Fire a 'kick' to race club

A fire at the Tennant Creek Speedway last week caused significant damage to the canteen and race control tower, forcing organisers to cancel the club championships on Saturday night.

The blaze, which is considered suspicious, is being investigated by the NT Police, who have called on the public for information.

The canteen was completely destroyed, with commercial kitchen equipment estimated to be valued at $50,000 destroyed.

The fire also extended to the race control tower on the second floor, causing further damage.

Club president Andrew Kirk said the local racing community was devastated and still coming to terms with the impact the incident would have on the club's future.

"We are a small club of volunteers and we simply don't have the funds to rebuild," Mr Kirk said.

WHEN it launched 75 years ago Alice Springs School of the Air was the first of its kind in the world.

It revolutionised education for children in remote parts of Australia and last week marked its 75th anniversary, celebrating generations of students, teachers, and families who helped shape the "world's biggest classroom."

Where once lessons were conducted just three times a week using one-way radio, today they are delivered through high-speed broadband and satellite technology, allowing students to stay connected to their families and communities while receiving an education.

The school has also evolved as a major tourism attraction, with thousands of visitors learning about its history and innovation each year.

'Worst outbreak'

By Gladys Barreta

THE Northern Territory is experiencing its worst recorded diphtheria outbreak since 1990, with health experts warning that overcrowded housing and limited access to healthcare are making the outbreak harder to control. The Federal Government has committed $7.2 million nationally to help manage the outbreak, which has spread across multiple states. One death is being investigated as potentially linked to the disease.

Diphtheria is a serious bacterial infection that can affect the nose, throat, airways, or skin, and in severe cases, can lead to life-threatening complications.

The Federal funding will be used to provide a surge workforce to administer booster vaccinations and treatments, as well as supporting programs focused on culturally safe communication, community liaison, and public health support.

However, the Pharmacy Guild of Australia wants the Federal Government to fund diphtheria vaccine access in community pharmacies - currently, only those eligible under the National Immunisation Program receive the vaccination at community pharmacies without an administration fee.

The Guild says any cost barrier can deter people from getting vaccinated.

Public Health Medical Officer John Boffa

also highlighted gaps in vaccination coverage for preventable diseases, noting that barriers such as distance, access to clinics, transport, and language can make it difficult for families in remote communities to get vaccinated.

Dr Boffa stressed the importance of community-led, culturally responsive approaches delivered through trusted Aboriginal health services.

The Australian Medical Association is urging people to check that they and their families are up to date with vaccinations, with the increase in cases a reminder of the importance of immunisation.

Cakes to help fight cancer

By Gladys Barreta

SWEET treats, cakes, brownies and biscuits of all kinds were sold to raise money for the Cancer Council as students at Centralian Senior College hosted their own Biggest Morning Tea fundraiser.

Centralian Senior College held its first Biggest Morning Tea event on Thursday, 21 May, raising funds for cancer research and support services.

Around 200 people attended the event, including students, teachers, families and members of the wider community, helping raise nearly $1600 - an amount the school said it was proud to achieve.

Several food classes combined forces to bake up a storm alongside dedicated staff, producing a range of delicious treats for sale.

Senior Operations Manager Jodie Solczaniuk said the idea came after seeing advertising for the fundraiser and wanting to support a cause close to many people's hearts.

"Like most people, I've had personal experiences of losing loved ones to cancer," she said.

"I wanted to try to make a difference and support research and patient advocacy, so I thought involving the whole school in the process would be a great opportunity to do that.

"As individuals we can make a difference, and teaching our students the significance of volunteering and giving back to worthy causes like this is important."

Donations can still be made through the college's fundraising page.

BLEND: Tobius Roa and Elijah Teo making and selling smoothies at their stall.

FUNDRAISE: Ella Adami and Member for Araluen Robyn Lambley at the Morning Tea supporting the cause.

YUM: Sienna Arnold and Imani Kani bought a range of sweet treats at the event.

Worst spate of diphtheria

By Gladys Barreta

THE Northern Territory is experiencing its worst recorded diphtheria outbreak since the disease began being tracked in 1990, with health experts warning overcrowded housing and limited access to healthcare are making the outbreak harder to contain.

The Federal Government has committed $7.2 million nationally to help manage the outbreak, which has spread across the Northern Territory, South Australia, Western Australia and Queensland. There are currently 220 reported cases nationwide.

One death is also being investigated as potentially linked to the disease.

Diphtheria is a serious bacterial infection that can affect the nose, throat, airways or skin. In severe cases, respiratory diphtheria can obstruct breathing and lead to life-threatening complications, including heart and nerve damage.

NT Health Minister Steve Edgington welcomed the federal government's funding package to assist in the response to the diphtheria outbreak.

Of the funding announced, $5.2 million will go to the National Critical Care and Trauma Response Centre to provide a surge workforce to administer booster vaccinations and treatments, while $2 million will support National Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisation programs focused on culturally safe communication, community liaison and public health support.

But the Pharmacy Guild of Australia wants

VAX: Australians are being urged to check diphtheria vaccination status as cases rise nationwide.

the Federal Government to fund diphtheria vaccine access in community pharmacies, saying currently only those eligible under NIPVIP are able to get the vaccination at community pharmacy without an administration fee.

Pharmacy Guild of Australia NT Branch President Peter Hatswell said the government's commitment to 'consider' funding pharmacists to administer the vaccines was not enough.

"When it comes to protecting people from a serious and potentially fatal disease like diphtheria, patients need action now," Mr Hatswell said.

"Any cost barrier, no matter how small, can stop people getting vaccinated, and that's how preventable diseases take hold."

"Patients should not be forced to delay or avoid vaccination because of cost or access issues."

"Community pharmacy can save lives, but only if the system supports it properly."

"If the government is serious about prevention and keeping Australians well, this must be treated as a priority."

"Funding these vaccinations is a practical step that directly benefits patients and strengthens public health."

Public Health Medical Officer at Central Australian Aboriginal Congress, John Boffa, said gaps in vaccination coverage for preventable diseases remained a serious concern.

"For many families in remote communities, there are real barriers to getting vaccinated, including distance, access to clinics, transport and whether health information is reaching people in the right language and in the right way," Dr Boffa said.

"We know childhood immunisation rates are strong in the communities we serve, with greater than 95 per cent coverage in remote areas. But we want young people and young adults to remain alert."

Dr Boffa said overcrowded housing and limited access to healthcare could make outbreaks more difficult to control and warned medical responses directed solely from Darwin or Canberra would not be enough.

"It has to be community-led, culturally responsive and delivered through trusted Aboriginal health services on the ground," he said.

"Clear, culturally safe communication saves lives. People need to understand what diphtheria is, what symptoms to look for, why vaccination matters and where to go for help."

He also said workforce shortages remained a major challenge.

"We need boots on the ground to get ahead of this outbreak, not just with vaccinations but also with case finding, contact tracing and antibiotics where needed," he said.

Minister for Indigenous Australians Marilarri McCarthy said diphtheria was a serious but vaccine-preventable disease.

"If you are unsure whether your vaccinations are up to date, speak to your GP or health clinic," she said.

Assistant Minister for Health and Aged Care Rebecca White acknowledged the role Aboriginal community-controlled health services were playing during the outbreak.

"They are doing an extraordinary job reaching families with culturally safe care and information during this outbreak," she said.

The Australian Medical Association is urging Australians to check they and their families are up to date with vaccinations as cases continue to rise.

AMA President Danielle McMullen said the increase in cases was a reminder of the importance of immunisation.

"When vaccination rates fall, serious diseases that we had largely eliminated can make a comeback," Dr McMullen said.

Vaccination against diphtheria is free under the National Immunisation Program for people under 20 years of age, with booster doses recommended for adults every 10 years.

Championships cancelled: Heartbreak over speedway blaze

A fire at the Tennant Creek Speedway last week caused significant damage to the canteen and race control tower and prompted the cancellation of the club championships on Saturday night.

Club members discovered the damage last Thursday afternoon.

The fire, which is considered suspicious, is being investigated by NT Police who have called on the public for information.

Detectives and fire investigators from Alice Springs examined the scene last Friday.

The canteen was completely destroyed, with commercial kitchen equipment estimated to be valued at $50,000 burnt in the blaze, which also extended to the race control tower on the second floor.

A brand new air conditioner and bar fridge had melted in the heat of the fire and visible cracks have appeared in the brickwork of the building.

Club President Andrew Kirk said the local racing community was devastated.

"There were signs that the building had been unlawfully entered, but we need to wait for the investigation report to reveal how the fire started," he said.

"The speedway has been targeted before however this is by far the worst incident to date and it will have a huge impact on our club into the foreseeable future."

"We are a small club of volunteers and we simply don't have the funds to rebuild."

"The canteen was our main source of income, so it really is a big blow."

The two-storey building was completed less than six years ago as part of a major upgrade to the speedway grounds that included track improvements, allowing for more diverse vehicle classes and event formats.

Mr Kirk said the two-day NT Street Stock Titles held earlier this month that attracted competitors from across Australia - including the nation's top three drivers - was highly praised.

"The feedback we received from other speedway clubs, drivers, spectators and the community exceeded all expectations," he said.

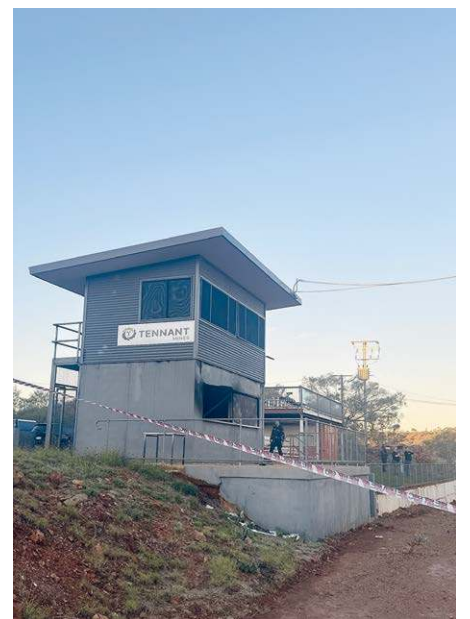

"But now we have essentially been kicked to the ground and it's a bitter disappointment."

Mr Kirk said the area had now been secured by local contractors and the clean up would start as soon as possible.

NT Police believe the fire at the premises on Kaczinsky Road occurred between Tuesday and Thursday last week.

A spokesperson said the fire-resistant construction materials of the canteen appeared to have contained the fire, however the interior was totally destroyed.

Investigations are ongoing and police urge anyone with information or CCTV/dashcam footage to contact 131 444 or report anonymously via Crime

Heat from the blaze destroyed the race control tower.

Ribbon cut to open centre

THE new Alice Springs Visitor Information Centre (VIC) was opened with a ribbon-cutting ceremony last Friday, 22 May.

The former archive storage area at the Alice Springs Library has been transformed into a new tourism VIC offering visitors a better experience when seeking information on planning their travels through Central Australia.

The new centre facing Leichardt Terrace boasts a bright and airy open plan with a large reception area for visitors to sit down and speak with consultants and TCA staff as they obtain information about the region and how to plan their visit.

Situated opposite the VIC, a large parking area has easy access for caravans and motor homes making accessibility for travellers much easier.

There is also a full range of tourism brochures highlighting Central Australia along with a comprehensive array of souvenirs and merchandise.

Tourism Central Australia CEO, Danial Rochford said the new centre was a massive improvement on the previous location in Todd Mall.

"This such a special moment for TCA, he said.

"To see what was a conversation, a vision of a few years ago, come to reality today is so amazing for our tourism industry, for our organisation and our beautiful town of Alice Springs.

"We've noticed already, visitors parking across the road, coming directly across to the centre, making that welcome to Alice Springs, that first moment people touch our town, a memorable one."

NT Government Minister and Member for Braitling, Joshua Burgoyne said the new centre delivers on the vision for Tourism Central Australia.

"To now see it come to fruition, it really does deliver on that vision for Tourism Central Australia."

NT Treasurer, and Member for Namatjira, Bill Yan said it was an exciting time for TCA.

"It's going to be really exciting times for TCA, and also really exciting times for Central Australia and Alice Springs."

Visiting from Perth, Sharron Attwood said the new centre was easy to access and welcoming.

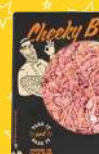

"The staff were friendly and the large range of information available made planning my visit easy," she said.

Plug in to electric rail

FREIGHT is the lifeblood of the Centre and North.

Road trains haul essential goods to remote corners across black top and dirt, and freight trains rattle the roughly 3000-kilometre steel track from Adelaide to Darwin and back to deliver their cargoes.

But without diesel they wouldn't budge. Even tourists travelling the Ghan are unable to ride our vast deserts without diesel-electric motors to pull their luxury carriages.

Australia consumes up to 25 billion litres of diesel annually for freight alone.

How much longer can this go on? The US war in Iran and crisis in the Straits of Hormuz have severely disrupted fossil-fuel supply chains; fuel is scarce, forcing up the price.

Worse, we are reliant on importing what we need: Australia's oil industry has downsized over the past decade, and our government must now comb SE Asia and elsewhere for alternative suppliers.

Unsustainable federal subsidies are currently offered to help consumers to help meet the cost of diesel and other fuels.

Then there's the climate. In a world apparently still set to decarbonise, we must start asking if imported fossil fuel is something we can no longer afford.

Australian rail freight operator Aurizon Holdings Limited is trialing a 1.8 MWh "battery electric tender" (BET) in a bid to develop rail with lower carbon emissions.

In March 2024, the Australian Renewable Energy Agency granted Aurizon $9.4 million to develop the BET, basically a massive battery-pack on wheels designed to couple with existing locomotives to form a hybrid power pack.

Part of the aim is to capture regenerative energy when a train is braking and on downhill travel.

In the right terrain, a descending train can switch its motors into generator mode, capturing the momentum that would be otherwise lost as heat, and use it to recharge the batteries.

In fact, electric motors are able to transfer about 95 per cent of their energy to the wheels, while diesel engines waste some 70per cent of their fuel's energy as heat, estimates suggesting hybrid systems might provide half of the required power on commercial haulage routes.

In October 2025, Aurizon conducted a trial of a BET on Alcona's Kwinana to Pinjarra route in Western Australia.

Latest reports suggest detailed design of locomotive modifications, battery containers and charging infrastructure are all progressing with the BET now expected to be rolling sometime later this year.

In 2024, the Australian Renewable Energy Agency granted Aurizon $9.4 million to develop the BET. (AURIZON/Graphic of proposed Battery Electric Tender)

Elsewhere, mining giants like BHP and Fortescue are trialing purpose-built electric locomotives, or BELs, designed to withstand extreme heat. Indeed, some mining trains in the Pilbara now run on the largest mobile battery every built, and without having to burn diesel, all in a bid to slash costly fuel use and emissions.

And if you were wondering where would all the overhead powerlines spring from to feed these electric trains, Fortescue's new electric locomotives carry 14.5MWh packs to do so, and haul ore across unelectrified stretches.

In the Territory, successfully managing extreme heat is the greatest hurdle.

Lithium-ion batteries perform best around 25C, but Top End and Centre temperatures frequently push 40C and more, meaning top-notch cooling systems would be needed to prevent fire and battery damage.

This alone could consume up to 20 per cent of the train's energy on a hot day, and that's without considering the hefty capital cost of charging hubs.

Nonetheless, experts say the long-term economic case appears compelling.

For example, swapping diesel for solar power on the admittedly less climatically brutal Melbourne to Sydney corridor could save $40m annually in fuel.

But the argument is not only about cost. As recent global events dictate, it's also about energy independence, and a transition to electric rail could dramatically reduce our vulnerability to international fuel supply disruptions.

For the tourism sector, also, the benefits are equally clear.

The Ghan uses an estimated 40,000 liters of diesel to complete the 2979 km journey across the Centre from Darwin to Adelaide.

While there are currently no plans that we know of for the Ghan to go electric, just imagine riding a whisper-quiet Ghan train powered by the very sun that tourists come to see in the Red Centre.

Much of Australia's locomotive fleet is reportedly due for replacement during the next decade: Why wait until 2030 or 2040 to begin?

The time to kick-start a decarbonised future for the Centre and North is now.

We have sun and technology, all we need is the courage to plug them in.

Getting Good Stuff Done

Creative paths for storytelling

By Gladys Barreta

STICK Mob Studio wants to bring young Indigenous writers and illustrators together with established creatives to develop skills and showcase work grounded in Country and language.

Through a First Nations youth-led storytelling festival for young people aged 12 to 26, the initiative hopes to build confidence and create more creative opportunities for young people in Alice Springs.

The idea for the storytelling festival came from Stick Mob Studio, which works closely with a publisher based in Perth.

Stick Mob co-director Declan Miller said there were few creative events in Central Australia focused on pop culture and storytelling in the same way as major conventions such as Comic-Con.

"It scratches that itch of quintessential storytelling," Mr Miller said.

"The idea was to bring people we've met through our adventures outside Alice Springs back here to work with us and help create a festival."

Through the Mparntwe Alice Springs Community Foundation give2give initiative, Stick Mob received $5,000 in funding to help bring the concept to life.

Currently, Stick Mob is working with the Australian Anthropological Society (AAS) to deliver an exhibition in mid-June this year.

The exhibition theme is "Place", with Stick Mob exploring storytelling through digital mapping and virtual reality as part of the studio's next step into new forms of creative expression.

The group is also collaborating with artist Felix Meier to develop a 10-metre projection animation titled Heron's Way.

"AAS' theme is place, and we wanted to showcase place through stories of growing up in Central Australia," Mr Miller said.

"We wanted to tell stories of the serpent and the herons, and the serpent moving through Country."

"Storytelling-wise, we wanted to create an animation of the serpent moving through Country and telling a story."

Stick Mob is also planning public workshops in August that will allow participants to explore storytelling through VR technology.

"This is important because it's a new way of expressing yourself through technology," Mr Miller said.

"Having funding to support something like this is super important."

"Another big thing for Stick Mob is upskilling."

Seraphina Newberry, Alyssa Mason, Declan Miller, Wendy Cowan and Racey at a Stick Mob studio digital storytelling workshop.

This is a highly specialised skill set, so working with Felix and learning how it all works is really valuable because it can be quite daunting."

Mr Miller said the workshops would help gauge community interest ahead of the planned storytelling festival next year.

The festival is expected to feature multiple workshops running simultaneously, including comic book workshops, art sessions and storytelling activities.

Mr Miller said the give2give initiative had played an important role in helping artists and community groups turn ideas into reality.

"Having that breathing room to put key things in place for hosting something like this is so great for us here in Alice Springs," he said.

"This is a great opportunity for the Mparntwe Alice Springs Community Foundation to work with us to help make this happen."

JOURNEY: Phil Burke, Brenton Whittenbury and Chris Ferguson at Beltana driving the 100 Year Re-enactment of the 1926 Overland Crossing from Adelaide to Darwin and back.

VEHICLE: The two original 1926 Studebaker vehicles recreating the 7,000km transcontinental journey from Adelaide to Darwin and back.

Old Studebakers’ epic trek

By Gladys Barreta

THE journey celebrating Judd and Bagot and the fellow pioneers behind Australia’s first commercial transcontinental motor tour will soon arrive in Alice Springs, marking 100 years since the iconic 7000km journey along rough bush tracks from Adelaide to Darwin and back.

In May 1926, principal of Bagot’s Northern Territory Motor Tours, Captain Edward Bagot, and South Australian businessman Clarence Judd were among 12 paying passengers who took part in the historic tour.

Now, exactly 100 years later, a group of 10 enthusiasts has set off to retrace the journey, which began on 18 May 2026.

Organisers Brenton Taylor and Brenton Whittenbury are following the original route across remote tracks and cattle stations. The group is expected to arrive in Central Australia later this month and will host a public fundraising event in Alice Springs on Sunday, 31 May 2026.

Mr Whittenbury said the group is expected to arrive in Alice Springs on 30 May, with the outback scenery already proving to be one of the highlights of the trip.

“We’re currently driving around 200 kilometres a day, camping at free camp spots on some stretches to Alice Springs, while staying in caravan parks on other nights,” he said.

“The vehicles have gone very well, with only one breakdown so far after one of the radiator fan blades failed.

“We managed to get that repaired in Copley.

“The outback scenery has to be the highlight. It’s beautiful and green, and travelling in the old cars, meeting friendly people along the way and raising money for the RFDS has all been incredible.”

Mr Whittenbury said the group was looking forward to spending time in Alice Springs.

“We’re very much looking forward to getting to Alice Springs, where we’ll spend a rest day,” he said.

“We’ll stay for two nights and we’re following the Overland Telegraph route, which is exactly what they did 100 years ago.”

Residents will have the opportunity to view the historic vehicles and support the Royal Flying Doctor Service during the Alice Springs stopover.

Following a private tour of RFDS Central Operations, the historic Studebaker vehicles will be displayed at the Women’s Museum of Australia at the Old Alice Springs Gaol from noon-4pm on Sunday, 31 May.

Call out to cattle stations

CATTLE stations across Central Australia are being invited to participate in the Northern Territory's first Virtual Emergency Care Trial for pastoralists, helping connect patients directly with clinicians 24/7.

The Royal Flying Doctor Service SA/NT is seeking expressions of interest from eligible cattle stations to take part in the upcoming Virtual Emergency Care Trial, which is set to commence in September.

Delivered in partnership with the Northern Territory Cattlemen's Association, NT Health's Medical Retrieval and Consultation Centre (MRaCC) and the Remote Outreach Consultation Centre (ROCC), the trial will equip selected cattle stations with portable virtual health technology, allowing patients to access clinicians around the clock.

The trial aims to deploy portable "virtual care backpacks" and fixed "virtual care cabinet" systems, reducing reliance on fixed clinics.

The telehealth technology combines video consultations, on-site diagnostic equipment and essential medications that can be used at home-steads or out in the field, allowing on-call doctors to assess critically ill patients in real time from hundreds of kilometres away.

Portable diagnostic tools include an infrared thermometer, HD examination camera, blood pressure monitor, pulse oximeter, electrocardiogram (ECG) and glucometer, all capable of transmitting high-quality images and clinical data directly to on-call doctors.

Stations in the Barkly and Central Australia regions with access to an NT Health Emergency Medical Kit, known as the "white box", are invited to express their interest before 5 June.

NTCA Chief Executive Officer, Romy Carey said the Virtual Emergency Care program would provide reassurance for remote workers spending long periods in stock camps.

"We're essentially going to have an emergency department in a backpack, and I know that it's going to bring a lot of reassurance for those who travel out in stock camps for weeks on end," Ms Carey said.

"It means we're confident when we're sending our people out that we've got the best care available for them during those long, hot and demanding days."

RFDS Virtual Emergency Care Manager Caz Mason said the model had already proven successful in outback South Australia, where the $2 million centre has reportedly saved two lives and prevented multiple aeromedical retrievals and hospitalisations since opening in 2024.

"For Territorians living and working on cattle stations, the nearest medical help can be hundreds of kilometres away and access to timely emergency care is often a matter of life and death," Ms Mason said.

"Using video, satellite internet, diagnostic tools and essential medications, clinicians can assess, treat and monitor critically ill patients hundreds of kilometres away long before an aeromedical team can arrive."

MRaCC and Central Australian Retrieval Service Director Dan Adams said the technology would strengthen emergency response capabilities across remote regions.

"Being able to see the patient in real time, review diagnostic information and guide treatment remotely can make a critical difference in those early stages of care," Dr Adams said.

The RFDS will invest more than $200,000 in hardware and software for the pilot program, alongside significant in-kind support through IT advisory and system integration funded through community fundraising.

Eight stations will be selected to take part in the pilot program.

Stations in the Barkly and Central Australia regions with access to an NT Health Emergency

Medical Kit ('white box') are invited to express their interest via the RFDS website at flyingdoctor.org.au/sant/nt-vec-trial/

TRIAL: The Royal Flying Doctor Service is now seeking expressions of interest from eligible cattle stations to participate in its upcoming Virtual Emergency Care Trial.

Thank you

I would like to extend a special thank you to all the volunteers, local and interstate, who gave their time and efforts during the search for Kumanjaya Little Baby. I also want to say a special thank you to our local businesses and organisations who banded together to provide so much support for our community. These groups are still doing so much for all of us, but especially the family.

Our hearts may be broken but the love and dedication that was clear for all to see during the search showcases what makes Alice Springs such a special town.

Cash splash Kings Canyon

WATARRKA National Park will receive a major water storage upgrade with $7.76 million in funding aimed at strengthening water security at the popular tourism destination of Kings Canyon.

The project, expected to be completed by April, will replace two ageing 180-kilolitre fibreglass water storage tanks with two new one-megalitre glass-fused steel potable water tanks at Kings Canyon Resort.

The upgrade will increase treated water storage capacity from 360 kilolitres to two megalitres which is more than five times the current capacity.

The storage system services both Kings Canyon Resort and the Watarrka Health Centre, with the new tanks expected to help maintain reliable water supply during peak tourism periods, high visitation and scheduled maintenance.

Power and Water Corporation has awarded Territory business Exact Contracting the contract to deliver the project.

Minister for Essential Services Steve Edgington said the upgrade would support future growth in the region.

“Watarrka National Park is one of the Northern Territory’s most iconic tourism destinations, and this investment is about making sure infrastructure can support future growth in the region,” Mr Edgington said.

“By more than quintupling treated water storage capacity, we’re strengthening water security for the resort, local services and the thousands of visitors who experience Watarrka each year.

“Projects like this provide certainty for continued tourism investment and regional development over the next 20 years.”

Belonging through music

By Gladys Barreta

PERSIAN musical phenomenon Tara Tiba will headline this year's Big Day Out in Harmony, bringing stories of migration, identity and belonging to Central Australia's biggest multicultural celebration.

The annual event will be held on 30 May at the Alice Springs Town Council lawns, celebrating the theme "Everyone Belongs" through music, dance, food and cultural activities.

Now in its 27th year, Big Day Out in Harmony attracts thousands of people each year and will feature 25 cultural performances representing at least 24 cultures, with 228 performers taking part, including multicultural drummers and a multicultural choir.

Manager of Multicultural Community Services of Central Australia, Apajok Biar, said the festival celebrated the diversity that makes Alice Springs unique.

"Mparntwe/Alice Springs is so rich in diversity, and that can be seen in our food, culture and community," Ms Biar said.

Alice Springs Mayor, Asta Hill said the event had become a cherished part of the community calendar.

"Big Day Out in Harmony is a wonderful celebration of the diversity that makes Mparntwe/Alice Springs such a vibrant and connected community," Mayor Hill said.

The message that 'Everyone Belongs' is one that strongly resonates with Council because building an inclusive community where people feel welcomed, valued and connected is incredibly important."

Born and raised in Tehran and now based in Perth, Ms Tiba has earned international recognition for blending Persian classical traditions with jazz, Latin and contemporary influences.

As a female singer in Iran, she was denied the right to perform publicly before relocating to Australia and building an acclaimed international career. Her album OMID received an ARIA Award nomination and praise for its blend of storytelling and music.

"I'm excited to come to Alice Springs because it seems like a special place with a special nature," Ms Tiba said.

Following the festival, Ms Tiba will also host a free workshop, Stories & Song: Introduction to Persian Music, at MusicNT on 1 June.

Prior to its establishment on 8 June 1951, children living on remote cattle stations and in small communities across Central Australia had little to no access to regular schooling.

The school recently celebrated its 75th anniversary, marking a milestone in remote education and recognising generations of students, teachers, families and governesses who helped shape the “world’s biggest classroom.”

Students and staff celebrated the occasion with the launch of a new short film and the unveiling of a special anniversary artwork by local artist Shane Forrester.

Today, lessons are delivered through high-speed broadband and satellite technology from seven digital studios, with students taking part in three live lessons a day covering subjects including English, Maths, Science, the Arts and Physical Education.

Principal Kerrie Russell said the school had allowed generations of children to access education while remaining connected to home and community.

"As the world's first School of the Air, to still be going strong and to know the impact it has had on students around the world is amazing," Ms Russell said.

“A lot of the students love their life at home and being able to offer school this way allows them to stay connected to family and Country while still receiving an education.”

The school currently has around 85 students from across Central Australia and parts

Soaring journey of connection

WHEN Helen's beloved father passes away, she is overtaken by grief and loses herself in memories of their time birding and exploring the natural world together.

She becomes obsessed with the idea of training her own goshawk, and so she brings the fearsome bird Mabel home to Cambridge with her.

Ready to embark on the arduous process of trying to train the wildest of animals, Helen fills the freezer with hawk food and turns off her phone.

But as she labors to teach Mabel how to hunt and fly free on her own, Helen uncovers how neglected her own emotions and life have become.

Based on a true story and a memoir of the same name, H IS FOR HAWK is a soaring journey of the connection between people and nature, and how it might be possible to reconcile loss through love.

"The whole movie renders similar to a nature documentary: a brutal yet beautiful showing of the natural order of things. With a hawk comes the hunt, and with life comes death." - Kayla Torres, Exclaim!

"A profoundly moving and utterly engaging cinematic metaphoric meditation on mourning and the transitory nature of life and nature, itself." - Jennifer Merin, AWFJ.org

10 Things I Hate About You

Doing it for the love

By Gladys Barreta

FROM a small yellow shed to a thriving storefront in Todd Mall, the Uniting Church Op Shop has grown over the past 20 years and alongside it every step of the way has been Mieme Dry.

Mieme is the op shop's longest-serving volunteer, marking 20 years this year of pouring love, time and care into a place she says feels like family.

Last Tuesday, 19 May, at the DoubleTree by Hilton, Mieme was announced as this year's Northern Territory Volunteer of the Year, recognising her outstanding contribution to the community.

Although she has climbed the stairs to her unit every day for years, Mieme laughed as she recalled freezing with nerves when called to the stage.

"There were only three steps, but I got so nervous and surprised I couldn't walk up them," she said.

"They ended up helping me up the stairs by holding my hand.

"I didn't expect it at all. I thought maybe there would be an acknowledgement, but not this award."

This highlights Mieme's big heart, selflessness and magic in the love she gives through her volunteering and life.

Mieme began volunteering at the op shop in 2006, back when it operated from what locals remember as the yellow shed.

"It was so small. We had to pull shelves outside, and if it got hotter than 36 degrees, we couldn't work because it was too hot in the shed," she said.

"I loved that little shop, but I also love where we are now."

From starting on once a day, Mieme eventually started picking up more shifts, covering other volunteers and their leave - all because for the love of it.

"To do something and not get paid for it... it's the feeling that makes me happy," she said.

"I belong to the Uniting Church and after coming back from a holiday in Ireland back in 2026, I got bored and thought I needed to give something back to the country."

Mieme moved to Alice Springs from South Africa in 2003 and became an Australian citizen in 2008.

"Australia has been so good to me," she said.

"It's lovely to work in the op shop, meet people and make friends."

Mieme said one of the most rewarding parts of volunteering was helping people in need.

"If somebody comes in and tells us they need something, we go above and beyond to try and find it for them," she said.

"Even though I don't always know the customer's names all the time, I'll see people around town and I'll say hello because we will all remember each other.

"It's so nice to help people and this shop allows us to do that."

She credited the wider volunteer team for creating a welcoming environment.

"Without all the people working there and our mentors, we wouldn't be doing what we do," she said.

"We all get along so nicely. You can work with anybody... it's lovely."

Another long-time volunteer recognised alongside Mieme is Jenny Neil, who has also volunteered for around 20 years.

Jenny said she started helping out when the op shop was still operating from the church hall.

"It was quite exciting to be nominated," she said.

"MieMe and I have both spent years communicating with people coming into the op shop. There have been lots of stories over the years, and it's a good feeling knowing you're doing something good."

"I love volunteering and helping around the church, whether it's hosting morning teas or working in the op shop. MieMe and I get along well together, and I love connecting with the community."

The Garden Guru

Geoff Miers

Magnificent composters

WORM are the world's best recyclers and now is the ideal time to set up a farm as they are about to breed prolifically as the temperatures drop.

Establishing a worm farm at home now will see you quickly rewarded with an exploding population and before long enjoying the benefits as liquid worm fertiliser can be drained and worm castings collected and introduced into the garden.

With worms producing the best organic fertiliser known to mankind, it makes sense that every gardener should have a worm farm.

Worms are only matched by fish poo for the title of best natural organic fertiliser.

A worm farm allows for the recycling of all organic kitchen waste products, will provide a weekly quantity of liquid fertiliser, will produce the best organic fertiliser and will supply the home gardener with quantities of fantastic soil conditioner.

All my kitchen waste including green waste, coffee grounds and tea bags and all my newspapers go into the worm farm, although I leave out citrus peel, meat products and onion waste.

Worms are nature's own recyclers.

Worms eat their own weight in organic matter every 24-26 hours and each worm can produce 4.5kg of castings a year.

These castings contain five times more nitrogen, seven times more phosphorus, 11 times more potash, three times the exchangeable magnesium, 1.5 times more calcium and 40 per cent more humus than is present in the topsoil they are feeding on.

Worm castings are the most perfect plant food or manure known to man.

Several options of keeping worms are available for the home gardener.

Purchase a readymade stand-alone worm farm or make your own, introduce a worm composting bucket into the vegetable patch or simply introduce worms into a nutrient rich section of the garden.

The simplest method of breeding worms is to either purchase a worm farm or make your own.

A commercial worm farm costs from $100 to $165 plus the cost of the worms.

The commercial worm farm has the advantage of being compact, neat and tidy, hygienic and takes up little room and it is easy to collect the liquid residue that can immediately be used as a liquid fertiliser.

You can of course make your own worm farm at little or no cost.

I've seen many weird and wonderful designs using compost bins, polystyrene boxes, drums, sinks, baths and timber constructed frames.

A bath or sink makes for an ideal worm farm as with the drainage hole any liquid waste from the worms can easily drain into a container placed below.

They are also large enough to accommodate the necessary 3000 plus worms required to have a successful immediately highly productive worm farm.

My worms are housed in a bath that is supported by a stand, so it sits a metre off the ground - this saves the back.

A small square of shade cloth covers the bath plug hole so worms don't escape, and I used a peat brick soaked in water to produce a bucket of material to place the worms in.

On top I immediately placed vegetable scraps surrounded by cow manure.

Worms love fresh cow manure and will quite quickly turn it into amazing fertiliser.

Actually, once your worm population reaches 3000 worms their population will increase dramatically and the production of liquid

WORMS: Children with hands full of worms at a STEM gardening event in Alice Springs. (Phil Williams: 506656)

You can buy a variety of worm farms, or create your own.

Experts suggest starting with 100-500 worms, which will multiply quickly.

uid fertiliser and solid castings is rapid.

It's actually amazing how quickly 100 worms will multiply into the 3000 worms you need to readily supply you with your garden needs.

Most information suggests you start with 500 or 1000 worms or more so your population builds up quickly.

Your worm farm should be placed in a warm but lightly to moderately shaded location (eg: under a citrus tree/verandah) and if using a sink or bath tilt slightly to ensure the liquid residue drains easily.

Elevate the worm farm to ensure ease of collecting the liquid fertiliser and limit pest and disease problems that could impact on the worms' health.

I cover my worm farm with an old towel to moderate temperature variations and to limit the potential of the top layer drying out.

Periodically I have to replace the towel, as the worms when hungry will quickly eat it.

Old cloths and newspapers placed on top of the worm farm insulate the worm farm, prevent it from drying out and provides another source of food.

Carpet under-felt, towels, old clothes, shredded paper, pea straw or a layer of soft leaves can all be used as a protective cover.

Any product used should not have plastic or polyester material in it.

You must keep your worm farm medium moist as worms resent dry soil and will quickly die in a dry situation.

Ants can also be a problem.

Place large tins under the legs of your worm farm and fill them weekly with water to prevent ants invading the farm.

Alternatively, place thick grease around the legs of the worm stand to prevent ants, slaters and other pests invading your worm farm.

Most commercial worm farms fail due to ants invading, the farm being over-exposed to sunlight or to simply the gardeners' neglect with respect to keeping the farm moist and providing enough food for the worms.

Worms are ravenous feeders and need to be regularly fed.

They eat kitchen food scraps, tea leaves, spent coffee, shredded paper, straw, cow manure and the contents of the vacuum cleaner.

With a good diet you can produce with little effort the best fertiliser known and reduce what would otherwise be going to the landfill.

By mulching and regularly feeding the worms they will breed and continuously produce nutrients for the garden.

Earthworms, like all living creatures, need to eat and they are prolific eaters and it is on the organic matter/mulch that you supply that they will gourmandise themselves.

Demand for gruelling race

By Gladys Barreta

THE 2026 West Macs Monster has once again drawn huge crowds, with demand to take part in the gruelling race continuing to grow each year.

This year's West Macs Monster saw 573 runners from across Australia take part across all race distances.

It was the first time the event sold out across every category.

Of the 24 runners who started the 231km Ekistica Sonder Monster, 10 completed the gruelling course, with Mathieu Pangrazzi claiming victory for the second time in just over 45 hours.

Victoria Cole set a new female course record in the CrossFit Alice Springs 25km Simpson Monster.

Thomas Giles from the Northern Territory won the Ekistica 128km Ellery Monster in 21 hours, while Julian Hocking took out the Verstand Group 65km Standley Monster in a time of 7:56:17.

Jonathan Lanyon won the RFDS 25km Simpson Monster in 2:39:55, while Daniel Donaldson claimed victory in the CrossFit Alice Springs 25km Simpson Monster in 2:13:15. Both runners are from the Northern Territory.

More than 200 volunteers supported the event this year. Despite wet conditions creating difficult terrain for runners, there were no serious injuries reported.

The finish line festival on Sunday attracted more than 12,000 people throughout the day, with crowds enjoying food vendors, entertainment and celebrations at the finish line precinct.

Event Director Simon Duke said it was exciting to see the event continue to grow in its eighth year.

"We've had not only the highest participation ever, but also an incredible community spirit shown by volunteers, runners and support crews," he said.

"We still need to do the detailed calculations, but we estimate the economic impact to be around $1.5 million for Central Australia."

Mr Duke said the event's popularity continued to grow each year, with entries selling out around eight months in advance.

"The Larapinta Trail is an iconic location, and with the atmosphere, medical support and volunteers, it's definitely become a bucket-list event for many runners," he said.

Nursing a grudge: Douglas Henshall, Sharon Rooney, Meera Syal and Martin Compston in The Revenge Club.

Payback time

Best known for his role as Shetland's DI Jimmy Perez, Douglas Henshall takes a walk on the wrong side of the law for BritBox thriller The Revenge Club, where a series of vengeful pranks escalate into murder. By Siobhan Duck

IF THEY say revenge is a dish best served cold, Douglas Henshall's first day on the set of The Revenge Club was a frozen solid five-star feast.

Far from the sprawling, hi-tech trailers Hollywood stars luxuriate in between takes, Henshall was cooped up in the claustrophobic caravan that his character, Steve Williams, has begrudgingly called home since his divorce. The atmosphere offered more gritty realism than any actor truly craves.

"Our unit base was in a sanitation place, so when you opened the door in the morning, the faint smell of s--- hit you in the face," Henshall laughs wryly, dispelling any notion that acting is always inherently glamorous.

"And that was the luxury for that day, you know? There were potholes all over the unit that filled up with water, and you're trying to kind of step your way from make-up and costume to go and get your breakfast."

He jokes that there were some mornings, while sipping a tepid cup of tea and watching the rain lash against the window – all while catching his reflection in a make-up mirror under unforgiving harsh lighting – that he thought to himself: "Oh god, what am I doing?"

After almost 40 years in the industry, Henshall is no stranger to the grind. And thankfully, he didn't get into the acting game looking for glitz and glamour.

"I didn't even know that people from Barrhead were allowed to be actors," he jokes of growing up in the former industrial hub, just outside of Glasgow.

"I didn't know if that was something that they let you do because I didn't know anybody who did that. I didn't have any frame of reference."

Despite the lack of local role models, Henshall decided to roll the dice and audition for drama school.

"I think if I'd been rejected a few times, then I'd have been put off," he shrugs.

"But I got offered a place at the very first place I auditioned for, and so because I didn't expect to get in anywhere, I just kind of went, 'Oh, well, I'll do that then.'"

Henshall knew quickly he'd made the right decision, noting: "I remember feeling so comfortable sitting in an empty theatre, and then equally comfortable sitting on a stage with a full theatre, that I just thought there must be something in this."

Even though he felt like acting was something he both loved and was good at doing, he still suffers from a huge amount of imposter syndrome, even now.

"I watch a lot of young actors who are so confident in their own abilities and what they expect from the world, and I think: 'Great. Good for you', because I don't and didn't have that," he admits.

"I love the way that the business has progressed in that way. But also, I still go on to every job thinking, 'Oh god, this might be the one where I get found out.'"

It's hard to imagine why Henshall could have any sort of self-doubt, given his proven skill at playing stoic everyman characters has landed him gigs on Murder is Easy, Outlander and, of course, Shetland.

As Shetland's Jimmy Perez for seven seasons, Henshall was the beloved crime drama's reliable moral centre. In The Revenge Club, he gets to have fun wading into far more ambiguous terrain.

"I think the best thing about human beings is the fallibility and the vulnerability," he says.

"Regardless of who you're playing, whether it's the supposed good person or the supposed bad person. I think one of the things that I loved about Gabbie Asher's script was the fact that all of these people were fallible."

"None of them were all good or bad... I think anybody would be able to watch that, and if they're being honest, would be able to recognise a little bit of themselves both good and ill."

The series, which reunites him with his In Plain Sight co-star Martin Compston, follows six strangers who conspire to make their exes suffer while attending a support group for divorcés.

Henshall plays a cuckolded returned soldier who, after his wife leaves him for another man, sets up shop in a caravan outside his former marital home.

Even though he didn't get a lot of time to do research – with filming beginning just days after he first read the script and signed on – Henshall quickly surmised Steve was a man struggling to adapt to life without the structure of the military.

The public response to his portrayal of The Revenge Club's broken and complicated Steve has been both a "blessing and a curse" for Henshall.

"There's a couple of newspapers that have talked about me being almost unrecognisable in The Revenge Club," he sighs of the role being a departure from his previous work.

"And so, it means that I literally have to start over every time, because I don't play the same thing."

"I might play a policeman often, but they're not same policeman. And because you play a variety of different roles, it means that people don't know what box to put you in, which is nice in one way, but in another way, it's like you have to start over every single time and prove yourself every single time."

Despite the challenges of pursuing variety, Henshall hasn't let that put him off and he's following up The Revenge Club with a role in the upcoming suburban whodunnit, Forever Home (based on Graham Norton's novel) and a part in a Bollywood film, USA V/s Raj.

His work has taken him all over the world, although sadly not to Australia (yet). But with a 10-year-old daughter, Henshall is always delighted when he gets to film closer to home. He got that with The Revenge Club, which filmed on location in Ireland, allowing him to get home at weekends to enjoy time with his family.

While on set though, The Revenge Club became something of a tight-knit family for the Scottish actor too.

"When you find yourself, at the age of 59, dancing somewhere at 2am with people from your cast, it's a good sign," the now 60-year-old smiles of working with actors such as Compston, Slow Horses' Aimee-Ffion Edwards and The Kumars' Meera Syal.

"I don't know what it was about our group, but from day one, we got on like a house on fire."

"I don't think I've laughed quite that much in almost longer than I can remember."

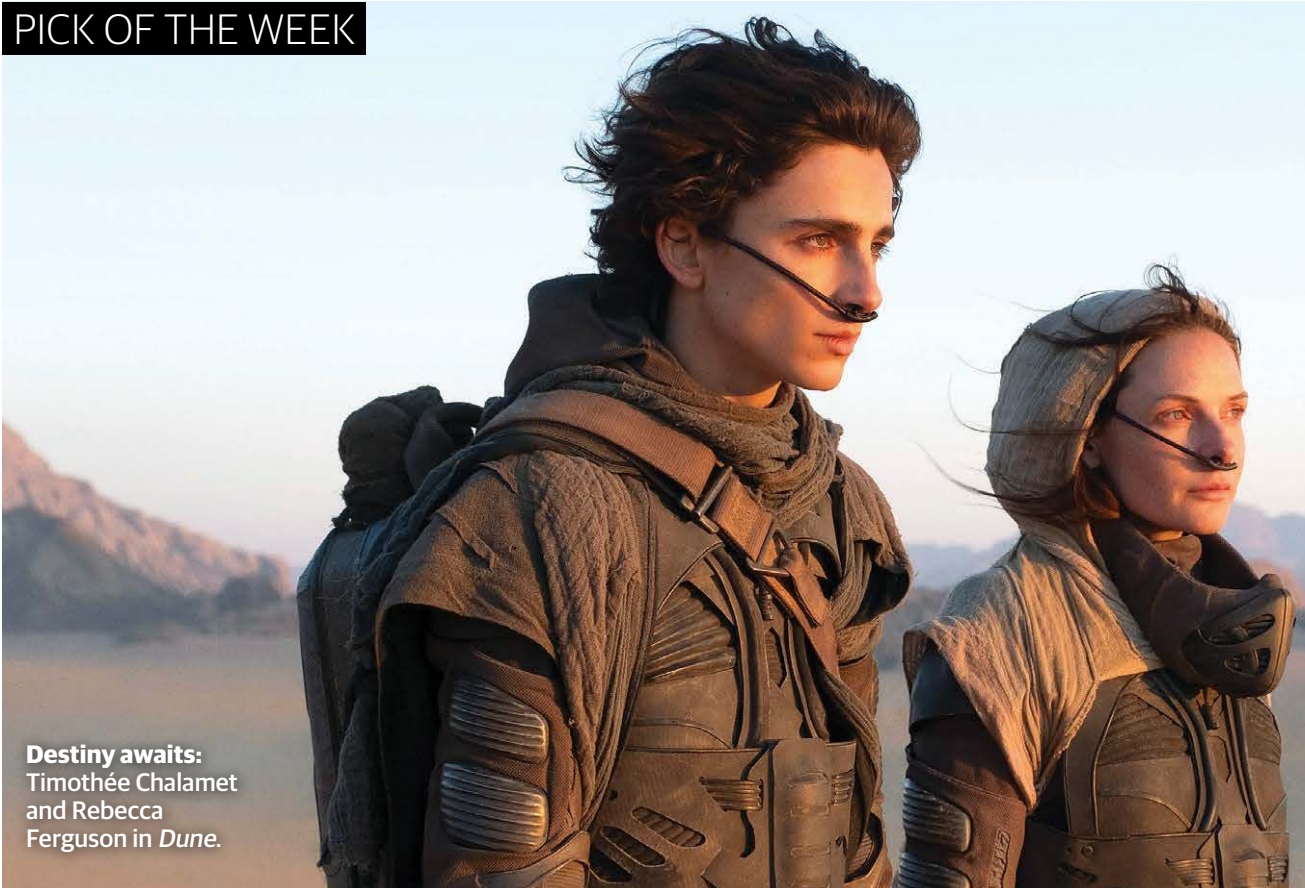

"We had a ball, and the crew that we had were just the best fun. I used to go golfing on days off with our transport crew. I think I was the youngest person there, but I was probably also about the worst golfer."

PICK OF THE WEEK

Destiny awaits:
Timothée Chalamet
and Rebecca
Ferguson in Dune.

Saturday
DUNE
Imparja, 7pm, M (2021)

At first glance, Dune looks like Star Wars meets Mad Max, but in fact, Frank Herbert's 1965 source material was one of the first novels to establish the science fiction tropes that we know today. From Alien to 2001: A Space Odyssey, there's no shortage of works influenced by the seminal interstellar epic. This superb adaptation from Denis Villeneuve focuses on themes of colonisation and politics as Paul (Timothée Chalamet), the teenage heir to his father's fiefdom, wrestles with his destiny amid the breakout of war on the desert planet Arrakis. Also starring Rebecca Ferguson, Oscar Isaac, Jason Momoa and Zendaya, it's a faithful interpretation that was worth the wait. ★★★★★

STORM BOY
NITV, Friday, 7.30pm, PG (2019)

This 2019 remake of the 1976 classic (itself an adaptation of the children's book by Colin Thiele) is a treat for lovers of Aussie cinema. After a retired businessman (Geoffrey Rush) starts to see images from his past that he can't explain, he is forced to remember his childhood and how, as a boy, he rescued and raised an extraordinary orphaned pelican called Mr Percival. Finn Little (pictured) stars as the titular character, alongside Jai Courtney and Erik Thompson. Warmly recommended. ★★★★★

THE DA VINCI CODE
7mate, Friday, 8pm, M (2006)

Ron Howard does a fine job distilling Dan Brown's sprawling novel into an intricately plotted Hollywood thriller. Tom Hanks (pictured with Audrey Tautou as cryptographer Sophie) assumes the role of symbolologist Robert Langdon, whose investigations into a perplexing murder inside the Louvre take him around the globe. Langdon is drawn into the nefarious dealings of secret religious societies while unravelling a centuries-old conspiracy embedded in the works of Leonardo da Vinci. ★★★★★

O BROTHER, WHERE ART THOU?
SBS World Movies, Saturday, 8.30pm, M (2000)

Joel and Ethan Coen (Fargo, No Country for Old Men) reiterate their knack for defying genre classification with another unique slice of Americana. Part comedy, part musical and part fable, this gem is loosely based on Homer's The Odyssey. Plucky narcissist Ulysses (George Clooney) leads two dim-witted Mississippi chain-gang convicts (John Turturro and Tim Blake Nelson, both pictured with Clooney, right) to freedom in search of treasure and his favourite brand of hair grease. ★★★★★

JOURNEY HOME, DAVID GULPILIL
NITV, Sunday, 8.30pm (2025)

Following the remarkable journey that honours the final wish of legendary Yolngu actor David Gulpilil, this AACTA Award-winning film narrated by Hugh Jackman and Baker Boy offers rare and intimate insight into Indigenous ceremony, family ties and connections to Country. Documenting the late icon's traditional funeral and a 4,500km pilgrimage from South Australia's Murray Bridge to Gupulul in remote East Arnhem Land, it's a moving tribute to Gulpilil's life and legacy. ★★★★★

CATS
SBS World Movies, Monday, 9.30pm, PG (2019)

Despite being based upon one of the most successful stage musicals in history – a show that revolutionised immersive theatrical design and handsomely lined the pockets of creator Andrew Lloyd Webber – director Tom Hooper's effects-heavy 2019 adaptation is one of the most iconic cinematic flops in recent "Memory". Featuring Taylor Swift, Idris Elba, Dame Judi Dench (pictured), Jennifer Hudson, Rebel Wilson and Sir Ian McKellen, it's ultimately a star-studded cat-astrophe. ★★

THE HANGOVER PART III
9Go!, Tuesday, 8pm, MA15+ (2013)

It's been a while since the Wolfpack gang narrowly escaped disaster in Bangkok, and Phil (Bradley Cooper), Stu (Ed Helms) and Doug (Justin Bartha) have since settled down, but Alan (Zach Galifianakis, pictured left with Cooper and Helms) is having a personal crisis. Lacking a sense of purpose, Alan has gone off his meds and is getting up to all kinds of crazy antics. It's up to the others to get him back on track by embarking on a road trip to the place it all began... Las Vegas. ★★★

The Guide

Fish out of water: Olympian Ariarne Titmus faces her fears on Shark!

PICK OF THE WEEK

SHARK!
Imparja, Sunday, 6.30pm

With this daring entry, reality TV has officially jumped the shark. Four-time Olympic gold medallist Ariarne Titmus, gold Logie winners Scott Cam and Lynne McGranger, NRL legend Sam Thaiday, actor Matt Nable and influencer Tammy Hembrow are about to come face-to-face with one of the ocean's greatest predators. With the aim of demystifying these often-misunderstood creatures, the celebrities will be guided by former Australian navy diver and shark attack survivor Paul de Gelder, alongside researcher and photographer Annie Guttridge. Together, they will attempt a series of escalating challenges, working towards their ultimate goal: swimming outside a cage with tiger sharks.

CHINA WITH BEN FOGLE
SBS, Friday, 8.30pm

Since coming to prominence in the UK after a year-long stint marooned in the Outer Hebrides for the BBC documentary Castaway 2000, adventurer Ben Fogle (pictured) has delighted in completing extreme feats, witnessing natural wonders and sharing his passion for environmental conservation in all manner of programs. In this three-part exploration, Fogle embarks on a once-in-a-lifetime journey across China, delving into 3000 years of history and discovering how the country rapidly transformed to become the global powerhouse it is today. Friday's second chapter finds him in the heart of the country, where deep-rooted traditions endure despite modern technology.

Seven, Monday, 8.10pm

Stealing the title of "most adrenaline-pumping season finales" from Grey's Anatomy, this Los Angeles-set first responder drama doesn't hold back when it comes to setting up a (literal) cliffhanger. From bombings to a train derailment or bridge collapse, sergeant Athena Grant (Angela Bassett, pictured) of the LAPD and her firefighting friends at Station 118 are able to handle almost anything the show's writers throw their way. Season nine's hard-hitting send-off is no exception, with Athena battling for her life in hospital after sustaining a gunshot wound and her colleagues working overtime to track down the man responsible before he can endanger anyone else – or worse, finish what he started.

SHAUN MICALLEF'S GOING FOR BROKE
ABC TV, Tuesday, 8pm

Shaun Micallef (pictured) has uncovered several sobering truths behind the glitzy facade of the gambling industry in this insightful docuseries, but Tuesday's conclusion ups the ante. Visiting a Wollongong family, the comedian finds out if the odds are already stacked against the next generation of Australians, for whom sports matches seem to go hand in hand with advertising and betting. He also spends a baffling afternoon with poker machine influencer Luca Kante and his fans, before heading to Parliament House in Canberra for a chat with independent senator and former Wallabies captain David Pocock about the Murphy Report and gambling reform. For support, call Gambler's Help (1800 858 858).

On Demand

All together now: From left, Kerri Kenney-Silver, Marco Calvani, Tina Fey, Colman Domingo and Will Forte return to The Four Seasons.

FRIENDS FOR LIFE

THE FOUR SEASONS
Streaming, Netflix

This warm and witty tribute to long-lasting friendships returns for a second season to further explore the highs and lows of sticking by your pals through thick and thin, from divorce and new partners to midlife crises and grief.

Based on Alan Alda's 1981 film of the same name, the first instalment follows three middle-aged couples as they honour their tradition of taking four holidays together every year – before ending with a tragic twist.

This follow-up chapter sees the core group – Kate (Tina Fey), Jack (Will Forte), Danny (Colman Domingo), Claude (Marco Calvani), Anne (Kerri Kenney-Silver) and Ginny (Erika Henningsen) – carry on with their regular reunions, including a much-needed break in picturesque Italy with a baby in tow.

Of course, they'll need to save space in their suitcases for the inevitable emotional baggage that comes with reaching this often unpredictable stage in life.

As the eight-episode tale progresses, Kate and Jack struggle to support each other while battling their own personal issues, Danny and Claude find themselves at odds over starting a family, and Anne and Ginny navigate their newfound dynamic in the wake of their shared loss.

Rest assured, there's also room in their packed itinerary for hilarious hijinks as the close-knit gang get up to all sorts of mischief during their quarterly catch-ups.

Co-created by Fey, Lang Fisher and Tracey Wigfield, this heartfelt comedy offers all the comfort and laughs of your own inner circle.

SPIDER-NOIR
Streaming, Prime Video

The endlessly watchable Nicolas Cage (pictured) headlines this unique take on Spider-Man. The Oscar winner stars in the eight-part series as a private investigator in 1930s New York who is forced to grapple with his past life as the city's superhero. Cage cryptically describes his character as 70 per cent Bogart and 30 per cent Bugs Bunny.

MURDER BEFORE EVENSONG
Streaming, Acorn TV

Imagine Grantchester meets Rivals and you've got this cosy crime caper. Set in 1988, it follows Canon Daniel Clement (Matthew Lewis, pictured) as he probes a baffling murder spree in his sleepy village. Amanda Redman (New Tricks) co-stars as his mother Audrey, who can't help but interfere in her son's affairs.

A GOOD GIRL'S GUIDE TO MURDER
Streaming, Stan

Emma Myers (pictured) is back as teen sleuth Pip Fitz-Amobi in season two of this British mystery thriller that's like a compelling cross between Veronica Mars and Broadchurch. After cracking her first major case in 2024's first instalment, Pip tries to steer away from investigations. However, when her friend's brother goes missing, she's reluctantly dragged into a high-stakes search that soon spirals out of control.

RAFA
Streaming from Friday, Netflix

Spanish tennis champion Rafael Nadal (pictured) reveals what it takes to remain at the top of your game in this inspirational docuseries that chronicles his incredible career and final playing season before his retirement in 2024. The four-part project features candid personal footage and thoughtful interviews with the man himself, alongside other legends of the sport such as Roger Federer and Novak Djokovic.

STAR CITY
Streaming from Friday, Apple TV

This tense period drama expands the alternate-history universe first established by 2019's For All Mankind – an acclaimed series in which the Soviet Union beats the US to the moon in 1969. The eight-part prequel set behind the Iron Curtain stars Rhys Ifans, Anna Maxwell Martin (pictured) and Alice Englert.

Man dies after hit and run

THE Northern Territory Police Force is seeking information after a fatal crash involving a pedestrian that occurred in Alice Springs on 20 May.

Police said the victim was identified as a 57-year-old man.

About 9:30pm, the Joint Emergency Services Communication Centre received a report of an unresponsive adult male pedestrian located on the road at Len Kittle Drive, Alice Springs.

Emergency services responded and the man was declared deceased at the scene.

The incident is currently being investigated as a hit and run, with police saying the man was believed to have suffered head injuries consistent with a vehicle strike.

A crime scene was established, and investigations remain ongoing.

Major Crash and Crime Detectives are appealing for witnesses of the crash, or anyone who may have dashcam or CCTV footage from the area between 7pm and 9:45pm, to make contact on 131 444. Please quote reference number P26144819.

Anonymous reports can be made through Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or via <https://crimestoppersnt.com.au/>

Near miss for rider

THE Northern Territory Police Force is investigating a traffic collision that occurred in Alice Springs on 21 May.

Around 2:40pm, police received reports of a crash between a motorcycle and a car on Bradshaw Drive, Gillen.

It is alleged a 19-year-old female was riding an unregistered Yamaha trail bike at speed along the footpath of Bradshaw Drive when she collided with a vehicle exiting a property near the Tom Brown roundabout.

Members of Territory Road Policing attended the scene along with St John Ambulance and NT Fire and Rescue Service.

The rider sustained serious but non-life-threatening injuries and was taken to Alice Springs Hospital for treatment and drug and alcohol testing.

The sole occupant of the other vehicle involved was not injured.

Investigations into the circumstances of the crash are ongoing.

Police said road safety is a shared responsibility and reminded all road users of the importance of adhering to road rules and prioritising safety at all times.

Motorcyclists are urged to:

- Ride only in designated and lawful areas - not on footpaths
- Ensure their motorcycle is properly registered and roadworthy

- Hold the appropriate licence for the class of vehicle being ridden
- Wear approved safety gear, including helmets and protective clothing
- Ride at safe speeds appropriate to the conditions

Acting Sergeant Rob Webster from Territory Road Policing said: "The rider is extremely fortunate to be alive following this incident. We urge all motorcycle riders to make safer choices and fully consider the risks their behaviours pose - not only to themselves, but to the broader community. Decisions made on the road can have serious consequences for everyone."

Miss Pink's legacy lives on

By Phil Williams

OLIVE Pink Grove, a short cul-de-sac in Desert Springs, sits opposite the botanic garden, also dedicated to Miss Pink, which was her former home.

The street name was gazetted on July 25, 1984.

Miss Pink was a colourful personality in Alice Springs from 1930 to 1975; known for her cultured speaking voice and elegant attire.

She dressed her hair in a chignon, which accentuated her fine, aristocratic features.

Born in Tasmania, she studied art in Hobart before working on the Sydney Harbour Bridge and with the Railway Commission in Sydney.

Miss Pink took an anthropological course and later served as the secretary of the Anthropological Society of NSW.

In the early 1930s, she made expeditions to Central Australia to study the Northern Arrente people, often being the only European woman in the remote Tanami Desert.

She was supported by academics from the Universities of Sydney and Adelaide and from the Adelaide Museum, but her revolutionary ideas, such as banning missionaries and police from reserves, caused consternation among the academics, some of whom arranged grants for field work, which she needed.

During the Depression, Miss Pink went to live with the Aboriginal people at the isolated Thompson's Rockhole, 60km west of The Granites.

Miss Pink advocated for Aboriginal rights and land rights, attending court and interrupting proceedings if she felt tribal law was overlooked.

She also wrote papers and articles, which were published in anthropological journals such as Oceania, and had a paper read at the 1935 Science Congress in Melbourne.

Miss Pink wrote many letters in bold handwriting to government departments, if she thought there was injustice.

An ardent conservationist, Miss Pink applied for a flora reserve area, west of the Power House in Alice Springs and in 1956 the Australian Arid Regions Native Flora Reserve was gazetted and she became curator.

Her reliable Aboriginal gardener, Johnny Tambbijinja Yannarilyi, helped her for 12 years until his death.

They preserved the existing flora and planted arid zone species that grew within a 200km radius of Alice Springs.

Miss Pink named many plants after officials

Vandalism: A Black Faced Cuckoo Shrike pulls apart a small nest. (381999)

Alert: A Crested Pigeon at Olive Pink Botanic Garden. (Phil Williams: 381999)

Looking: A Grey Crowned Babbler at Olive Pink Botanic Garden. (Phil Williams: 381999) with whom she dealt and if she felt one was unfair, it was reported that she could not bring herself to water that plant.

Often when officials went to see her, they first tried furtively to see if their name-sake plant was nurtured, in a bid to understand what sort of reception they could expect.

After Miss Pink died in 1975, aged 91, the town was not the same.

According to her wish, she was buried in the Aboriginal section of the cemetery, facing west – contrary to the last, say some – but her grave faces the glorious panorama of the ever-changing colour of Mt Gillen.

The government honoured Miss Pink posthumously, by renaming the park the Olive Pink Flora Reserve.

It was re-gazetted the Olive Pink Botanic Garden in May 1996 and officially renamed on 26 August 1996, to recognise the area, not as a reserve, but as an accessible garden, which included 1800 native plants that grew within a 500km radius of Alice Springs.

It brought true one of her dreams, which was that the park become a family picnic area.

Mosquito virus claims two

TERRITORIANS and visitors are urged to take protection against Murray Valley encephalitis (MVE), following two deaths in Alice Springs from the virus in April and May.

MVE is a rare but serious and potentially fatal mosquito-borne disease that can be transmitted by being bitten by a mosquito carrying the virus.

It has been detected in the Northern Territory, with transmission frequent between February and June, and most cases occurring between March and May.

With significant rain across the Territory earlier this year, the risk area for MVE has been expanded to include all regions.

NT Health undertakes mosquito surveillance and testing across the Top End in partnership with Berrimah Veterinary Laboratories for the MVE virus from January to June.

Since January, the virus has been detected on two occasions in mosquitoes collected around Darwin, with mosquito collection and testing also being carried out in Central Australia.

Symptoms of MVE include severe headache, fever, nausea and vomiting, muscle aches, drowsiness, confusion and seizures.

NT Health said people experiencing symptoms should visit a doctor immediately.

Mosquito numbers are expected to remain high in the Top End, Big Rivers, Greater Darwin and East Arnhem regions until the end of July as water sources, including isolated pools, provide ideal breeding conditions.

However, in Central Australia and the Barkly regions, mosquito numbers are expected to decrease to very low levels due to cold overnight temperatures.

Mosquitoes are most active after sundown, at night and early in the morning.

To protect against MVE, people should:

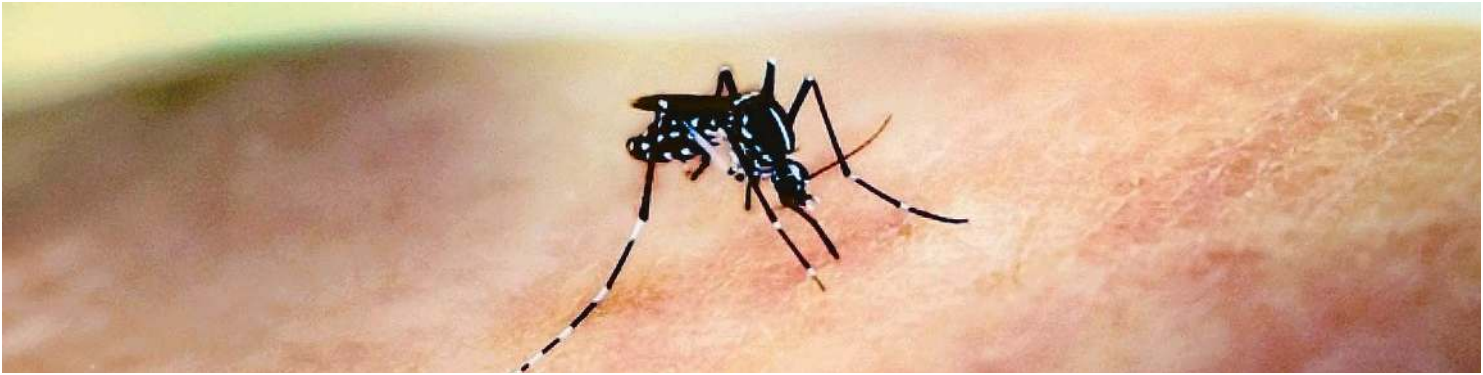

- Apply insect repellents that contain DEET, picaridin or oil of lemon eucalyptus (PMD)
- Wear light coloured protective clothing, and cover your feet
- Ensure that tents are mosquito proof when camping
- Ensure infants and children are adequately protected
- Avoid mosquito prone areas, especially after sundown
- Use mosquito coils, or mosquito lanterns using insecticide treated pads for patios and verandas

Since MVE surveillance began in 1974, 48 cases have been recorded in the NT, including the two fatal cases recently reported in Central Australia.

During the 2023 MVE outbreak, eight cases were recorded, including two deaths and two cases resulting in severe neurological impairment.

NT Health carried out mosquito control activities across 35 hectares of breeding habitat in the Leanyer and Mickett swamps in late April 2026, with further control efforts scheduled for this week.

VACCINATION IS THE BEST
PREPARATION

Influenza, COVID-19 and RSV viruses are always changing, and the risk of serious illness goes up if you're over 65. By vaccinating regularly, you can protect yourself before a new strain goes around.

Scrambled Egg and Salmon Bagels

Serves: 4 people
Cook time: 20 mins

Ingredients:

- 6 eggs, at room temperature
- 1/3 cup milk
- 2 tbsp finely chopped chives
- 4 fresh plain bagels, split
- 2 tbsp butter, chopped
- 1/3 cup light spreadable cream cheese
- 100g sliced smoked salmon
- Lemon wedges, to serve

Method:

1. Whisk eggs, milk and chives in a bowl until well combined. Set aside for a few minutes to allow foam to settle. Meanwhile, toast bagels to your liking.
2. Heat a medium non-stick frying pan over medium heat. Add butter, melt and swirl to coat pan base.
3. Add egg mixture and cook without stirring for 30 seconds. Using a wide spatula, push the set eggs around outer edge toward the centre of the pan, tilting the pan to allow the uncooked egg to run over the base. Gently push eggs around pan every 15 seconds until soft folds form and one quarter mixture is unset. Remove from heat.

4. Spread toasted bagels with cream cheese. Top with smoked salmon and wedges.

Notes:

- For creamy scrambled eggs, substitute the milk for cream.
- Another tip for light and fluffy scrambled eggs is using a spatula, gently pull the eggs from the edges of the pan into the centre. Turn and tilt the pan so the runny eggs take up the available space and again gently pull it towards the centre. This gentle pulling towards the centre of the pan makes lovely, light ribbons of egg.

Gently fold the egg mixture once more.

Choc Hazelnut Egg Bread Braid

Cook time: 45 mins
Serves: 10 people

Ingredients:

- 4 cups (600g) bread flour
- 2 tsp (7g) Active Dry Yeast
- 2 tbsp caster sugar
- 1 tsp salt
- 1/2 cup (125ml) cold water
- 1/2 cup (125ml) cold milk,
- 60g cold butter, finely diced
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten,
- 1/2 cup (140g) chocolate hazelnut spread, warmed
- 1/3 cup toasted salted peanuts, coarsely chopped
- Icing sugar to serve

Method:

1. Place 2 cups of the flour, yeast, sugar and salt into the bowl of a stand mixer fitted with the paddle attachment. Mix well at low speed for 1 minute
2. Add water, milk and diced butter and beat at low speed for 1-2 minutes or until butter has been incorporated.
3. Remaining at low speed, gradually add beaten eggs a little at a time. Increase speed to medium and beat for 2 minutes. Mixture should be glossy and sticky.
4. Remove paddle attachment and insert dough hook. Beat on low speed and slowly add remaining flour, 1/2 cup at a time until it forms a firm dough. Increase speed and knead for 5 minutes or until dough is smooth and elastic.
5. Tip dough onto a lightly flour work surface and form into a ball. Place in a lightly oiled bowl and turn to grease top. Cover; and allow to rise for 1-1/2 hours or until doubled in size.
6. Punch down dough and roll out to form a 30cm x 35cm rectangle. Spread chocolate-hazelnut spread onto dough leaving a 1 1/2cm border on all sides. Sprinkle over chopped peanuts.
7. Starting from one of the long sides, roll up dough to form a log. Position roll in front of you and with a sharp knife cut the centre lengthwise, leaving intact the edge farthest from you, so that the two halves of dough are not completely separated but remain attached. Braid the two edges without tightening and try to keep the dough with the choc hazelnut facing up. Place onto a greased and line baking tray. Rise in warm place for 15-20 minutes (note: dough is ready when indentation remains after lightly touching)
8. Preheat oven 200°C/ 180°C (fan forced). Bake 25- 30 minutes until golden brown. Check at 15 minutes and if browning too fast, cover with foil. Cool on wire rack and serve dusted with icing sugar.

Tips:

- Wrap cooled loaf in cling film and refrigerate for up to 3 days. Warm slices in the microwave for 20 seconds or warm in a low oven for 15 minutes.
- To freeze loaf, wrap whole loaf well in cling film and freeze for one month. Defrost overnight in the refrigerator.
- Use any type of nut. Salted nuts work well with the sweetness of the chocolate.

Your week ahead

This week's Mercury, joining Venus and Jupiter in Cancer, draws terrestrial energy inwards to our home zone, base of operations and those closest...

ARIES

(Mar 21 - Apr 19)

Saturn, in your straightforward, tell-it-like-it-is sign, butting up against Mercury in super-sensitive mode, may activate some defensive reactions this week. So, choose your words carefully and don't jump to conclusions about people's motives, because there's usually a lot more operating backstage than we know.

Best day:
Monday 1 June

TAURUS

(Apr 20 - May 20)

Mars in Taurus likes getting stuff done, while your prima planet, Venus, aligned with Jupiter, is currently asking what do you really want to experience more of – or, alternatively, a whole lot less? While this transit fosters soulful connections, it also needs you keeping those discernment filters in peak working order.

Best day:
Wednesday 3 June

GEMINI

(May 21 - Jun 20)

The Sun, in your lively, socialising sign, is all about connection and conversation. As Uranus in Gemini brings rapid changes in communicating, you'll be challenged to maintain human, organic, non-tech ways of interacting: to look up from your phone and make eye contact with what's hiding in plain sight.

Best day:
Friday 5 June

CANCER

(Jun 21 - Jul 22)

The celestial trifecta of vivacious Venus, flirty Mercury and generous Jupiter in Cancer sees this week hosting a scintillating assortment of fun folk and interesting new connections in your social scene, either at Crab Casa or other people's places, with you doing lots of what you love with the ones you love.

Best day:
Saturday 6 June

LEO

(Jul 23 - Aug 22)

June is always a busy, buzzy month, and since Leos are often the event planners for their friends, it's worth knowing that this week's stellar trends could incline people towards being over-sensitive and easily offended. So best read the room and also curb unnecessary expenditure by resisting impulse buying.

Best day:
Monday 1 June

VIRGO

(Aug 23 - Sep 22)

As your mentor planet, Mercury, heads into the sign of home base and domestic dealings, this week asks is there any possibility you're being a little too critical of those closest to you? In which case it's time to cultivate your love language – see Troy Hawke, suave online compliment professional for pro tips.

Best day:
Wednesday 3 June

LIBRA

(Sep 23 - Oct 22)

The electric energy of Uranus, great planetary rearranger, currently has us getting accustomed to unfamiliar rhythms and acclimatised to new ways of operating. Expect some ruffled feathers as habitual patterns are updated. And if some friendships fade into the background, that isn't such a bad thing.

Best day:
Friday 5 June

SCORPIO

(Oct 23 - Nov 21)

Scorpio is a depth sign which, spoiler alert, might find this week's incessant chitchat a tad exasperating. But while there's no question there'll be TMI, one of your superpowers is listening, and the current astral transit will definitely have interesting info which could be of use to you.

Best day:
Thursday 4 June

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov 22 - Dec 21)

Velvety Venus, cozying up to generous Jupiter, your boss planet in your partnership zone, gives relationships a warm, heart-expanding boost, offering ideal conditions to make that caring gesture or voice call to plan a catchup, offer an unexpected gift or let someone know they're appreciated and cherished.

Best day:
Sunday 31st May

CAPRICORN

(Dec 22 - Jan 19)

This week's planetary trio, in your opposite and complementary sign on the astrowheel, directs your busy Capricorn energy home to rest. So take some time away from digital demands to examine your inner landscape, and how it's coping with the current tsunami of rapid change and evolution.

Best day:
Tuesday 2 June

AQUARIUS

(Jan 20 - Feb 18)

The chatty season of the celestial Twins, a mentally-oriented air sign like yourself, usually has your wild mind vibrating with interesting propositions. But while this planetary mix stimulates all kinds of communications, before launching any new collaborative projects, take time to check you actually walks their talk.

Best day:
Thursday 4 June

PISCES

(Feb 19 - Mar 20)

June's astral energetics, in the zodiac's sign of multiple choice, poses many head-versus-heart questions. Rational Mercury wants to stick with a plan, while your ruler Neptune is ready to follow a hunch. Don't ask AI. Just unplug for a few hours and tune into what you see, hear, feel and learn IRL.

Best day:
Saturday 6 June

Top birds of the Territory

THE Red-collared Lorikeet has taken out the top spot as the bird Territorians are seeing most often, according to the latest results from the annual Aussie Bird Count.

The Lorikeets are native to the Top End with rare sightings in Central Australia but will show for flowering events.

The colourful native bird topped the Northern Territory rankings, followed by the Magpie-lark and Torresian Imperial-Pigeon.

The results come after a record-breaking year for the Aussie Bird Count, with more than five million birds counted nationwide by 64,000 Australians during the week-long citizen science event held in October last year.

Across the country, participants submitted more than 153,000 checklists and recorded 621 different bird species.

Nationally, the Australian Magpie was crowned the bird Australians see most often, appearing in one out of every two surveys completed during the count.

BirdLife Australia National Public Affairs Manager Sean Dooley said the growing popularity of the count reflected Australians' love of birdwatching and nature.

"The Aussie Bird Count is a fun way to give birdwatching a go while adding to a valuable national snapshot of the birds in the places we live, work and learn," Mr Dooley said.

He said some native species, including ibis and brush-turkeys, had adapted well to urban life, while other smaller bush birds continued to decline as habitats were lost.

"Adding native plants to your garden can offer a lifeline to Australian birds that need more support," he said.

Most bird counts were conducted in urban areas, helping provide a picture of the birdlife living alongside Australians in towns and cities.

The Aussie Bird Count is run annually by BirdLife Australia and encourages people of all ages to spend 20 minutes recording the birds

BIRD: The Aussie Bird Count has revealed the Red-collared Lorikeet is a bird Territorians are seeing the most.

they see in their backyard, local park or neighbourhood.

This year's Aussie Bird Count will run from 19 to 25 October.

Police investigate violence

TWO unrelated domestic violence aggravated assaults in Alice Springs are being investigated by police.

Around 10:45pm on 23 May, police received a report a 33-year-old woman had been assaulted by her 33-year-old male partner at a residence on Kilgariff Crescent.

Police attended and provided initial first aid to the woman, who suffered a laceration near her collarbone.

The police Drone Unit tracked the man to a location nearby, where he was arrested.

Around 6:15am on 24 May in a separate incident, police received reports of a 27-year-old man and a 29-year-old woman, both near a business on Gap Road with stab wounds.

They were believed to be in a domestic relationship and were taken to Alice Springs Hospital for treatment.

Initial investigations by police indicates an altercation occurred between the pair and investigations into the incident were ongoing.

If you or someone you know are experiencing difficulties due to domestic violence, support services are available, including, but not limited to, 1800RESPECT (1800737732) or Lifeline 131 114.

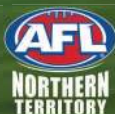

RECRUITS: 14 probationary Constables assigned from most recent graduating class.

Secret message: Life in the big city

Petrick triumphs in Tennant

By Thoroughbred Racing NT Chief Executive Officer Andrew O’Toole

“CUPS Queen” Kerry Petrick has a nice ring to it, and the leading Alice Springs-based trainer ruled again at the annual Two Cups Raceday in the Barkly when Venting won his second Remote Concrete NT/Ladbrokes Tennant Creek Cup, the feature on the six-race card.

Petrick, born and bred in the Red Centre, has a love affair with country racing and is always a tremendous supporter of the meetings in both Tennant Creek and Katherine.

And in Venting, she has something of a Cups specialist – he has won an Alice Springs Cup and a Katherine Cup to go along with his two Tennant Creek Cups in the past two years.

Ridden by Ianish Luximon, who does a lot of riding for the Petrick stable, 7-yo Venting jumped from the outside gate of seven in the 1600m feature, and was allowed to find his feet before improving around runners down the back straight.

Approaching the home turn, he was within striking distance of his stablemate The Girl’s Boy, and the Petrick pair waged a tremendous home straight battle, with Venting getting the better of his stablemate to win by a half-length.

Favourite Grinzing Bishop took third over seven lengths back, with Figo The Great next.

The rider of the runner-up, Stan Tsaikos, who combined with Petrick a fortnight ago to win the Alice Springs Cup with Magic Defense, fired in a protest against the winner alleging interference in the home straight, but after deliberation, the stewards dismissed his pleas.

Petrick paid tribute to her staff at the Cup presentation.

“I couldn’t do it without my team – they work so hard and this makes it all worthwhile,” she said.

“I love coming to the country meetings and have grown up with them all my life.

“And the team here in the Barkly does a marvellous job – it’s been a great day.”

The day’s other feature, the Little Rippers Denis Staunton Memorial Cup (1200m), was won by Zestiman, aided by a lovely front-running ride from veteran horseman Paul Denton.

Trained by Lisa Whittle in the Alice, Zestiman had finished third behind Black Zous on AS Cup Day and this time got his reward, beating home Real Valentia by a length and a-half, with Throw At Da Stumps, last year’s winner, four lengths away third.

Alice Springs-trained gallopers won five of the six races on the day, with Petrick and Luximon bagging a double courtesy of Hellvit in the Up Front Towing Handicap (1100m).

The 6yo son of Hellbent kept fighting on strongly to defy a game Little Ditty, with Miss Boom, the favourite, close up third.

Kym Healy, who has recently purchased a stable in the Red Centre to go with his main Strathalbyn, South Australia base, also doubled up courtesy of Pub Crawl (Danielle Hirini) in the Territory Water Solutions Class 2 Handicap over 1200m, and veteran Taipan Tommy, also ridden by Hirini, in the Territory Water Solutions Handicap (1450m).

The latter, now a 10-y-o, has a great record

(Karl-Heinz Herzog: 553869)

at Hagan Park, having won the Cup here three years ago and finishing third in the same race 12 months ago. Healy was of a mind to retired Taipan Tommy after Saturday’s win, but he may allow him another chance or two during the upcoming Darwin Cup Carnival.

The day’s other winner was God’s Eye, trained by Phil Cole in Darwin and ridden by Wayne Davis.

He scored by a length and a-half over D’Ambidex and the eye-catching Epic Jewel in the AJ Couriers & Haulage TROBIS Maiden Plate (1000m).

The leading trainer at the meeting, not surprisingly, was Healy, who lined up no less than 14 runners on the day, while Luximon took out the leading rider’s prize for the second time.

A great crowd in excess of 500 racegoers was on hand to see the first-class action, and as always, President Mike Nash and his team turned the course and surrounds out in brilliant fashion.

It was an overcast but fine day, and just as well the meeting was held on Saturday as with rain overnight and into Sunday, racing the following day would have been out of the question.

Petrick's track triumph

By Andrew O'Toole, Thoroughbred Racing NT Chief Executive Officer

"CUPS Queen" Kerry Petrick has a nice ring to it, and the leading Alice Springs-based trainer ruled again at the annual Two Cups Raceday in the Barkly when Venting won his second Remote Concrete NT/Ladbrokes Tennant Creek Cup, the feature on the six-race card.

Petrick, born and bred in the Red Centre, has a love affair with country racing and is always a tremendous supporter of the meetings in both Tennant Creek and Katherine.

And in Venting, she has something of a Cups specialist – he has won an Alice Springs Cup and a Katherine Cup to go along with his two Tennant Creek Cups in the past two years.

Ridden by Ianish Luximon, who does a lot of riding for the Petrick stable, 7-yo Venting jumped from the outside gate of seven in the 1600m feature, and was allowed to find his feet before improving around runners down the back straight.
