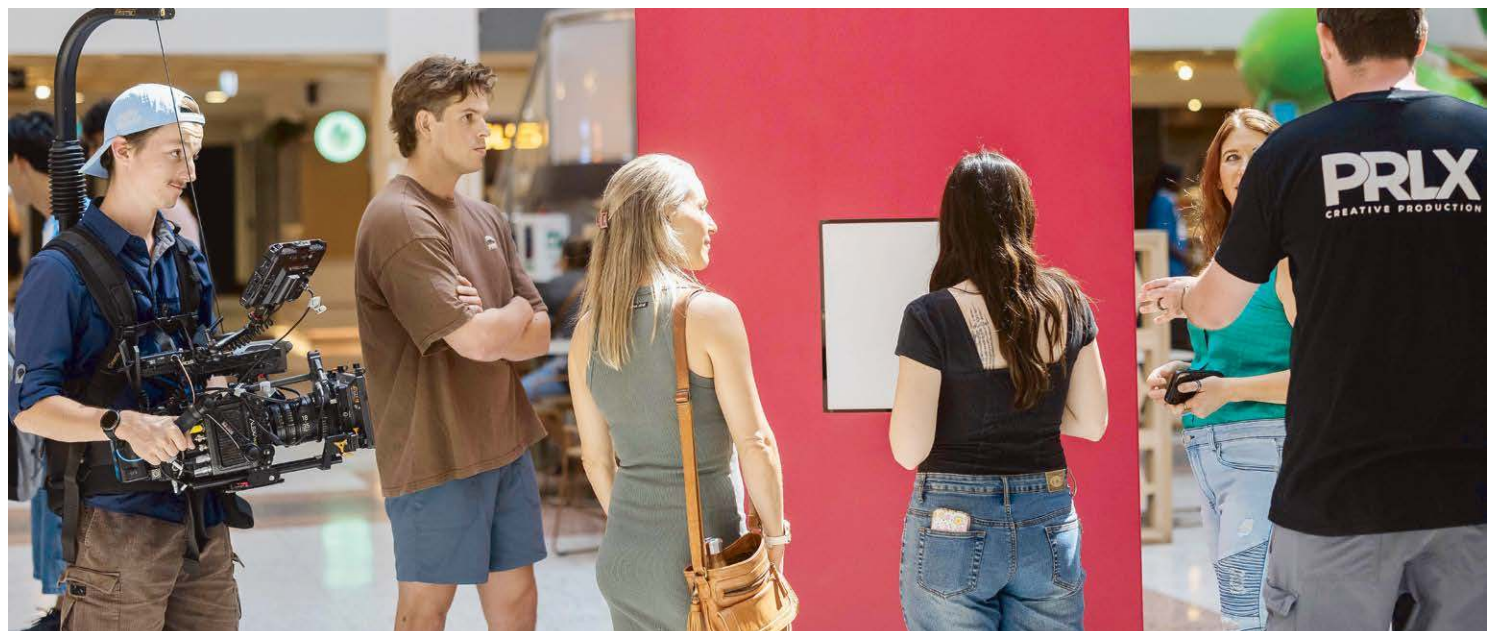

General Manager of Retail, Allan Duffell based in Alice Springs, said Rimfire was the only energy retailer to have regional offices across the Territory.

"Rimfire understands the importance of having a local presence in regions as well as Darwin," Mr Duffell said.

"We already have a good presence with the business sector locally, and we want to expand further into the residential market across Alice Springs.

Mr Duffell added it was a similar situation throughout Central Australia as it is in the Top End.

"As temperatures soar heading into summer, people can expect to see their power usage rise as they try to beat the heat," he said.

"We've already seen a couple of 40-degree days, and it's not even December."

"The timing of this offer is ideal for people who want to get a better deal on their electricity bills."

Expansion's vital support

By Gladys Barreta

AROUND 20 additional beds are now available as emergency accommodation for First Nations families in Alice Springs.

An investment of $4.9 million has been made to expand the Apmere Mwerre Visitors Park (AMVP), providing more short-term beds for people in need.

Operated by Aboriginal Hostels Limited (AHL), AMVP offers safe and affordable accommodation for First Nations people, including women and children experiencing family and domestic violence.

Minister for Indigenous Australians Senator Marlarndirri McCarthy told CAAMA Radio this week that Aboriginal hostels across Australia were "the backbone for our mob".

"We have a lot of families who come in from out bush because they need renal dialysis, to visit family in hospital, or to attend appointments and they didn't have anywhere to stay," she said.

"This investment is about dignity, safety and respect, ensuring First Nations women and children have access to a safe place to stay, especially in times of crisis.

"All women and children deserve to feel safe and supported.

"Investments like this reflect the Government's commitment to working with communities as part of the Central Australia Plan, listening to their needs and delivering practical support that makes a real difference in people's lives."

Special Envoy for Remote Communities and Member for Lingiari, Marion Scrymgour, said the expansion was a direct response to what the community had been asking for - more culturally safe accommodation options.

"It's a step forward in supporting mobility, access to services, and keeping families together here in Alice Springs," she said.

"These extra beds mean women and children escaping violence have somewhere safe to go, a place that respects culture and offers comfort in tough times."

AHL Chief Executive Officer Shane Hamilton said the investment would make a real difference in the lives of First Nations people.

OPEN: The ribbon floats to the ground after being cut by Senator Marlarndirri McCarthy to open the new accommodation at Apmere Mwerre. (Phil Williams: 517198)

"This milestone strengthens our capacity to support more First Nations people, including families in need of a safe place to stay, especially in Central Australia," he said.

"We thank community members and service providers who partnered with AHL during this project to ensure the upgrades were culturally safe and aligned with community expectations.

"The expanded accommodation at AMVP is a step toward growing our impact where we are most needed. AHL's vision is to be more than just an accommodation provider, we aspire to be a national leader in housing, healing, and opportunity for First Nations people."

Rare pop up event helps build job opportunities

By Phil Williams

THIS Wednesday, November 26 Workforce Australia, in conjunction with the NT Chamber of Commerce, will hold a rare pop-up fair designed to bring together job seekers and employers.

For people looking for their next job opportunity or employment, and service providers eager to connect job seekers with the right employers, Jobs Brew and Bites is a time to network, gain insights, and explore career opportunities.

The two-hour networking event at Alice Plaza is a chance to build valuable connections in a relaxed, no pressure environment with light refreshments provided.

For businesses, finding the right talent in a competitive job market can be a challenge.

Jobs Brew and Bites aims to simplify the recruitment process by providing direct access to a diverse pool of job seekers in one location.

For companies or organisations looking to fill immediate vacancies or build a strong pipeline of future talent, the event will be an excellent way to meet motivated candidates face-to-face in an informal yet professional setting, saving time and resources in the recruitment process.

It will also give businesses the chance to network and connect with other local businesses and employment organisations to exchange ideas and best practices.

Participating in Jobs Brew and Bites, will boost recruitment efforts and aims to make a lasting impact on the local workforce.

Job seekers will be able to explore career options, meet local employers face-to-face, access job-seeker information and resources and build their personal network.

Whether you're actively job hunting, exploring new opportunities, or assisting others in their career journey, Jobs Brew and Bites is the perfect place to meet, mingle, and make meaningful employment connections.

For businesses or anyone wanting to take part in the event, contact employment@localjobsnt.com.au to register or learn more.

CSC goes retro for festival

By Phil Williams

CENTRALIAN Senior College will step back in time tonight, November 20 with its Retro-themed arts event. The annual Twilight Arts Festival, now in its 10th year, will celebrate ‘Getting your Retro on’ as the school’s front lawn comes alive with an evening of art, music, craft, food, and other fun activities. A highlight of the evening will be an appearance of characters from Coraline, the school’s drama production, as well as decor jointly made with Braiuling, Ross Park, Sadadeen and Gillen Primary and Centralian Middle schools. Retro style activities will be celebrated through an art exhibition, signage and flower decor designed by CSC students along with live music fronted by student bands.

Alice Springs Town Band and the NT Music school group will also perform musical sets taking the audience back to days gone by.

A feature workshop this year will be a hula hoop basics class and elsewhere there will be a host of activities including dance, retro games, dress ups, face painting and other activities.

A selection of foods from a diverse range of cultures including Indian and African delicacies will also be available. Arts Faculty Co-ordinator at CSC, Judith Coverdale, said the student-run creative arts festival initiative helped students develop experience in events management.

“It’s about celebrating the arts at the college and getting students to think creatively as they make art but also events management and the organisational side,” she said.

“Students are designing and organising all aspects of a community event from displaying artworks, installing decor to performing on stage, and collaborating with community organisations.

“The classroom has no boundaries and students step up and have that sense of pride in the product.”

The theme of Retro was chosen by the Creative Arts Events class, with joint management with the Tourism classes. The fun is on from 6-9pm

Alice’s poignant tribute

By Phil Williams

THE guns fell silent at the end of World War I 107 years ago last week.

To commemorate the end of ‘the war to end all wars’ a small but respectful crowd gathered under overcast skies at the ANZAC Hill War Memorial for the Alice Springs Remembrance Day service.

The Catafalque Party, guarding the cenotaph, was made up of members of the 74 Army Cadet Unit commanded by Cadet Sergeant Charli DeHollande.

Residents and returned servicemen and women made their way to the summit of ANZAC Hill to pay their respects to not only the fallen who paid the ultimate sacrifice but all those in the armed forces who had fought for the freedoms we have today.

With the ceremony beginning at 10.30am, Veterans and active service personnel and members of the community joined VIPs, including Senator Malarndirri McCarthy, NT Treasurer, Bill Yan, Member for Araluen, Robyn Lambley and new Alice Springs Town Council Mayor Asta Hill to reflect on the sacrifices made by not only those 103,000 who have given their lives, but for all who served in Australia’s armed forces.

Students from Living Waters Lutheran School took part in the ceremony with two laying a wreath before joining a group performing a rendition of the National Anthem.

Alice Springs RSL Sub Branch President Chris Clark said Remembrance Day was an opportunity to pay tribute to those who had gone before.

“It’s another chance to remember people we knew and people who we looked up to,” he said.

Mr Clark said having young people taking part was a pleasing aspect of the day.

“Having the youth involved, both the Living Waters students and the Cadets as well, shows future generations what the day is all about.

“They were amazing. The respect those two students (from Living Waters) showed when they placed the wreath was incredible,” he said.

Cadet Sergeant DeHollande said commanding the Catafalque Party was a special moment.

“Two years ago, I was in the Catafalque Party on one of the (four) pedestals (at each corner of the monument),” she said.

“It means a lot that I’ve moved up to be a commander for this special event”

In Darwin, speaking at his final Remembrance Day as NT Administrator, Professor Hugh Heggie AO PSM, said “Incomplete records tell us that around 360 Territorians served in World War I.

“Likely, a disproportionately high representation considering our very small population at the time.”

It was poignant reminder of the small, yet significant role played by the people of the Northern Territory in Australia’s early history and war campaign that defined the nation.

All smiles for McHappy Day

By Phil Williams

THIS year's McHappy Day held even more significance for Central Australia with well advanced plans to open a Ronald McDonald House in Alice Springs.

Scouts, bikers and fires all joined forces to help raise funds for McHappy Day last Saturday.

For new licensees, Charissa and Aaron Sharp, the response from Alice Springs was more than they expected with an anonymous donor giving $200.

"This is amazing, we've already raised more than $7000 and we haven't even got to lunch time," Ms Sharp said.

The Garden Guru

Geoff Miers

Dill was used to ward off witches in the past, but now it's used as a versatile herb to add flavour to dishes.

Add dill to your cooking to take flavours to the next level.

Summer herbs thrive

WITH the weather warming it's an ideal time to consider establishing a summer herb garden.

While we may be preparing beds and planting out summer vegetables and flowering annuals now in readiness for Christmas, consider making some space for a small summer herb garden - these plants will thrive in the warm conditions and the warm soils.

Basil and dill are two of many summer herbs that will thrive if planted now.

Basil is really the king of the summer herbs, an appropriate name actually as the name basil is said to be derived from the Greek word meaning king.

Basil loves the hot weather and equally hates the real cold.

Sow basil either directly into the bed where you want it to grow or sow into seed raising trays with a view to transplanting out after a couple of weeks.

Alternatively purchase a punnet or an established plant in a 100mm pot for a few dollars and plant it out in the garden or into a pot.

Basil, and herbs generally, actually make for great container grown plants and can be grown on a balcony, in a courtyard, under the protective canopy of a tree, the alternatives are endless.

Basil is both a thirsty and hungry plant, unlike many other herbs that do not like the soil too rich.

Water lots and feed regularly to promote good healthy growth.

Basil makes for a great companion plant especially with tomatoes, is a good border plant as it sends out a strong aroma when brushed against and can be grown in the garden or in pots.

Basil comes in so many forms these days.

There's Thai basil, lemon basil, cinnamon basil, the compact bush basil and of course the decorative purple basil.

Each has a slightly different flavour, all adding interest to salads and other summer dishes.

Thai basil can even be grown as a water plant in a pond.

Dill is another summer herb that in the Middle Ages was used in magic spells and was thought to ward off witches.

People wore little bags of dill around their necks to protect them from witchcraft.

It's not likely many people grow dill to ward off witches today, however it is still a popular summer kitchen herb.

Dill can grow to almost a metre so when choosing a site select a location not exposed to strong winds.

For best results sow dill where you want it to grow. If purchasing a container grown dill plant take care in transplanting it.

Ensure you do not disturb its roots and only plant into soil that is moist.

Basil and tomatoes not only make great companion plants, they're also perfect partners on the dinner table.

Once growing or established feed the plants regularly with a liquid fertiliser.

This can be done as regularly as every 2-3 weeks to promote good healthy growth.

Dill can be grown in the garden proper or equally it grows well in pots and containers.

Dill leaves do well with fish and a range of other seafood dishes.

Smoked salmon hors d'oeuvres would seem incomplete if they're not topped with sprigs of dill.

Chopped dill added to potato dishes will provide both colour and flavour. Dill can also be preserved in oil.

As the dill plant matures it will flower and seed. The plant can be harvested when the flowers brown.

Pick the whole plant and hang upside down to dry.

Dill seeds are traditionally used in pickles, but they can be chewed to sweeten breath and sprinkled to replace salt in salt-free diets.

And if you're stuck for giving a Christmas present to a friend, consider giving a living present by potting up a basil plant and growing it on or consider planting a collection of herbs in a flat bowl now as they will be well established by Christmas.

Creating a summer herb garden is easy - make a small space in your veggie patch or plant herbs in pots.

Local to global streets

By Gladys Barreta

PASSIONATELY known across Central Australia as “Skateboard”, Eastern Arrernte man Nicky Hayes is about to take his lifelong passion to the world.

The Alice Springs local has been awarded a prestigious Churchill Fellowship, which will send him overseas to explore how First Nations communities around the globe use skateboarding to empower young people.

Nicky is already well known at home as the founder of Spinifex Skateboards, a social enterprise dedicated to building confidence, connection and community through skateboarding.

Over the years he has become a respected youth advocate, mentor and role model and a serious shredder in the skatepark.

Growing up between Alice Springs and Ltyentye Apurte/Santa Teresa, Nicky first discovered skateboarding in the mid-1990s.

A primary school friend won a competition at the old Murray Neck Music World; one of the prizes was a skateboard.

“On weekends we’d skate together,” he said.

“At first I thought skateboarding was a bit silly but interesting at the same time, and eventually it became something I really wanted to do.”

Nicky said skateboarding had shaped every part of his life.

“It’s taught me how to look at life, how to push through shame, and to just go for things. With skateboarding, the possibilities are endless.

“That’s what I want young people to see, whatever passion you’ve got, even if it’s outside the box, you can make something of it.”

The idea for Spinifex first surfaced in 2015 while Nicky was working as a youth worker and running informal skate workshops.

The enthusiasm from young people inspired him to formalise his efforts into a social enterprise.

“What began as workshops eventually grew into something ongoing - a program with a name, a purpose, and something we could build on.

“Now we’ve got shirts, jumpers, hats and boards, but most importantly, we’ve got a way to support young people.”

Nicky credits friends and mentors for helping him pursue the Churchill Fellowship.

“It means a lot, for me, for Greg Barnes who also encouraged me, and for friends like Fiona and Indigo who first told me about these scholarships.”

As part of his fellowship, Nicky plans to visit around five countries, including Canada, New Zealand, Indonesia and East Timor, to learn from other Indigenous skateboarding initiatives.

BOARD: Nicky Hayes with his board at the skate park in Alice Springs. (Phil Williams: 517769)

“The whole idea is cross-cultural exchange and seeing what other communities are doing with skateboarding culturally and how they’re using it in positive ways.”

A key stop will be Canada, where he hopes to connect with Colonialism Skateboards founder Michael Langan, with whom he has collaborated since 2018.

“We’ve been connecting for years. This gives me a chance to see how they run their programs and hopefully bring that knowledge back home.”

Nicky believes skateboarding can be a powerful bridge between cultures.

“It gives kids options outside the usual sports. It teaches healthy risk-taking, resilience, and fun. Skateboarding has helped me mentally and physically, the way I tackle challenges, the way I see the world.

“All of that can be applied to life, and that’s what I hope to share.”

As he prepares to take Spinifex and Arrernte skate culture to the world, Nicky Hayes remains driven by one simple purpose: building opportunities for young people in the heart of Australia and beyond.

Changing lanes

From the brutal battlefields of Vikings: Valhalla to Sanditon's Regency-era society, Leo Suter is adept at moving with the times. The actor trades his saddle for the driver's seat in Lynley, a fresh take on The Inspector Lynley Mysteries, writes Siobhan Duck

LEO Suter wouldn't be where he is today without the beard he sported in Vikings: Valhalla.

Suter laughs that his current role, as suave and spoiled Detective Inspector Tommy Lynley in the new crime drama Lynley, is a lot less dangerous than his days as a bloodthirsty mercenary Norseman.

Playing the ambitious Harald Sigurdsson in Netflix's Vikings sequel series, Suter realised he would have to toughen up quickly and there could be "no whining about sore muscles or cut wrists and knuckles."

At one point, he found himself going toe to toe with Romanian actor and former heavyweight boxer Florian Munteanu. Suter had to bring his A game to the choreographed fight scene, for fear one wrong move could leave him on the receiving end of a killer blow.

"There was one punch where he grazed my beard, and we both looked at each other afterwards, and he was sort of chuckling, and said: 'Dude, if I had hit you, I would have changed you,'" he recalls.

"And so, thank heavens for the beard!"

Even the Vikings: Valhalla costuming was an arduous undertaking for the actor.

"We had these great sequences where Harald went to Russia, and he was in the snow and in these furs, and we had this crisp, beautiful blue sky, so it looked freezing, but it was [actually] a heat wave in Ireland and we were sweltering," he recalls.

"There were times where the costume was heavy as well. By the end, Harald becomes king – spoiler alert! As I rose from Prince to King, I [wore] more and more chain mail. So, by the end of the third season, I was lugging around kilos worth of iron on my back, which you can't complain about because you look so cool wearing it."

Thankfully, looking cool on the set of Lynley isn't backbreaking work. Instead, Suter gets to don impeccable suits and cruise around in a vintage car that would make even James Bond envious.

"Yes, I've got a car now!" he smiles.

"I'm not bound by horseback. I can hit the open road."

"I'm no petrol head, but all the male members of the crew would come up to me and go 'What's it like to drive?'" or 'How's the engine? How's the acceleration?'"

"It had a huge engine. So this thing went whizzing down the Irish country lanes."

The downside of the vintage car was that it could overheat quite quickly. Suter kept a leaf blower by his feet to quickly demist the windscreens during chase sequences.

Before playing Lynley, Suter had not read Elizabeth George's novels nor had he seen original TV adaption The Inspector Lynley Mysteries, which debuted in 2001 and ran for six seasons, starring Nathaniel Parker in the title role and Sharon Small as his working-class partner Barbara Havers.

In this latest version, Sofia Barclay takes on the role of Havers to Suter's Lynley. Odd-couple police pairings have been a cornerstone to British crime drama since Sir Arthur Conan Doyle created Sherlock Holmes and John Watson.

Suter finds something deeply satisfying in watching two very different people bringing out the best in each other as a team.

"There's something really nice about seeing two characters nudge [gently push] each other – especially if one of those characters, maybe Lynley in this instance, is very cool, calm, collected and educated and privileged," he reflects.

"I think as viewers, we quite like it when someone begins to unpick them and nudge them so we can get a more rounded sense of what they're like."

Like Lynley, Suter attended

Oxford University, which gave him an instant understanding of his character's background. In fact, one of Suter's own photographs from his student days features in a flashback sequence.

"But the only picture the art department selected was of me in a sombrero, holding a balloon and drinking a cider," he laughs.

"So, there's totally an Oxford cross-over but I am not an aristocrat or the ninth Earl of Ashton, but I definitely know those worlds and have met people like that."

When he won the part of the aristocratic detective, Suter wrestled with how deeply he should dive into the character's lore and sought advice from Lynley's head writers.

"They both made it quite clear that this is an adaptation based on new books and that we are new IP [intellectual property]," he explains.

"As well as that, we're 20 years further ahead than the previous show, so we're doing something quite different in a way."

"It's definitely still inspired by – and [pays] homage to – the previous one, but we're charting our own course."

"All that being said, I listened to the first audio book and watched the first TV episode of the original Lynley and loved it."

When The Inspector Lynley Mysteries was axed in 2008, there was a fervent but ultimately unsuccessful fan campaign to keep it on the air.

Suter hopes those same fans will now enjoy the reboot.

He has also seen firsthand the power of the people to save a series when period drama Sanditon was rescued from the scrapheap a little over two years after it was axed.

Based on an unfinished Jane Austen manuscript, the 2019 series followed Charlotte Heywood (Rose Williams), a young woman navigating society in the seaside township of Sanditon.

Suter played Young Stringer (inset), one of Charlotte's suitors.

Unfortunately, the recommissioning of the series came too late for Suter to return to his Regency britches, as he had already set sail in Vikings: Valhalla.

Nonetheless, he remains filled with admiration for those who rallied together to commission artist Simon Beck to create a giant artwork featuring Sanditon's lead actors on the beach where it was filmed.

"The Sanditon sisterhood [the term given to the series' passionate fan base], all power to them, was extraordinary," he reflects.

"And the beach art at Brean was breathtaking."

"When you make a thing as an actor in an ensemble cast, it takes a while for it to come out, you hope that people like it, and you can get nice reviews."

"And that's all lovely. But when people fight for a show like that, it's a really moving."

PICK OF THE WEEK

Friday
THE MAGNIFICENT SEVEN
Imparja, 8.15pm, M (2016)

Antoine Fuqua (Training Day) assembled a suitably magnificent cast for his reboot of the classic western (itself a remake of Kurosawa's Seven Samurai). Denzel Washington, Chris Pratt, Ethan Hawke, Vincent D'Onofrio, Byung-Hun Lee, Manuel Garcia-Rulfo and Martin Sensmeier are the Seven, and they are up against Peter Sarsgaard as businessman Bartholomew Bogue. The townspeople, led by widow Emma Cullen (Haley Bennett), have had about enough of being under Bogue's control, so they hire this rag-tag bunch to help them take it back. With shoot-em-up action and nostalgia on its side, it's simply good fun. ★★★★★

Wild wild west:
Sam (Denzel Washington) and Josh (Chris Pratt) take a stand in The Magnificent Seven.

AMERICAN SNIPER
ABC Entertains, Friday, 8.35pm, MA15+ (2014)

This powerful Hollywood war flick, based on the true story of Chris Kyle, is directed by Clint Eastwood's sure hand and has a gripping performance from a beefed-up Bradley Cooper (pictured) as the most lethal sniper in US military history. It's serious and intense as it explores the story of the Navy SEAL, whose 160 confirmed kills over four tours in Iraq earn him the nickname "Legend". But his skill comes at a high cost – his reputation also grows behind enemy lines. ★★★★★

THE WIZARD OF OZ
Imparja, Saturday, 7pm, G (1939)

Now that Wicked: For Good is casting a spell in cinemas, it's time to go back to where it all began. As dreamer Dorothy Gale, Judy Garland (pictured) skips her way along the yellow brick road, arm-in-arm with Scarecrow, Cowardly Lion and the Tin Man (Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr and Jack Haley Sr) and her dog Toto in tow, encountering danger and magic on their way in the mystical land of Oz. Revived and remastered, this tale of self-discovery is one of the most treasurable film experiences imaginable. ★★★★★

RESERVOIR DOGS
SBS World Movies, Saturday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (1992)

Quentin Tarantino's debut announced the auteur as an incendiary filmmaking talent, arriving on the scene with his distinctive cinematic trademarks on display. Tarantino (pictured) spins a taut tale of a botched jewellery heist and the blood-soaked aftermath. Steve Buscemi, Harvey Keitel and Tim Roth stand out in a flawless cast, and QT's trademark dialogue crackles in every scene. Shot on a minuscule budget, Dogs' iconic soundtrack adds magic beyond measure. ★★★★★

THE MATRIX REVOLUTIONS
9Gem, Sunday, 7pm, M (2003)

The third episode of the Wachowskis' sci-fi franchise abandons all of the ingenuity of the first chapter in favour of flashy visuals, robotic hardware and a cryptic plot. Neo (Keanu Reeves) is trapped in limbo between the real world and the Matrix and the human race faces extinction in the wake of invading machines. Meanwhile, Agent Smith (Hugo Weaving, pictured, right with Reeves) is trying to rule both worlds. Weaving is terrific, as is his visually astounding rain-soaked brawl with Neo. ★★★

LATE NIGHT
SBS World Movies, Monday, 9.30pm, M (2019)

Late-night talk shows may be the coveted gig of comedians the world over, but their brutal schedule and precarious position at the mercy of network ratings mean they're not for the faint of heart. In Late Night, Emma Thompson (pictured) is Katherine Newbury, a veteran of late-night TV who suspects her time may soon be up. In an effort to spruce up the jokes that come out of the all-male, all-white writers' room comes new hire Molly Patel (Mindy Kaling, who also wrote the screenplay). ★★★

THE FURNACE
SBS World Movies, Tuesday, 7.30pm, M (2020)

Set in gold rush-era Western Australia, this superb outback western depicts life at the time from several distinct viewpoints. At its centre is Hanif (Ahmed Malek), an "Afghan" cameleer (in reality, these migrants were from all over Asia) in possession of two bars of stolen gold, who forms an uneasy alliance with thief Mal (David Wenham, pictured, left with Malek) while evading the officers hot on their trail. The gorgeous, sun-baked cinematography wows with every frame. ★★★

PICK OF THE WEEK

CRICKET: THE ASHES FIRST TEST Seven, Friday, from 10.30am

A scorching summer of cricket awaits fans, with riveting WBBL action already underway, the electrifying atmosphere of the BBL around the corner, and one of sport's greatest rivalries – the Ashes – making its way to Perth. Seven has assembled the best in the business to call their coverage, with renowned broadcaster David “Bumble” Lloyd and former fast-bowling great Stuart Broad delivering witty, informative and entertaining commentary alongside cricket greats Ricky Ponting, Aaron Finch (both pictured), Matthew Hayden and Justin Langer, to name a few. Pat Cummins’ injury, which rules the Aussie captain out of the first Test, might have the Barmy Army thinking they’ve got a glimpse at glory, but neither history nor the weather is on their side.

HARD QUIZ KIDS ABC Family, Saturday, 7.30pm

He's quick to knock comedians down a peg or two on Taskmaster Australia, and doesn't mind grilling the contestants on Hard Quiz – but does Tom Gleeson hold back any barbs for the junior quiz contenders on this teenage spin-off? Not a chance. Luckily, the kids can give as good as they get (and admittedly, some of Gleeson's more sarcastic zingers go straight over their heads). Another quartet of aspiring quizmasters land in Gleeson's roasting pan in tonight's episode: Veda is ready to show off her extensive dolphin knowledge, Viyona (pictured) is cricket legend Jasprit Bumrah's biggest fan, Tyler talks all things Titanic and Hrishi sets out to prove his Pluto prowess. It's fun for the whole family.

LIVE AID: WHEN ROCK 'N' ROLL TOOK ON THE WORLD Imparja, Sunday, 7.30pm

Back in 1984, rock star Bob Geldof (pictured) saw a BBC news report about Ethiopia's “biblical famine” while on his way to a book launch, and the rest is history. The Boomtown Rats frontman was able to assemble just about every pop star in Britain to record charity single “Do They Know It's Christmas?”, which would spawn a global movement and catapult Geldof into the complex world of African politics. Four decades on from the Live Aid concert, this insightful series combines new interviews with behind-the-scenes footage and performances to uncover how it all happened – without shying away from the controversies along the way.

SHANE DELIA'S MALTA SBS Food, Monday, 8pm

Much like Stanley Tucci's travels through Italy and Eva Longoria's recent trek through Spain, Shane Delia (pictured) charts the history of his homeland Malta through its unique food in this docuseries. The celebrated Melbourne-based chef says the vibrant cuisine of the Mediterranean archipelago has long been overlooked, so it's high time viewers got an authentic taste of its delectable delights, including the national dish stuffat tal-fenek (rabbit stew) and street food such as pastizzi (savoury pastries). In Monday's premiere, Delia starts his culinary journey in the fishing village of Marsaxlokk.

BACK TO SCHOOL

A MAN ON THE INSIDE NETFLIX
Streaming, Netflix

Sitcom veteran Ted Danson goes back undercover in season two of this cosy mystery comedy that's the perfect companion piece to the similarly charming and witty Only Murders in the Building.
The silver-haired septuagenarian returns as amateur investigator Charles Nieuwendyk. Eager to take on another big case after infiltrating a retirement home to find a priceless necklace in season one, the unexpected sleuth gets his chance when a blackmailer targets charismatic university president Jack Beringer (New Girl's Max Greenfield). He enlists Charles to pose as a professor in a covert bid to find out who is making the threats.
The retiree-turned-mole soon comes across a raft of potential suspects on campus, including billionaire benefactor Brad Vinick (Gary Cole, Veep) and free-spirited music teacher Mona Margadoff, played by Danson's real-life wife, Oscar winner Mary Steenburgen.
In his effort to unmask the guilty party, widower Charles enlists a crew of familiar faces, including his daughter Emily (Mary Elizabeth Ellis), private eye Julie (Lilah Richcreek Estrada) and no-nonsense retirement home director Didi (Stephanie Beatriz, Brooklyn Nine-Nine).
Created by Mike Schur (Parks and Recreation, The Good Place), this comforting senior-centric comedy hits all the right notes as its lonely lead character continues to find fresh purpose later in life. A hidden gem that's sure to leave a smile on your face. - Travis Lewis

Perfect pairing: Mary Steenburgen joins husband Ted Danson in A Man on the Inside.

THE ROSES
Streaming, Disney+

Olivia Colman and Benedict Cumberbatch (both pictured) go head to head in this riotous dark comedy. They play a high-achieving couple whose seemingly perfect marriage deteriorates into a bitter rivalry. Written by Aussie Tony McNamara (The Great), this laugh-out-loud tale co-stars Andy Samberg, Kate McKinnon and Allison Janney.

HE HAD IT COMING
Streaming, Stan

Similar in tone to Deadloch, this quirky black comedy also follows two mismatched females as they to untangle a murder mystery. Lydia West and Natasha Liu Bordizzo (both pictured) play a pair of uni students who wake from a night of drunken debauchery to discover that the campus statue they vandalised is now also the site of a star athlete's brutal demise.

TRAIN DREAMS
Streaming from Friday, Netflix

Joel Edgerton (pictured) delivers a career-best performance as the logger and railroad worker at the centre of this evocative historical drama. He stars as Robert Grainier, a quiet and withdrawn man searching for meaning in the fading American frontier in the early 20th century. Felicity Jones plays his devoted wife Gladys. Based on the 2011 novella by Denis Johnson, this sombre and meditative tale will delight cinephiles.

THE DEATH OF BUNNY MUNRO
Streaming, Binge

Matt Smith turns on the charm to play the titular sex addict in this small-screen adaptation of cult musician Nick Cave's scandalous 2009 novel. The House of the Dragon star plays Bunny Munro, a door-to-door beauty product salesman who embarks on a chaotic road trip with his young son Bunny Jr (newcomer Rafael Mathé, pictured with Smith) after the sudden death of his wife. What follows is a darkly comic tale of lust, guilt and grief.

THE FAMILY PLAN 2
Streaming from Friday, Apple TV

Mark Wahlberg returns as a suburban dad who previously led a secret life as a skilled assassin in this high-stakes sequel to the 2023 action comedy. In this intense instalment, the former covert operative takes his wife (Michele Monaghan) and kids on a Christmas holiday to Europe, which is gatecrashed by a former foe (Kit Harington, pictured, left, with Wahlberg).

SURPRISE: Car owners received a nasty surprise when they returned to their vehicles after a gym session only to find them crushed after a limb dropped from a red gum on Gap Road. (Phil Williams: 517473)

Red gum delivers a crushing blow

By Phil Williams

DRIVERS who had their cars parked outside a gym on Gap Road say they are grateful no one was hurt when a large limb dropped from an old redgum onto their cars last week.

The car owners received an unpleasant surprise when they returned to their vehicles after a gym session to discover a large branch on top of the cars.

Shortly before noon, the branch came crashing down from a river red gum, crushing two vehicles, and causing minor damage to a third car, outside the Get Physical Gym and squash courts.

The fallen limb, which showed evidence of termite damage, wreaked havoc in the parking area fronting Gap Road outside the fitness centre.

A Colorado ute and Volkswagen Polo were destroyed, and the roof of a Subaru Forrester was damaged while their owners were taking part in an exercise session.

A person inside the gym saw the branch fall and alerted those inside.

The owner of the Polo, Wendy Mann, expressed her dismay but was thankful nobody was injured, as she lamented the loss of her favourite car.

“It’s a beautiful little car that we just love,” she said.

“No one’s hurt. It could have been much worse,” she said as she watched council workers begin to cut up the large branch that came to rest on the car’s roof.

As the process of cutting up the large bough began, Ms Mann who with her husband, had been taking part in an exercise session when it fell, and said she had resigned herself to the fact that her car was likely beyond repair.

“We might not see it again,” she said.

A spokesperson from the gym said the branch fell just two minutes before the 11.45 am exercise session was scheduled to end.

They said the situation could have been catastrophic had the incident occurred just a few minutes later, when gym-goers would have been making their way to the cars parked out the front.

“We were very lucky that no one was hurt, or even worse.”

Chilling out over summer

By Gladys Barreta

AIMING to keep young people active and connected over the summer, the Alice Springs ice rink will return this year as part of a free school holiday program.

Funded by the Northern Territory Government and delivered in partnership with the Alice Springs Town Council, the ice rink will be set up at the Alice Springs Convention Centre between December and January.

The rink is part of the A Better, Safer Future for Central Australia initiative (Central Australia Plan), which will offer six weeks of free activities across Alice Springs and remote communities throughout Central Australia.

Building on the success of previous programs, the summer schedule will include 3x3 basketball, African drumming workshops, waterslides, free movies, and 10-pin bowling.

Young people will also have the chance to learn new skills through bike repair lessons, arts and crafts, sports, and cooking workshops.

Half the activities will take place in Alice Springs and half in surrounding remote communities.

The program is scheduled to run from Friday, December 12 to Tuesday, January 27, 2026.

Last year’s summer holiday program recorded more than 24,600 attendances across 1461 activities delivered by community organisations and local councils.

Lingiari MP Marion Scrymgour said an engaging calendar of activities helped keep young people busy and families supported during the holidays.

“I’m very excited that the ice rink will be making a return this summer in Alice Springs,” she said.

“Families have told me how much they enjoyed bringing their kids ice skating last time.”

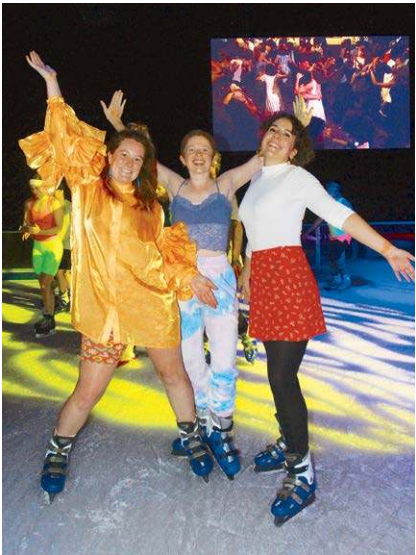

Alice Springs Mayor Asta Hill said the Town Council was thrilled to see the much-loved ice rink return.

“It’s such a joy to see locals and community groups come together and have fun,” she said.

“The town can’t wait to get back out on the ice.”

“We’re so grateful for the support helping us deliver another bumper summer school holiday program for Alice Springs.

“This kind of investment makes a real difference for local families.”

Red dirt idea reaps reward

By Phil Williams

ALICE Springs businesswoman Katie Thompson will learn tonight, Thursday November 20, if she is named a national winner in the Telstra Best of Business Awards.

Earlier this year she was named as a Northern Territory winner, and is in Brisbane attending tonight's award ceremony.

There's no slowing down Ms Thompson, the force behind BeME Movement Education, named as the Northern Territory State Winner in the Accelerating Women category of the Telstra Best of Business Awards.

The honour recognises BeME's powerful community work, particularly its Girls on Country program.

The program is a leadership and wellbeing initiative that gives young First Nations girls the space to move, connect, and grow in confidence.

The Telstra Awards journey is no small feat. Written submissions, interviews, and judging rounds have led to this moment, and now, Ms Thompson is representing the Territory at the National Finals.

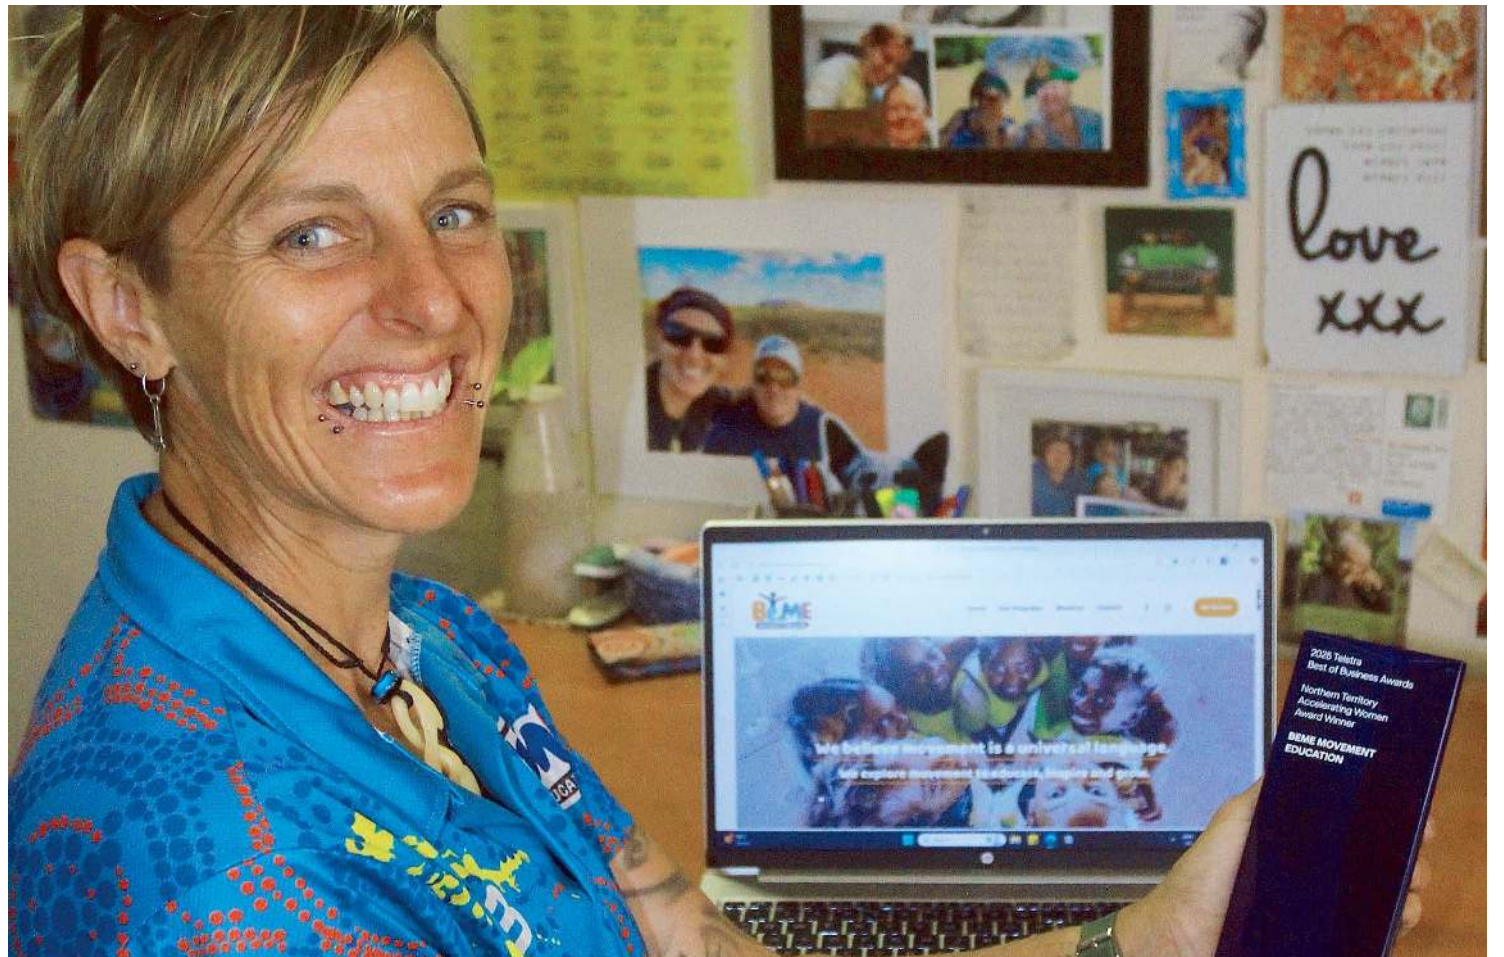

Ms Thompson will have 10 minutes to pitch BeME's story to a panel of judges, followed by a 20-minute Q&A before the national winners are revealed at tonight's black-tie gala dinner.

"It's been an intense but incredibly rewarding process," Ms Thompson said.

"It's pushed me to step back and really see the scale of what we've built.

"From a local idea, born on red dirt, to something that's having an impact right across the NT and beyond."

Adding to her success, Ms Thompson has also been named a national finalist in The Weekly Times Shine Awards, which honour women driving change across rural and regional Australia.

"The recognition from these awards means more than just a trophy," she said.

"It opens doors. Doors to partnerships, to resources, to new possibilities for our girls. That's what keeps me moving."

In addition to her own work, Ms Thompson has an involvement with her husband's motorcycle business in Alice Springs along with volunteering and donating time to several sporting and charity organisations, including the recent week-long Shit Box Rally.

Language bridging cultures

FULL-TIME volunteer missionaries have taken it upon themselves to host free English classes for people in Alice Springs.

With Alice Springs being a multicultural town, missionaries from The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints are committed to helping people feel more confident with their English.

The weekly one-hour classes are held every Wednesday at 6pm and Saturday at 11:am at 36 Angunna Avenue, Braitling.

Sister Taylor Lethco said providing free English classes was one way they can serve their neighbours.

“Community engagement events like this are so good for Alice Springs,” she said.

“They help bring the community closer together and provide opportunities for non-native English speakers,” she said.

The volunteers use EnglishConnect books that include vocabulary exercises, reading comprehension, writing prompts, and speaking activities.

“Our class is one-on-one and conversation based.

“We also include fun, interactive activities with participants,” Sister Lethco said.

So far, the English classes have been running successfully for the past six months, attracting an average of five to 15 participants per session.

Sister Lethco welcomes anyone interested in improving their English skills or native English speakers who'd like to volunteer to come along and get involved.

LEARNING: Full-time volunteer Missionaries are hosting free English classes for people in Alice Springs.

Boost for road safety

By Gladys Barreta

A Road Safety Grants Program aimed at funding projects that encourage responsible community behaviour and raise awareness of road safety issues is calling on Territorians to get involved.

Launched this month, the program offers more than $100,000 in grants, with up to $15,000 available for local community groups to support initiatives that promote or improve road safety across the Northern Territory.

According to Road Safety NT, a total of 36 lives have already been lost on NT roads this year.

In 2024, there were 60 fatalities across the NT - 39 in rural areas and 21 in urban locations.

Drivers, passengers, and pedestrians recorded the highest number of deaths in 2024, 2023, and 2022.

Minister for Logistics and Infrastructure Bill Yan is encouraging local groups to come forward with fresh ideas that raise awareness and address key road safety concerns.

“These grants allow government and the community to work together towards achieving better road safety outcomes,” Mr Yan said.

He said the funding cap had been increased from $5000 to $15,000 per applicant to encourage greater participation.

“We want community organisations to put their hat in the ring, knowing there’s meaningful funding available to make an impact,” he said.

Mr Yan said projects that promoted responsible behaviours, improved safety culture, and raised awareness among all road users would be considered.

“Ideas could include creating signage or banners, running social media campaigns, conducting research, hosting workshops, or holding community events that promote road safety,” he said.

Grants will remain open until all funds are allocated or until June 2026, whichever comes first.

The program is open to all NT not-for-profit organisations, local governments, schools, and sporting or community groups.

SKILL: More skilled migrants to help workforce shortages in public and private sectors in the NT. (Supplied)

Skilled migrants for NT

THE Northern Territory will benefit from an increase in skilled migration opportunities, with 1650 nominations allocated under the 2025-26 General Skilled Migration Program to support workforce needs across the region.

Minister for Trade, Business and Asian Relations, Robyn Cahill, said the announcement comes at a crucial time as workforce shortages continue to affect both public and private sectors across the Territory.

“Migration programs are vital to rebuilding the Northern Territory’s economy and maintaining our unique lifestyle,” Ms Cahill said.

“They help stabilise population growth, drive regional economic development, and address skill shortages, particularly in remote and regional communities.”

Earlier this year, Ms Cahill attended the Ministerial Migration Roundtable in Melbourne to advocate for improved regional migration settings to better support the Territory’s workforce needs.

For 2025-26, the Northern Territory has received a total of 1650 nominations - 850 for the subclass 190 visa and 800 for the subclass 491 visa - an increase from 1600 in the previous program year.

Ms Cahill noted the increase highlighted the government’s effective advocacy and commitment to supporting Territory growth.

“The Territory Government continues to prioritise jobs for Territorians first, followed by interstate workers, before seeking international recruitment,” she said.

The Northern Territory nomination program opens for all streams on 24 November 2025.

Uniting for McHappy Day

By Phil Williams

SCOUTS, bikers and fires all joined forces to help raise funds for McHappy Day last Saturday.

The Golden Arches was a hive of activity and sea of colour as customers packed in to the restaurant for the big fundraiser that aids Ronald McDonald House Charities across Australia will benefit from the donation of $2 for every Big Mac burger purchased and the sale of limited-edition merchandise.

Customers were surprised to be handed their orders by Member for Braitling, Josh Burgoyne, who spent some time working the Drive-Thru early in the day.

"I always enjoy coming down and helping out," he said.

"Sometimes the reactions are quite funny when people see me leaning out the window with their order."

For new licensees, Charissa and Aaron Sharp, the response from Alice Springs more than they expected with an anonymous donor giving $200.

"This is amazing, we've already raised more than $7000 and we haven't even got to lunch time," Ms Sharp said.

This year's McHappy Day takes on more significance for Central Australia with well advanced plans to open a Ronald McDonald House in Alice Springs.

White Paper focus on ‘unreasonable’ regional airfares

By Gladys Barreta

THE Federal Government has released the terms of reference for the Productivity Commission Inquiry into the key factors determining regional airfares, following widespread concerns raised during the development of the Aviation White Paper.

Issues such as the cost, frequency and reliability of regional air services have become a growing pressure point for communities across Australia.

The White Paper found that Regional Australians deserved reliable air services at reasonable prices, prompting the government to task the Productivity Commission with examining competition, pricing practices and whether profits across the supply chain are fair and sustainable.

Special Envoy for Defence, Veterans' Affairs and Northern Australia, Luke Gosling said the inquiry would finally give governments the nationally consistent data needed to tackle long-standing concerns about airfare pricing.

"We know that safe, affordable and reliable air services are vital for regional and remote communities, not just for travel, but for access to healthcare, education and jobs," he said.

"More accessible regional airfares can help drive local economies, support tourism and boost productivity."

REGIONAL: A Qantas plane at Alice Springs airport. (Phil Williams: 465162)

The White Paper revealed the average ticket price per kilometre was 52 per cent higher on flights involving regional airports compared with flights between major capitals.

It also showed a sharp decline in available routes: regional routes dropped from 458 to 291 between 1989 and 2021, while remote routes fell from 264 to 163. Many of those remaining are now serviced by just one airline.

Mr Gosling said the Commission had been asked to hold public hearings and invite submissions from communities affected by high airfares.

Alice Springs Mayor Asta Hill agreed the current situation was unfair, saying fares to and from Alice Springs were "simply not reasonable."

"It's really tough when it costs so much just to get on a plane," she said.

"Alice Springs is an amazing place to live, but the cost of air travel makes it harder for people to visit and harder for locals to see family or take a well-earned break."

Cr Hill said many families were separated across states, and high fares made even short trips financially out of reach.

"For tourism, high prices mean some visitors think twice about coming. For businesses, it makes travel for work or training so much more expensive. Air travel isn't a luxury for regional towns, it's a lifeline."

Tourism Central Australia CEO Danial Rochford said airfare pricing remained a major determinant of visitor choice.

"We'd love to see cheaper fares."

"While some of our attractions, like the Larapinta Trail, are bucket-list experiences that people will pay for, the reality is that high airfares shut many people out, especially during a cost-of-living crunch."

The Productivity Commission will deliver its final report in about 18 months.

Call for information about aggravated robbery

NORTHERN Territory Police are calling for information about an aggravated robbery on November 10 in Alice Springs.

Around 10am the following day, the Joint Emergency Services Communication Centre received a report about a robbery at a unit on Mallam Crescent in Sadadeen.

It is alleged an unknown female offender unlawfully entered the unit sometime during Monday evening and knocked the male resident, aged in his 70s, to the floor, before stealing his phone and fleeing the scene.

The victim was unable to call for assistance and remained on the floor until a neighbour was alerted.

Members from Southern Crime, Strike Force Viper and general duties attended and investigations are ongoing.

The victim was assessed by St John Ambulance at the scene and required no further medical treatment.

Anyone with information, including with CCTV or dash cam, is urged to contact police on 131 444.

SHRINE: Day of the Dead shrine held at Campfire in the Heart.

Gathering for the Day of the Dead

THE Alice Springs community came together at Campfire in the Heart on Saturday, November 2 for a vibrant celebration of Dia de los Muertos - the Mexican Day of the Dead.

The evening invited locals to honour the memory of loved ones through offerings, poetry, music, and shared food, transforming grief into gratitude and remembrance.

The night began with a welcome and the opening of the Ofrenda - a communal shrine adorned with photos, flowers, and keepsakes of those who have passed.

Local musician Christopher Brocklebank filled the room with the sound of acoustic guitar before an open mic, hosted by Jeff Perz, invited poetry and reflections on life, death, and love.

"The Dia de los Muertos ofrenda was absolutely stunning," said attendee Kelly-Lee Hickey. "So much love in the room."

Organiser Jorge Luis Basave, who is originally from Mexico, said the night was about remembering with joy.

"In my culture, Dia de los Muertos is a celebration, not a mourning," he said.

"It's about remembering the laughter, the food, the music and everything that made our loved ones who they were. I love sharing that spirit here in Alice Springs."

Accompanied with some thunder that evening, guests reflected on a night rich in memory, culture, and connection. The ofrenda remained open through Sunday, offering a quiet space for ongoing reflection.

The event closed with heartfelt thanks to all who shared their food, poetry, and presence, a touch of magical Mexico in the heart of Alice Springs.

Clooney at his smoothest

JAY KELLY, the new film from Academy Award nominee Noah Baumbach, follows famous movie actor Jay Kelly (George Clooney) and his devoted manager Ron (Adam Sandler) as they embark on a whirlwind and unexpectedly profound journey through Europe.

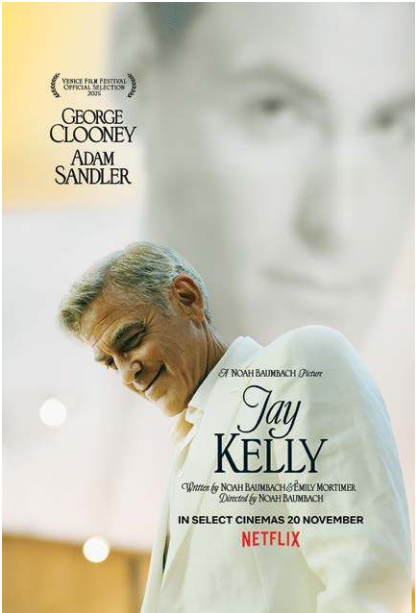

Along the way, both men are forced to confront the choices they've made, the relationships with their loved ones, and the legacies they'll leave behind.

"Clooney is at his smoothest in Jay Kelly, but the best thing about the film is its generosity toward supporting stars, especially Sandler, Dern and Crudup." - Peter Howell, Toronto Star

"George Clooney gives an exceptional performance, and Adam Sandler again continues to remind audiences how adept he is with dramatic material. The script and Baumbach's direction are both layered and thoughtful, full of Hollywood magic." - Jeff Ewing, That Hashtag Show

"Jay Kelly lingers on themes of time, regret, and ego, exploring how these forces shape not only oneself but the lives of those around us." - David Gonzalez, The Cinematic Reel

- 132 minutes | Comedy | Rated M | Directed by Noah Baumbach | Starring Laura Dern, George Clooney, Adam Sandler | Opens 20 November

Post early to avoid delays

By Phil Williams

WITH Christmas looming fast, Australia Post has announced the critical last sending dates for gifts and cards and urge customers to plan ahead to ensure presents arrive by Christmas Day.

Importantly, anyone sending to or from the Northern Territory, Western Australia, Tasmania or regional and remote locations, should allow a few extra days to ensure delivery in time for Christmas.

For Metro locations across Australia, Christmas letters and cards should be sent by Thursday, December 18 for same state deliveries and Tuesday, December 16 for interstate deliveries.

Parcel Post items should be sent by Monday 22 December for same state deliveries and Friday 19 December for interstate deliveries, while Express Post parcels should be sent by Tuesday 23 December.

NT Express Post users are reminded next day delivery is not guaranteed.

For international post, items being sent Economy Air should be forwarded between November 21 and December 5 while International Standard mail and parcels should be sent between November 28 and December 12.

Parcels going by International Express need to be sent between December 5 and December 18.

Australia Post advises the delivery destination should be taken into account when using the international services as delivery times could be affected.

Executive General Manager Parcel, Post and eCommerce Services, Gary Starr, said customers should check the sending deadlines for their chosen destination on the Australia Post website and plan Christmas posting early to give parcels and cards the best chance of arriving on time.

"Christmas is the busiest time of year for our network and we know how important it is for parcels and cards to arrive on time," he said.

"We're sharing these key dates early so people can plan ahead, while also scaling up our operations with thousands of extra team members.

"Planning ahead is the best way to make sure your gifts reach loved ones, and while we'll still deliver items sent after the recommended dates as quickly as possible, we can't guarantee they'll arrive before Christmas," Mr Starr said.

To make things easier for Alice Springs users, the new banks of red parcel lockers at the Post Office offer a convenient alternative to queuing at the Parcel Window.

The free, easy to use lockers are accessible around the the clock.

All last sending dates are now available to view at auspost.com.au/christmas, which include domestic sending via Parcel Post and Express Post, and international sending via Economy Air, International Standard and International Express.

To stay informed about delivery updates, including expected arrival times and any major service interruptions or impacts to the network, customers can use the Australia Post app or visit auspost.com.au/service-updates.

A blueprint for design

By Phil Williams

ON September 17, 1997, Shanahan Close in Desert Springs was gazetted as a tribute to John Barry Shanahan, who was a partner in the prominent architectural firm of Shanahan, Keeler Faehse.

Barry, as he was known, was based in Alice Springs from 1980 until his death on November 27, 1996.

During those 16 years, the firm was largely responsible for the design and development of such landmark buildings as the Yeperenye Shopping Centre, Alice Tourist Apartments and Belvedere House, which sits at the corner of Bath and Parsons Streets.

In addition, the firm designed many houses and unit developments across Alice Springs.

In September 1983, the Yeperenye site was slated for a combined Aboriginal Organizations Resource Centre and Shanahan was engaged by the Aboriginal Development Commission (ADC) to prepare plans.

Shanahan consulted with the organisations of the day which included Central Land Council, Central Australian Aboriginal Congress, Tangentyere Council, Institute for Aboriginal Development, Pitjantjatjara Council and Central Australian Aboriginal Media Association, now known as CAAMA.

Plans were finally presented to the Alice

Springs Town Council, only to be rejected because the building height exceeded the building code set for the CBD by a few metres.

Following lengthy legal discussions, it was concluded the needs of all the organisations couldn't be met and the concept was abandoned in mid-1985.

Later that year, it became known that Woolworths was looking for larger premises than its existing Todd Mall site, now taken up by the cinema complex.

Shanahan was quick to seize on the opportunity to pursue a commercial development on the Hartley, Bath Street land as a solution for accommodating the supermarket chain, resulting in the Yeperenye Shopping Centre's construction.

After the architecture partnership and business was dissolved in the early 1990s, Shanahan helped people design simple structures such as carports and pergolas.

Later, he was instrumental in achieving rezoning of the land in Mt Johns and Desert Springs where the road is situated.

Brown taking on the world

By Garry Howe

ALICE Springs product Ethan Brown won his 10th Group 1 race on board his favourite horse, the Ciaron Maher-trained Jimmystar, in the CF Orr Stakes at Caulfield on Saturday.

Now he has his sights set on his international racing debut in search of his 11th Group 1 win on Light Infantry Man in the Hong Kong Vase 2400m at the Hong Kong International Race Meeting at Sha Tin on December 14.

Cheering him on in the crowd at Caulfield last Saturday was his biggest fan Marg Simonetto, his former teacher at Our Lady of the Sacred Heart College.

Brown has now ridden Jimmystar 10 times for five wins, including three Group 1 wins, and says he is clearly his favourite horse.

"He's such a beauty. It is well publicised, my love for him and it is obvious why. He is the ultimate professional," Brown told Racing.com after the race.

"Even when he won the Oakleigh Plate, he was very full of himself, but he has really come of age since then as he's turned into the ultimate professional and his races are showing it."

He said he knew he was on the best horse and rode him accordingly.

"I knew I was on the best horse, and I believed I was on the best horse, so I rode him accordingly. He began really well. I thought halfway up the hill 'woo boy, come back,' he told Racing.com.

"Once that rush came across, he relaxed beautifully in what was a good tempo. When they came up for air a bit down the side, then quickened I just had to be on top of that. He does hit a flat spot.

"He sort of felt (runner-up) Angel Capital there and I think that helped him and off he went. He gives me such an amazing feeling and he's such a good horse."

Brown is having a great season, having won 45 races from 207 rides, and has ridden the most Victorian winners since August 1, despite multiple trips to Sydney earlier in the spring carnival to ride Jimmystar, Tempted and Light Infantry Man among others, primarily for Maher, with whom he has built a great association.

He moved to 599 career wins with the Caulfield double last Saturday, also guiding Taken home to victory in the final race.

Maher confirmed this week that Light Infantry Man would be set for the Hong Kong Vase, with Brown joining him on the trip.

Light Infantry Man won the Group 1 Northerly Stakes (1800m) and Australian Cup (2000m) last summer with Brown in the saddle.

The dual Group 1-winner placed fifth in both the Cox Plate and Champions Stakes during the Spring Racing Carnival.

A win on his international riding debut would cap a magnificent season for Brown, who finished third in the Melbourne Cup on the Maher-trained Middle Earth, two places ahead of his fiancée and fellow jockey Celine Gaudray on Torranzino.

Brown wasn't born into racing, in fact honed his early motor skills on the back of a motorbike.

His father Paul was right into motocross and young Ethan initially followed him down that path.

He hadn't sat on a horse until he was 14 and introduced to the caper by his mother Sonia Donnelly and stepfather Ronny, social members at Pioneer Park and connections to a few local trainers.

Ethan started out helping out around a few stables and found the skills he had honed on the back of a motorbike transferred to the back of a horse.

Eventually Brown found his way down to Melbourne and hooked up with Cranbourne-based trainer Mick Kent as an apprentice.

The Age newspaper recently touched on the relationship built with his former teacher at Our Lady of the Sacred Heart junior campus, Marg Simonetto.

They bumped into each other a few years back at the airport when Ethan returned to ride in the Alice Springs Cup.

Marg, now retired, travels regularly to Melbourne to visit her daughter Louise and makes sure she heads out to the races to cheer Ethan on from the sidelines.

Age reporter Danny Russell spotted them hugging in the mounting yard after Ethan ride a winner on Caulfield Cup Day.

"He was a delight," Marg told the Age reporter, recalling that as a seven-year-old he would chaperone his sister Grace to the classroom, unpack her bag and make sure she was

"I back his mounts when I am at the races,"

Marg told The Age. "I have $2 each way. But I'm more interested in him as a person than trying to win money."

ASIDE from a strong breeze, players had near perfect conditions for the penultimate round of the John Healy Pennant on the golf club's pristine bowling green on November 1.

Four players, Katherine O'Donoghue, Linda Hughes, Wendy Cochrane and Pat Coburn were using the round as an opportunity for some final matchplay before joining the NT side for the National Championships in Devonport.

For the second consecutive week Linda Hughes, with score of +7 pts, 23 shots narrowly won the day from O'Donoghue (+7pts, +14 shots).

Jason Hemmings, who has been playing consistently and sitting atop the rankings going into the round, was third on +6 pts, +15 shots as the week's results saw a few more ups and downs at the top of the table.

Hemmings held the top ranking at the end of the round with +29 pts, +45 shots.

Sharon Innes did enough to continue her rise with a total of +23 pts, +17 shots moving her into second, jumping ahead of David Gould, maintaining his third slot with +22 points +17 shots.

Phil Ryan's return after missing the previous round moved him back into the top four with +20 pts, -1 shot with Peter Misfud on +20 points, -12 Shots rounding out the top five.

Yvonne Driscoll who was sitting third, fell out of the top five.

Feds fall short on the pitch

By Phil Williams

WESTS faced off against the Rovers Works in the early women's cricket match at Flynn Drive Oval last Thursday.

Wests won the toss on November 13 and elected to bat first with opener Bronte Stray top-scoring for Wests.

Stray attacked the bowling from the opening delivery, and helped lay a solid platform for the rest of the batting line-up before being forced to retire, in line with the competition playing conditions, with a solid 30 on the board.

Despite Stray's efforts, some tight bowling from the Rovers Works attack restricted Wests to a total of 3-76.

In response, Rovers Works opener Caitlin Couch scored quickly with multiple boundaries before she had to retire once she reached her individual score of 30.

Losing just one wicket, Rovers Works proved to be a strong batting unit, easily chasing down the total in just 11 overs.

In the later game, the Tigers had an easy win when they came up against Federal White.

The Tigers batted first and set a challenging total of 135, for the loss of one wicket.

When they took to the crease for the run chase, Feds batted solidly, against a some good Tigers bowling that kept the scoring low.

Unable to penetrate the field, Feds were hampered by the lack of boundaries and struggled to score freely.

Despite batting out their full allocation of overs and losing just three wickets Feds fell short by 56 runs to be 3/79.

Fine-tuning ahead of titles

By Phil Williams

THE Alice Springs Cycling Club wrapped up its velodrome season last Thursday, November 13.

The meeting gave riders a final opportunity to fine tune before a contingent of members head to Adelaide to race at the South Australian/Northern Territory titles in December.

Mitchell and Justin Schultz led the night with a superb demonstration of precision and speed.

The night was raced well with the nine and 10-year-old juniors enjoying, and learning from, the experience of mixing it with the older riders.

The well-run races all led to a superb season finale despite a spectacular crash that left no significant injuries, earlier in the night.

For the championships in Adelaide, the dedicated group of riders, officials and parents will travel by bus and a vehicle convoy leaving Alice Springs on Wednesday, December 10, with practice sessions at the velodrome over the following two days before racing which is programmed for December 13 and 14.

On Saturday November 15, a group of club members and friends unveiled a seat built in memory of club member and racer Steve Yates at Corroboree Rock.

Yates died after being struck by a drug-affected driver during a time trial near Simpsons Gap in 2021.

As a tribute, a number of cyclists met early in the morning and made the ride along the Ross Highway to Corroboree Rock and were then joined by others who made the drive to the stunning East Macs location.

Drag racers are optimistic

By Phil Williams

THE Central Australian Drag Racing Association (CADRA) faced a challenging year in 2025, with only two championship rounds and the Desert Nationals being held due to low competitor numbers.

Despite the difficulties, the year saw some close racing on the track and a strong sense of camaraderie among the competitors off the track.

At the CADRA presentation on Sunday, November 16, David Fendt, the Club Volunteer of the Year, expressed optimism for the future.

“We’ve got good facilities, a great club, and committed sponsors, and we’ll push on and do the best we can,” he said.

“We have some good plans for next year.”

The prestigious awards were presented across various categories. Stephen van den Berg was named Bike Rider of the Year, while Brian Moore claimed the Street Bike title. Dean Gunson won the Modified Bike bracket on his bright green Kawasaki, and Immanuel Gillatt took the Junior Bike title.

In the four-wheel categories, Josie Hodgins had a successful season, winning both the Street Car title in her bog standard, straight out of the box HiLux ute and the Super Modified class with the immaculately presented blue racer.

Matt Baney, in his big-block orange Falcon, dominated the Super Street category.

The top honor of CADRA Club Champion was awarded to Dean Gunson, recognizing his outstanding performance throughout the year.

Honkers Orr bust!

ALICE Springs product Ethan Brown won his 10th Group 1 race on board his favourite horse, the Ciaron Maher-trained Jimmystar, in the CF Orr Stakes at Caulfield on Saturday. Now he has his sights set on his international racing debut in search of his 11th Group 1 win on Light Infantry Man in the Hong Kong Vase 2400m at the Hong Kong International Race Meeting at Sha Tin on December 14. Cheering him on in the crowd at Caulfield last Saturday was his biggest fan Marg Simonetto, his former teacher at Our Lady of the Sacred Heart College.
